Optimism Keynotes Ag Friends Kickoff

BY EVERETT NEWSWANGER
Managing Editor

HERSHEY — "I believe that instead of fearing change, we need to embrace it," said Keith Eckel, president of the Pennsylvania Farmers Association Board of Directors.

Speaking at the Kickoff Banquet at the Pennsylvania Friends of Agriculture Foundation here Thursday, Eckel said, "Tonight we embark on a great new venture. And that venture is for Friends of Agriculture in Pennsylvania to come together to fund this effort that will benefit not only the ag community but the entire world."

The kickoff was the first public meeting for the foundation to gather funds for an endowment. The foundation sponsored by PFA but expanded to include all segments of the research production and agribusiness community has set a goal to raise $1 million in three years. The income from this fund will subsidize research and informational projects related to agriculture.

Eckel drew attention to the foundations green and brown logo that depicts farm land under cultivation, crops growing and pollen being lifted airborn to assure the present agriculture and future growth and its preservation. The color brown is symbolic of the good earth while the color green represents growth.

"As I look at ag today," Eckel said, "I think there is one thing we can be certain of. And that certainty is change. Ag has changed dramatically and tremendously in the last 100 years, the 50 years, even in the last 10 years. It's changed on my own farm because my dad who works the equipment that allows us to cultivate a hun-

Dairy Of Distinction Advances

BY EVERETT NEWSWANGER
Managing Editor

HERSHEY — The Dairy of Distinction farm recognition program, advanced the next step forward when the Pennsylvania Board of Directors met here at Hershey Foods Monday afternoon. Steve Spencer, Penn State Extension dairy specialist, called the meeting to order and recommended that Pennsylvania be divided into 10 districts that would comprise approximately the same number of dairy farms in each district. The outline of the districts as shown on the accompanying map provide and interesting survey of dairy farms in Pennsylvania as well as provides the basis for the Dairy of Distinction program.

District 19 is only one county–Lancaster–but has the most dairy farms, 1900. District 13 includes the greatest number of counties, 12, and the fewest number of dairy farms, 1135. But the directors agreed the district divisions were equitable and provided territories that could be worked nicely into the program.

After the districts were named, nearly a hundred dairy farmers and industry leaders were listed by the directors to be contacted as local committee persons for the program. When each district has a local committee in place, the stage will be set for the program in Pennsylvania to begin in time for

PLA Names 'Man Of The Year'

HARRISBURG — Ray Lehr cautioned his audience to brace themselves for major changes in the livestock industry in the coming years during his address at the Pennsylvania Livestock Association's banquet in Harrisburg on Oct. 3.

"We're in a whole new arena in agriculture, and specifically in the livestock business," said PLA's president. "The 'new arena' will have a lot less people and companies involved," he added.

As examples of how the industry is being reshaped, Lehr pointed out that the nation's five major feed companies have all changed ownership within the past 18 months. He also noted that, largely due to mergers, the number of major tractor manufacturers will soon be reduced to three.

Lehr said that livestock industrymen surviving the lean years would be part of an exciting industry in the future. He pointed to the beef and pork checkoff programs as bright spots on the industry's horizon. "I think we have a tremendous future in livestock here in Pennsylvania," he concluded.

Lehr's keynote address was part of the traditional PLA event in which the association honors its Man of the Year for outstanding contributions to the livestock industry. Named this year's recipient of the award was Peter H. Krall of Catasauqua.

Tobacco Auction To Expand

BY JACK HUBLEY

LANCASTER — Any new business venture is bound to have its share of skeptics in the gallery, and a company called Pennsylvania Tobacco Auction, Inc., was no exception. Formed last year by a group of Lancaster County investors, PTA gained considerable support from the county's tobacco growers in its attempt to overhaul the traditional tobacco marketing system here.

When the smoke cleared at the end of the 1985 buying season, PTA had marketed 4.7 million pounds of tobacco, representing close to one-fourth of the state's crop. The 3.3 million pounds of Maryland-type

KILE Showcases Champion Livestock

By Monday evening more than 3,000 head of livestock had paraded before judges at the 30th Keystone International Livestock Exposition in Harrisburg. While the show hosts plenty of competition in both open and youth shows, KILE's smaller exhibitors never fail to produce many of the event's biggest moments. This certainly was a memorable year for Jason Rodibaugh (left photo) whose father, Jack, trucked his Durocs all the way from Rensselaer, Indiana, and was named premier exhibitor in the national Duroc show held in conjunction with KILE this year. In th[illegible]rocess, four-year-old Jason got in some hog driving practice for future [illegible]nows. It was also a memorable show for the Fox Hill Farm family of Kennett Square. Pictured are (left) Erica McClellan, Matthew McClellan and Chris Jordan, who topped the junior Angus Show the day before Fox Hill cattle swept the Open Angus Show. You'll find the most complete KILE story available throughout this week's Lancaster Farming.

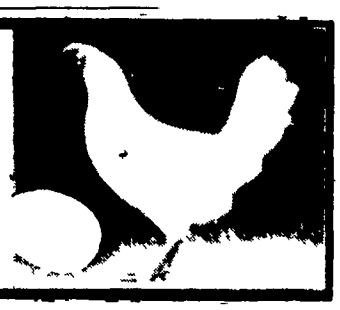
POULTRY MARKETS



Delmarva Poultry

Thursday, Oct. 9, 1986

Market Comment: Movement of ready to cook whole birds was moderate to good. Offerings were generally in-balance and clearing satisfactorily. In the parts complex, white meat items were usually adequate. Legs were clearing quite well while leg quarters were slow movers at some spots. Wings were somewhat more available today and generally fully adequate. Less than trucklot asking prices were again higher at 67-72 cents. Live supplies were moderate to light. Weights, were mixed but generally desirable. Slaughter schedules were very light due to several plants curtailing production. The undertone remained firm and heavily influenced by conditions in southern production areas.

Estimated slaughter of broiler fryers in Delmarva:

Estimated 10/9 1,677,000; Actual 10/2 2,010,000.

Actual 10/7 1,630,000.

Average Weights 10/7 4.45, 9/30 4.59.

OPINION

Times Do Change

You were not born yesterday if you can remember the noise of the morning milkman making his rounds from house to house with those bottles rattling. Today's youth hardly know they existed, along with the ice man, the baker, the butcher and others who make regular stops and deliveries to homes.

And you are beyond the stage of puberty if you can recall going out to the porch on a wintry morning to see the cream, frozen, and pushing the cap above that glass, quart bottle. Woe unto the lad who helped himself to some of that frozen delight for this was the cream for dad's coffee.

Yes, milk buying habits have changed through the years as to location, type of container, and even the type of product favored by today's consumer.

Twenty-eight years ago the average Pennsylvania milk buyer had it delivered to the doorstep in glass quarts and preferred the regular homogenized product, though a number at that time still were buying creamline milk. The current homogenized product didn't come onto the market until after World War II.

Today, the consumer brings the milk home from the store, buys most of it in paper cartons, plus a fair amount in plastic, with purchases about equally divided between gallons and half-gallons. While homogenized milk still is the most popular, one quarter of the selections are for low-fat products.

This latest information comes from the biennial report issued jointly by the Pennsylvania Milk Marketing Board and the Department of Agricultural Economics at Penn State's College of Agriculture. The statistics are based on October sales in the state and is entitled "Characteristics of Fluid Milk Sales in Pennsylvania". The first report was for 1957, though the Milk Marketing Board has had statistics since its inception in the late '30s. The recent study shows October, 1985, purchases which amounted to over 100 million quarts.

BUYERS SHIFT TO STORES

Back in 1957, nearly 55% of the milk was home delivered and still remained at the 45% level in 1965. By 1975 this had dropped to 14% and by 1985 only 3.2% of Pennsylvania milk sales were to the home. Restaurants and schools continue to purchase about 7% of the output.

Of course, if you can remember back before World War II, almost all milk was delivered to the home on a daily basis, including Sunday, according to Earl Fink, executive vice-president of the Harrisburg-based Pennsylvania Association of Milk Dealers. During the "big war" every other day delivery became mandatory to cut gasoline costs, even though much of the milk in the big cities still were using horse-drawn wagons where the horses knew the routes and the customers as well as the milkman themselves.

Then, as delivery costs mounted, due to the man hours and gasoline used for a relatively small home delivery volume, people began to buy milk at the store, said the milk dealer spokesman. In addition, the rise of the readily accessible convenience stores made such items as milk more convenient. This practically marked the end of house calls by the dairyman.

CONTAINERS CHANGE

Containers also have changed over the years with new technology, said Fink. In 1957, there was no plastic milk bottle in the state and glass was still a 56% favorite, most of the rest being in paper cartons with some bulk sales. by 1965, 60% of sales were in paper, with glass down to 36%. Plastic showed up in the '75 figures and 31% was in the new container, glass amounting to under 7%. Today, less than 1% remains in the old familiar bottle and paper is just a bit more popular than plastic–50% to 46%.

The quart container was the favorite for decades and when the report first came out in 1957, 66% was sold in this bottle. Gallons then were practically unheard of for milk. By 1965, the half-gallon equalled the demand for quarts but by 1975 only 10% was handled in the familiar 32 oz. bottle. Then half-gallons and gallons were about tied, each getting about one-third the volume. Today, better than 45% moves out in gallons, 30% in the two-quart size, with quarts down to 7%. The rest is in pints, half-pints, etc.

What does the consumer buy today?

The original product sold by dairies was cream-line milk but after World War II homogenized milk, fortified with Vitamin D was introduced, according to the milk dealer representative. The homogenization process merely breaks up the fat globules by driving the milk with extra force. This makes it much more digestible, similar to mother's milk.

In 1957 about 15% of the sales remained in the product with the cream on top but homogenized milk was the leader. By 1965, 84% of the sales were with the no-cream line milk and 10 years later lowfat milks began to cut into the regular milk market. Today, just over half the milk sold is homogenized with lowfat and skim products grabbing about 35%.

"In years gone by no one wanted skim milk–you couldn't give it away," said Fink. Today, just about 7% moves with this product, which means over 7 million quarts a month in the Keystsone State. This is due to two reasons.

First, lowfat and skim became popular in the drive to cut salories. Actually, this could be a mistake, he added. "People have a wrong impression about the amount of fat in milk, thinking it contains 10%, 20% or more. Actually, less than 4% of the volume is in fat and one must remember the many great nutrients in bossy's best such as calcium and other minerals."

In addition, Fink continued, "The product today is far better than it was some decades back. Vitamins A and D are added, the product often is fortified with extra skim powder to give it more body and to improve the flavor."

Some 365 distributors of milk participated in the study of the 1985 sales, including dealers who process and distribute milk, those who buy their milk already packaged but do the delivering (known as sub-dealers), and farmers who produce some milk, may buy additional volume and also put it on the market. When these reports were first issued in the middle '50s, there were 762 involved in milk distribution and, according to milk dealer records, there were well over 1,100 back before World War II. Times do change.

NOW IS THE TIME

To Utilize Corn Stalks

Corn producers who are not making the crop into silage might consider making the corn stalks into bedding materials. The market value of all livestock bedding is quite high, and can be used on the farm or sold to others. After the corn is picked and the stalks dry, the corn can be shredded and baled.

This material makes very good bedding for box stalls and feedlot pens; the fodder absorbs water rapidly and when shredded gives less trouble in mechanical handling. When used on the farm as bedding, it can still be returned to the soil as added organic matter.

To Protect Corn In Storage

Corn harvested for grain is an important crop for most farmers; therefore, good corn storage is very important. It should be protected from the weather, given proper ventilation for drying, and then protected from rodents. This rodent menace is one that needs more attention on many farms. Mice and rats like to make their homes in corn cribs and storage places when given a chance. Make an effort to eliminate all nesting places and practice good sanitation to keep populations down. Rats have a new litter every 30 days — multiplying so rapidly that a pair could have 15,000 descendants in a year's life span. All rat bait stations should be located where children and pets cannot come in contact with the bait.

It is estimated that each rat causes $28.00 in damages. They are very destructive and are costing farmers a great deal of money.

To Practice Good Public Relations

Farmers should be concerned about their image in the community. In most cases it's very good, and the majority of non-farm people in rural areas respect the needs and problems of the farmer. The image can be improved by getting better acquainted with your non-farm neighbors.

We urge farmers to invite nearby neighbors to see their farm operation. In many cases a better understanding of the various farm operations will eliminate disputes and hassles about noise and odors.

Also, I would encourage farmers to become involved with community activities. You'll find that people who understand each other seldom have serious problems.

To Apply Lime

First test the soil, then apply the needed lime before the soil freezes. That 1-2 order of events should have a high priority now as we finish one growing season and plan ahead for the next.

In order to do its job of correcting soil acidity, like must come in contact with the soil particles, not just those on the soil surface. Weather changes during the next 6 months will provide just the right conditions to do lots of mixing of lime and soil within the topsoil layer. Freezing and thawing, rain, snow and ice, help to move the lime downward.

During the fall season fields are firm and usually dry enough to allow lime spreading trucks to move about more easily. Deliveries of lime can be made on time.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS
BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

WITNESSES AGAINST OURSELVES
October 12, 1986

Background Scripture: Joshua 24.
Devotional Reading: Joshua 23:14-16.

The trouble with most of us, I believe, is not that we are insincere in the vows we take and the commitments we make, but that we tend to either forget what we have promised, or gradually weakened in our resolve. There are, of course, times when we may knowingly and willingly violate our commitments, but I like to think that these are the exception, not the rule.

CHOOSE THIS DAY

It also follows, I believe, that we are more likely to fulfill our commitments when we are confronted with the reality of choosing either to do or not do so. Thus, if, from time to time, we are confronted with the promises we have made and are challenged to renew or reject them, we are much more likely to be faithful to them. For most of us, then, making a commitment is not enough, we need to be confronted occasionally so that we may be given the opportunity to consciously affirm or deny it.

This is what Joshua did with the people of Israel at Schechem. His purpose in summoning the elders of Israel was to remind them of Israel's solumn covenant with the Lord, calling to remembrance, both what God had done for them and also what they had promised to the Lord. This was nothing new to them — the mighty acts of God had been told and retold throughout their history and their promises were well-known to them. So, the meeting is not to tell them what they do not know, but to remind them of what they already know.

WE ARE WITNESSES

Thus, Joshua challenges them with these dramatic words: "Now therefore fear the Lord, and serve him in sincerity and in faithfulness... And if you are unwilling to serve the Lord, choose this day whom you will serve..." (24:14,15). This is not the first time that Israel has been challenged to make this commitment. Actually, the meeting at Schechem is an opportunity to renew it.

There is no equivocation on the part of the people. When Joshua warns them against a divided loyalty, they respond: "Nay; but we will serve the Lord." And Joshua responds, "You are witnesses against yourselves that you have chosen the Lord to serve him." Undaunted, the people reply, "We are witnesses."

Are there not many times when you and I need to be confronted with such an opportunity to consider and renew our vows and covenants?

Producers who have used Tylan® Sulfa-G™ know how effectively it controls respiratory diseases like atrophic rhinitis[1] and bacterial pneumonia (like Pasteurella)[2]. But there's more to Tylan Sulfa-G than just good disease control.

Tylan Feed Medication ("The Feed/Money Saver") is proven to boost a pig's gain and feed conversion, and, in combination with Sulfa-G (sulfamethazine Granurolls) provides effective respiratory disease control.

Now we give you the Tylan Sulfa-G Challenge: Compare it to your other starter/grower medications. We believe you'll like what you see. For disease control, that might mean less coughing and sneezing, or a better slaughter check.

As to resulting performance, Tylan Sulfa-G can mean faster gains on less feed, for more efficiency in practically all units. (Results of TRAC Clinics indicate that almost every herd has respiratory disease.) It all means a better return on your medication investment.

The challenge to you is to try the product; the challenge to us is to deliver on our word: Tylan Sulfa-G really works.

For more information, ask your feed man or Elanco representative about the Challenge. We're ready for you.

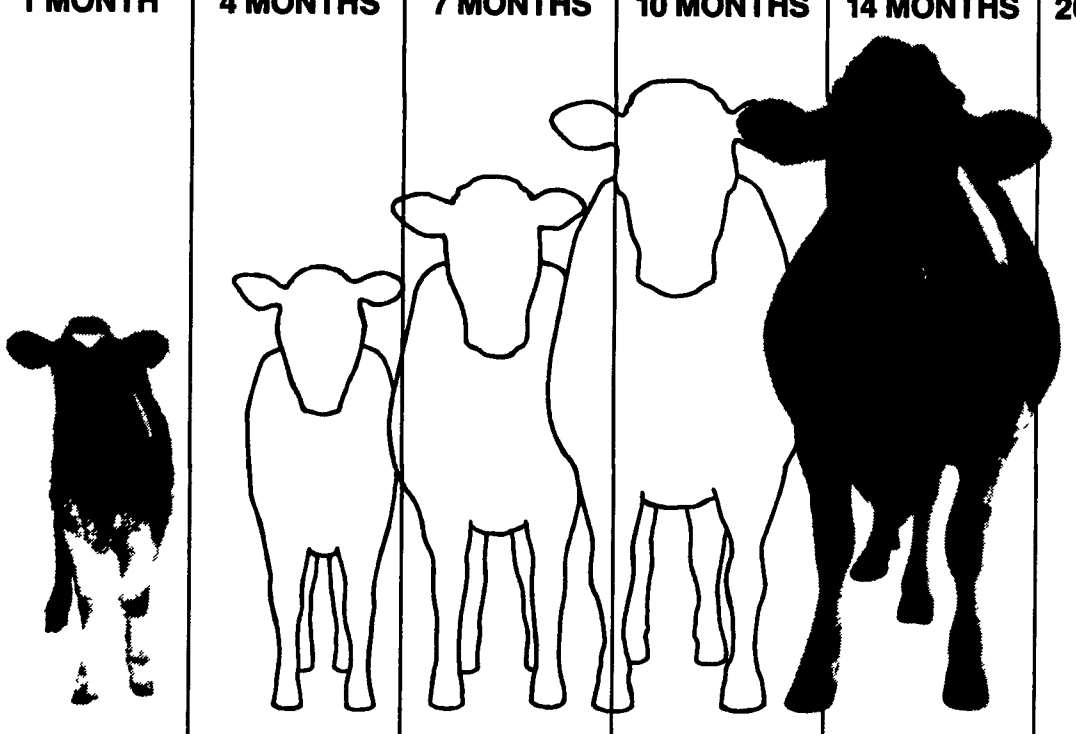
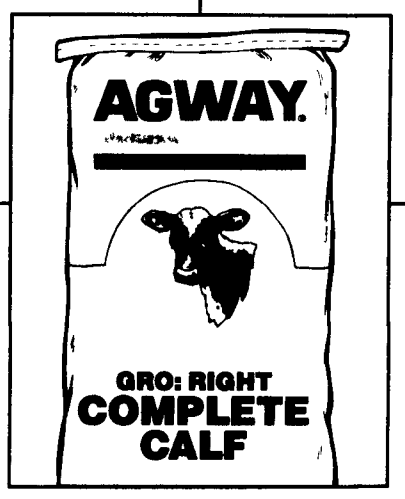
EXTRA PROFITABLE WAY TO FEED CALVES

1 MONTH | 4 MONTHS | 7 MONTHS | 10 MONTHS | 14 MONTHS | 20 MONTHS



Freshen faster with new Agway Gro:Right. TM



Every calf you raise costs about $60 a month for forage and labor. So if you could breed them at 14 months (6 months earlier than average), they'd freshen at 24 months and you'd save $360 on each calf. Not to mention the profits from 6 extra months of milking.

New Agway Gro:Right Complete Calf Feed can help you do that. It's an improved version of our Total Calf Ration, the brand Northeastern farmers have been using since 1976 to maximize calf-raising efficiency. We've added milk protein and B vitamin complex for rapid growth and efficient energy usage. So calves raised on Agway Complete Calf reach breeding weight in 14 months and join the milking string in 24 months.

Save hundreds, even thousands of dollars down the road. For more information, contact your Agway Store or Farm Enterprise Salesperson.

Waits Named President of Farm Credit Council

WASHINGTON – John A. Waits has been named president of The Farm Credit Council, effective immediately, according to an announcement today by the chairman of the board of the Washington-based trade association for the Farm Credit System.

Board Chairman Grant T. Lucas of Ceres, California, said that Waits, who has served as acting president since July 1, has been extremely effective in directing the legislative and governmental affairs efforts of the Council.

"The board has complete confidence that John Waits will lead the Council forward and continue the good work which has been done in behalf of the Farm Credit System and its farmer-owners. We are fortunate to have someone with his ability and expertise," Lucas said.

Waits joined The Farm Credit Council in April 1984 as vice president for legislation and was named acting president when Delmar K. Banner resigned to return to the family farm in Illinois. Before coming to the Council, Waits served for two years as head of the legislative affairs section of the Farm Credit Administration, the regulatory agency for the Farm Credit System. Prior to that he was administrative assistant to former Congressman David R. Bowen of Mississippi and counsel to the House Agriculture Subcommittee on Cotton, Rice and Sugar. Before coming to Washington, Waits practiced law in New York City.

A native of Leland, Mississippi, he was graduated summa cum laude from the University of Mississippi, and earned a master's degree with honors in modern history and diplomacy at the University of Virginia. He also studied a year at the University of Hamburg in Germany as a Fulbright Scholar. He is a graduate of the New York University School of Law.

In accepting the position, Waits said, "I am honored to have the opportunity to represent the legislative and governmental interests of the Farm Credit System in Washington. The Council has well served its members during these almost four years of its existence and I look forward to the challenge of continuing that effective representation during this stressful time for U.S. agriculture. With the help of the highly professional staff of the Council, I am confident we will be able to carry out this task."

The Farm Credit Council was established by the Farm Credit System in late 1982 and began operation here in March 1983, with Banner as its first president. The Council is charged with representing the Farm Credit System and other cooperative agricultural lenders before Congress and governmental agencies on matters affecting agricultural credit. The Farm Credit System, which dates to 1916, is a nationwide network of cooperative lending institutions that make available to the country's farmers about one-third of their total credit needs. The System is composed of the Federal Land Banks and the Federal Land Bank Associations, the Federal Intermediate Credit Banks and the Production Credit Associations, and the Banks for Cooperatives.

Keystone Crowns Open Breeding Cattle Champions

BY EVERETT NEWSWANGER AND JACK HUBLEY

HARRISBURG — It only takes three words to sum up the Keystone International's Angus breeding cattle show held last Sunday: Fox Hill Farm. By the time judge James Hough was ready to slap his champion heifer, Fox Hill had already sewn up all the division championships, so it was only a question of which Fox Hill heifer would come out on top.

Larry and Donna Moore of Moving M Farm, Gatesburg, showed champion Chianina bull.

Hough, who manages Fairfield Farms in Lakeville, Connecticut, selected the May heifer, Cypress Creek Mayflower T39 for top honors. The New Yorker daughter was exhibited by Frank Walton, managing partner of the Kennett Square-based Fox Hill. Along with Frank and his wife Susan, Fox Hill is owned by Brian and Judy Jordan.

An embryo calf, Mayflower was out of one of Fox Hill's foundation cows, and was reserve grand champion at the New Jersey open Angus show earlier this year.

At reserve was Lady Evelyn, a Fox Hill heifer shown by Erica McClellan, daughter of the Jordans and Dr. Michael McClellan. Twelve-year-old Erica got plenty of practice for her open show win by campaigning Lady Evelyn to top honors in the junior Angus show only the day before.

Fox Hill also figured prominently in the Angus bull show, being a co-owner of the grand champion, Kruegers Special K. Bred by Greg Krueger, Special K is out of his well-known Foolish Pride bull. The KILE champion is owned by Greg Krueger, Fox Hill and Greg's father, LaVern Krueger of Indiana.

Already a showring winner, Special K was reserve champion at the New Jersey State Fair and junior champion at the Eastern National Livestock Show in Timonium last week.

The reserve champion Angus bull was Bippert's Injector 961, the bull that won KILE last year as a calf. "I'm really excited," said Warren Bippert, Jr., adding that Injector had already won the Big E in Massachusetts and the Erie County Fair earlier this year. The bull is a Pine Drive Big Sky son.

Simmental

Donald Virts of Meadow Hill Farm, Purcellville, Va., and Shoemakers Simmentals of Pittsburgh shared top honors in the Simmental bull and heifer shows.

Virts was particularly elated with his grand champion heifer win and his reserve rosette in the bull show. "This is the first (year) we ever showed our own cattle," said the breeder of one of Virginia's first Simmental herds. His winning heifer was a fullblood sired by Supercharger.

A black Simmental bull shown by Virts took reserve honors. His owner noted that "Ike" got his unusual color from being one-eighth Angus. "They're (black Simmentals) are just starting to get some popularity," said Virts, noting that the Angus influence tends to produce beef cattle of moderate size more attractive to the packing industry. Ike is a Buck son out of a CPS dam.

The champion Simmental bull was shown by Bill Shoemaker of Shoemaker Simmentals, co-owners of SWHS Learjet with Whitney Hills. Learjet was also last year's KILE champion. "I was a little concerned whether he had enough flesh on him," said Shoemaker, noting that the bull has been involved in an ambitious breeding program recently. Bred by Shoemaker, Learjet is a Lightning son out of Dream Girl, the intermediate champion at Louisville two years ago.

SWHS Miss Cher, another Shoemaker/Whitney Hills entry, took reserve honors in the heifer show. A natural calf sired by CPS, Cher won her class at Maryland's Eastern National Livestock Show last week.

Chianina

Just as she'd done in the junior breeding cattle show, Leigh Hitz went to the top of the open Chianina heifer show with her Kentucky Colonel-sired heifer named Bambi. Leigh is the daughter of Lee and Elene Hitz of Annville.

Another repeat winner was Mike Messick's heifer that took reserve honors in both the junior and open shows. Also sired by Kentucky Colonel, Messick's entry was reserve champion at the Northeast Region Chianina Field Day in York.

The show's top Chianina bull was MS White Lightning, owned by Larry and Donna Moore of Moving M Farm, Gatesburg, Pa. A homebred entry, Lightning is a Lombard son out of a cow that took reserve honors at KILE in 1980.

Polled Hereford

Exhibitors from New Jersey spent a rewarding day at the Farm Show Complex here, winning major titles in Polled Hereford Breeding Cattle competition.

Dunwalke Farm of Far Hills, N.J., showed the grand champion heifer, "Dunwalke Victra 99S," dred acres in a day, remembers working that same soil where in one especially stoney seven acre field of ours it took over 10 days to plow. My dad marvels at that and yet he has become part of that change."

Dale Wolf, group vice president ag products DuPont Company, told the Friends of Agriculture gathered in the convention center that the U.S. has the best soil in the world, a better water supply than the Soviet Union and the best technology. "All these things give U.S. ag an advantage in the world market. But we must shape government policy on food. Often food has been used as a state department weapon," Wolf said. "But we must never let the President again put an embargo on a shipment of crops over seas. We can really put ourselves in the best competitive position of any country in the world. But we can't do it with a government policy that won't let it happen."

The new foundation's board of directors were introduced as follows: Joseph Johns, Chairman; Dr. Robert Marshak, Vice Chairman; Richard W. Newpher, Secretary-Treasurer; Dr. Ralph E. Bartholomew; Kenneth Boyer; Dean Carey; Richard Croner; Arthur Davis; Richard E. Denison; Harlan Fricke; D. Eugene Gayman; Penrose Hallowell; Dr. Lamartine Hood; James J. McCracken; Art Smith; W. Eastern Milk Producers Look To Increase Profits To $3 Million

BY MARTHA SHELDON
Special Report

SYRACUSE, N.Y. — Despite the crisis in the dairy industry, Eastern Milk Producers Cooperative is alive and well, according to its president and general manager, and intends to step up profits drastically in the next few years.

The co-op's goal is to achieve a minimum profit level of $3 million per year by 1991, necessitating increasing profits an average of 36 percent or more a year.

And effective Oct. 6, Eastern will be licensed to distribute milk in four Central New York counties previously inaccessible to the organization. Those counties include Onondaga, where its headquarters are located, plus its neighbors, Cayuga, Oswego, and Tompkins.

Amidst a few murmurs of surprise, General Manager Michael Donovan told delegates to Eastern Milk Producers Cooperative's Annual Meeting on Oct. 1 in Syracuse, that the $3 million goal is "do-able" and would mean a substantially improved return to the member-owners of the co-op, possibly in the form of drastically reduced dues or a payout amounting to 10 times what was distributed during the fiscal year which ended March 31, 1986.

Eastern issued members a 13th milk check this year, the first in 15 years, and President Earl Forwood of Hop Bottom, Pa. who was re-elected to another term of office at the meeting, promised delegates they would not have to wait another 15 years for their next bonus check.

That 13th check represented a $325,000 refund to the nearly 3,900 dairy farmer-members of the organization in New York, Pennsylvania, Vermont, New Hampshire, Massachusetts, Connecticut, New Jersey, Maryland and Delaware.

Cooperative officials also told delegates they will be operating out of their new headquarters on Burnet Avenue in Syracuse by Oct. 15.

Figures released by the cooperative for the first quarter of fiscal year 1987 show a profit of $493,000, and officials predict continuing leaps in profitability for the next five years. The current four-month figure of $493,000 "puts us well on track to achieving our annual budgeted profit of $893,000, which would be 42 percent higher than last year's net of $631,000," Donovan told the 200 delegates. Last year's net was a jump of 44 percent over the year before.

In a meeting with the media, Donovan said, "If we continue doing everything the same as we are doing now, we can't hit $3 million. But we will plan the achievement of that goal, and I am confident we will reach it."

Donovan said the $3 million in profits will hinge on favorable returns in six areas: the dairy products division, which is growing at a constant rate; the fluid milk business which Donovan said should go from a $300,000 loss to a nearly break-even situation this year; getting better handling allowances; improving the co-op's equity position, which should reach 20 percent of assets if the organization attains its profit goal for this year; increased returns on the remaining 18 years of a 20-year lease of its two cheese plants to Leprino Foods; and a continued drop in administrative costs.

Eastern's economist Joseph Mathis said the cooperative advocates a change in New York state licensing regulations to a region by region basis rather than county by county, along with enforcement of the fair trade legislation which "has never been enforced in this state."

Earl Forwood

Touching on the continuing discussion among dairymen of whether the buyout is working and if the Northeast is contributing to the milk surplus, Donovan said he believes the whole herd buyout is doing the job. He added "anyone who says we have no surplus, has to explain to me why we have to run a butter plant and sell to the government."

Donovan said he sees no need to re-open the '85 farm bill as it relates to the dairy industry, since the Secretary of Agriculture has options he can exercise to continue to bring supply in line with demand. But with the cost of government payments to the grain industry running far over budget, he acknowledges the program may be renegotiated.

Revenues for the first four months of fiscal '87 amounted to $112.7 million. Even though revenues were down from the $120 million recorded for the same period last year, due in part to lower prices paid for milk, net proceeds rose from $462,600 to $493,000.

New York Dairymen Donate Milk

NEW YORK, N.Y. — Six Oneida County dairy farmers donated 1,500 gallons of milk to give away in New York City. The giveaway was part of a two-day program coordinated with dairy farmers in Maine, Vermont, Wisconsin and Minnesota. Farmers are lobbying for the passage of the "Save the Family Farm Act." This bill, which has been introduced in Congress, would provide for parity pricing with supply management and a moratorium on foreclosures until the provisions of the bill have improved the farm economy.

The purpose of the giveaway was to draw attention to the issue of low farm prices. "We are here today, because our representatives have told us that the city voters are blocking progressive farm programs. We know this isn't true. We have had more support from your representatives than from ours. But we need more support. We are here today to extend a hand to the consumer — to ask for his and her help in turning agricultural programs around to benefit the economy," explained several dairy farmers, who made the trip to New York.

Congressman Ed Towns, D-Brooklyn, attended the news conference at the Greenmarket in Union Square Park to speak out in favor of improving farm programs, raising prices to farmers and saving family farms.

"Although I am an urban Congressman, I realize that we have a farming crisis in New York like in many other states," the Congressman said. "As farmers you are to be commended for your willingness to respond to the needs of the hungry and the poor even though you are hurting yourselves. No matter where we live, we can never forget that a healthy farm economy helps us all."

Three major points were stressed: strong farm legislation creates jobs — rural as well as urban — because agriculture and related industries are the largest industry in the nation; strong farm legislation benefits taxpayers, because when farmers make money there is no need for expensive farm programs; and strong farm legislation benefits consumers, because a healthy agriculture provides abundant food at reasonable prices.

The Food for Survival Foodbank assisted in the distribution of the milk. Representatives pointed out that giveaways are an inefficient way of getting food to people. "The most efficient way of feeding people is by creating jobs, thereby allowing them to buy food through normal channels. This ties in closely with the point dairy farmers are making. Putting people to work and paying fair wages and prices is the key to solving two major economic problems — the one faced by farmers and the one faced by the hungry."

The milk was donated by Cleveland Lansing, Brian Williams, Hobart Kraeger, Maynard Anken, Fred Anken and Richard Slaga.

Kulp-Dale Cow Tops Manheim Dairy Show

MANHEIM — Robert Kulp knew he had a good cow in his EX-91, 9 year old, but he never expected her to claim grand champion honors at the Manheim dairy show. Yet, this is where the Rocby Fawn Honor daughter stood at the conclusion of the Holstein show.

Judge Jed Beshore complimented her on being tremendously dairy with a well-attached udder. Robert, who operates Kulp-Dale farm with his two sons, Dennis and Dave, explained that they haven't shown at many shows. However, this year they thought they had something worthwhile. The results of the show proved their assesment to be accurate.

The champion who also captured best udder honors produced a best record of 24,914 milk and 927 fat. This show was the first test for the cow who keeps getting better with age. She originally classified at 76 points as a 2 year old and has since improved to her current classification, Dennis noted.

Kulps maintain a rolling herd average of 19,000 milk and 670 fat on 90 head as well as a 104 BAA at their Manheim farm.

An entry owned by Lowell Fry stood in the reserve grand champion position. His 5 year old classified VG-88 and is projected at 19,000 milk and 800 fat. Fry describes his champion as the "best looking cow in the barn." She is a homebred surprise, he said. While the Reliance daughter has a deep pedigree, her dam never classified higher than 76 points.

Junior champion honors went to the intermediate calf shown by Greg Harnish of Manheim. The son of Robert and Marty Harnish is the freshman president of the Manheim FFA chapter. In his first year of 4-H, he also captured junior showman honors of the show.

Grand champion Ayrshire honors went to the senior yearling owned by Angela Spickler of Mt. Joy. Earlier this year, the Donegal sophomore showed her champion to the junior champion position at the Southcentral District 4-H Show and placed second in the class at the state show.

Randy Fox showed the grand champion Jersey as also won the grand champion showman title. A member of the Cloister FFA, Randy learned his showmanship skills at his parents 80-acre dairy farm.

Longenecker Repeats Manheim Fair Beef Victory

BY JACK HUBLEY

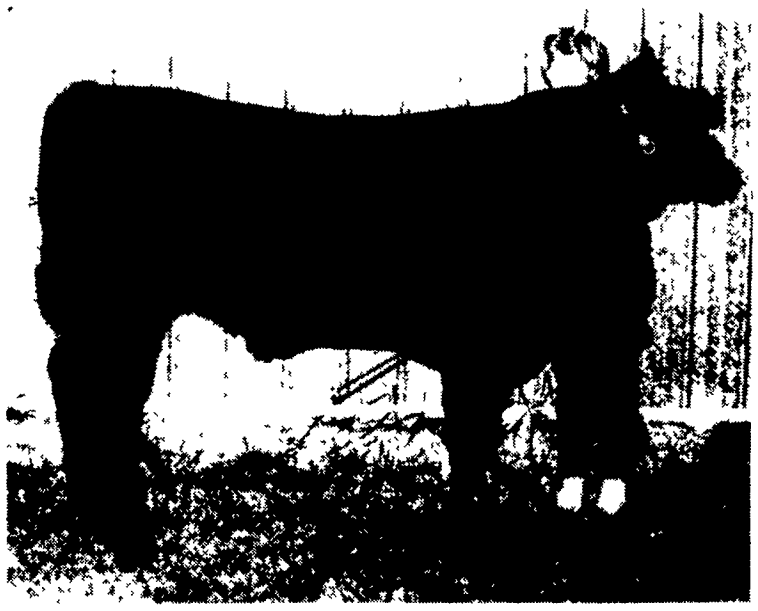
MANHEIM — Compared to the rest of the competition he was a youngster. He wasn't even descended from royalty. But Shasta was the pick of the Manheim Fair steer show litter, as far as judge Cliff Orley was concerned.

Orley, who owns the Lebanon-based Keystone Cattle Service, singled out a champion in each of the fair's FFA and 4-H competitions, before making the 4-H entry owned by Angie Longenecker his overall grand champion. This is the second year in a row that Angie, the daughter of Barry and Jackie Longenecker of Lititz, has taken top steer honors at Manheim.

Being a July calf made Angie's Angus-Chianina steer named Shasta one of the show's youngest entries. And unlike many fancy club calves these days, Shasta couldn't even boast a big-name sire in his pedigree. In fact, the steer's sire was a cleanup bull owned by Wayne Miller and his son Jeff, the Indiana cattlemen who bred and sold the calf.

Actually Miller's herd of Angus-based commercial cattle has been the source of a surprising number of winning steer show entries here in Pennsylvania. Abe Flory, of Lititz, began shopping for club calves at Miller's sale two years ago. Flory's niece, Kelly Rohrer, campaigned one of her uncle's purchases to grand champion honors at the State Farm Show in 1985, and Kelly wound up in the reserve spot at this year's Farm Show with yet another Miller calf.

To her own credit, Angie knows how to present her cattle to best advantage and demonstrated her talents by topping the intermediate division of Manheim's showmanship contest.



Angie Longenecker's steer named Shasta took top honors in Manheim's 4-H show before being named grand champion over both 4-H and FFA shows.

Shasta's next stop will be the county roundup, then, hopefully, on to Farm Show, says Angie.

Meanwhile, the Longeneckers, along with at least four other Lancaster County families, plan to attend Miller's sale later this month in quest of their 1987 showring prospects.

For his reserve overall champion, Orley went with a 1,153-pound entry appropriately named Champ by her owner, Rhonda Gibble, daughter of J. Robert and Ruth Ann Gibble of Manheim.

"I feel great," said the 17-year-old Manheim Central senior who chalked up her first grand champion title in four years of Manheim competition. Like Kristin Chupp, who won the New Holland Fair's steer show last week, Rhonda uses one of her two horses to get her show steers in shape. "When I was first breaking him I tied the rope around the saddle horn and let him walk along," says Gibble.

Gibble's brown calf was an Angus-Chianina-Charolais cross sired by a Chianina bull named Sugar Ray. And who bred Champ? Wayne Miller, of course.

The reserve champion FFA steer was shown by Leon Heisey, son of Miriam Heisey, Manheim. The 1,048-pound lightweight entry was a purebred Angus bred by Dr. Spencer Street of New London, Pa.

In the 4-H show, the reserve champion was another straight Angus calf shown by John Kettering, son of James and Jody Kettering of Manheim. the 1,210-pound steer was bred by Glenn Eberly of State College. Following are the placings for the steer show and showmanship classes.

Becker Shows Manheim Fair Champion Hog

MANHEIM — For the second consecutive year, 12-year-old Karen Becker of R3 Manheim claimed the championship trophy at the Manheim Fair hog show Monday.

Becker's 238-pound Hampshire cross caught the eye of judge Gary Dean, who placed her entry above Chad Folker's entry in the heavyweight and champion classes.

Becker, the daughter of Marlin and Nancy Becker, said she was surprised at the outcome of the show and was excited about winning. A seventh-grade student at Manheim Central Junior High School, Karen said her school friends have been very supportive of her at the fair and have stopped in to check on her entries.

Karen has a total of 15 hogs. The champion was one of six purchased from breeder Frank Feeser of Taneytown, Md.

With the money she earns from this year's hogs, Karen said she plans to buy pigs for the Farm Show and her first steer.

The reserve championship went to a 236-pound Hampshire Duroc cross owned by Chad Folker of New Holland. His champion was a littermate of the pigs he and his sister, Laura, have shown very successfully in other county fairs earlier this year. Chad and Laura have earned champion or reserve champion placings in most shows they have attended this year.

At the conclusion of the show, judge Gary Dean congratulated the youthful exhibitors on the quality of their entries.

Bollinger Lamb Tops Manheim 'Show Of Champions'

BY MARTHA GEHRINGER AND JACK HUBLEY

MANHEIM — The Elizabethtown Fair's show might have been bigger, but Thursday night's market lamb show at the Manheim Fair was truly the show of champions, as five of the county's seven market lamb champs competed for the fair's grand champion trophy.

"I thought it was impossible," said the show's eventual winner, Kevin Bollinger, of Lititz, who snatched the top title from defending champion Ellen Lewis in the final round.

Winning at Manheim is a feat that requires no small amount of staying power. Champions are named in both an open market lamb show, and also in a market show involving only those sheep to be sold at Manheim's junior livestock sale the following night. From these two sets of champions and reserves, the judge selects his top two sheep over both shows.

Bollinger, who lives in Lititz but attends Ephrata High School, won the heavyweight division of the open show with his 124-pound Suffolk wether. He then took the open show title before defeating Ellen Lewis' champion sale lamb for the overall grand championship.

The show's outcome was quite a surprise to the 18-year-old FFA'er, who thought his sale lamb, that had been named grand champion at the Denver Fair, was better than his open show entry that judge Bob Leib finally singled out as the evening's best market lamb.

The son of Walter and Betty Bollinger, Kevin raised only two lambs for the showring this year, and both have proven their ability to bring home the rosettes. Bollinger bought them from B&B Livestock of Ohio. He plans to enter his grand champion in the county roundup, and later, hopefully, in the state farm show.

At reserve in the overall show was the sale lamb champion shown by Ellen Lewis, 17, the daughter of George and Lorraine Lewis of Mount Joy. Lewis' homebred Hampshires are always among the county's top contenders, and her 126-pound sale lamb was no exception.

By evening's end the veteran sheep exhibitor's stall was awash in ribbons from her long list of victories. Lewis also showed the reserve champion in the open show, a homebred 122-pound lamb out of Betsy, her state farm show champion Hamp lamb in 1985. She also showed the champion pen of lambs and took the supreme and reserve supreme titles over all breeds in the breeding sheep show earlier in the evening.

Right behind Ellen Lewis in the sale lamb show was Jason Stoltzfus of Elizabethtown, who took the reserve title with his 123-pound Suffolk-cross wether.

The son of Frank and Irene Stoltzfus, Jason bought his lamb from John Conaway at the Bankert sale in York County. This was the nine-year-old 4-H'er's first year of sheep show competition.

Ellen Lewis won grand champion Hampshire and supreme breeding ewe honors of the Manheim Farm Show with her yearling ewe.

Kevin Bollinger (right) had grand champion market lamb at Manheim Fair and Ellen Lewis had reserve.

Breeding Sheep

Supreme champion honors of the breeding sheep show went to the Hampshire ewe owned by Ellen Lewis of Landisville. The yearling ewe also claimed grand champion honors of the Hampshire breed.

The Hempfield High School senior purchased her ewe at the Midwest Stud Ram Sale. Although this is the first time the ewe has been tested at a county youth show, the champion placed fifth in her class earlier this week at the Keystone International Livestock Exposition.

Because she placed well in large open shows, Friday's victory came as no great surprise for the daughter of George and Lorraine Lewis.

The reserve supreme champion title went to a Ellen's reserve champion Hampshire, a ewe lamb. The reserve champion claimed supreme honors at the Lancaster County 4-H Roundup, Ellen said. This champion is out of champion stock. The mother of the reserve ewe stood in the champion position of the Hampshire Junior Show at the Farm Show in Harrisburg this past year, Ellen noted.

Other breed champions include: Arlisa Snavely, grand and reserve grand Shropshire; Mark Tracy, grand and reserve grand Southdown; and Carey Donches, grand and reserve grand Suffolk.

Bob Leib, a Mechanicsburg sheep breeder, judged the show.

Results of the show follow.

which was also the senior champion heifer, and won the coveted premier exhibitor and premier breeder awards. The exhibitor also had the reserve junior champion bull, "GK Autograph T97," and champion bull calf, "TRS Challenger." The reserve champion heifer calf, "Dunwalke Regina 2U," also was one of the farm's entries.

The grand champion bull was shown by Spring Bottom Farm, Oak Hill Farm and Greenbrier Farm of Fairfield, Adams County, Pennsylvania. Their winning entry, "SBF Royal Gypsy King," also took honors as junior champion bull. Spring Bottom Farm also had the reserve junior champion heifer, "SBF Royal Jewel."

Other Pennsylvanians who spent a great deal of time collecting ribbons were Keith and Linda Rooker of Uniontown, Fayette County. The Rookers showed the junior champion heifer, "PRS Drivers Lady; reserve senior and grand champion heifer, "PR Miss Prophette 505; reserve champion bull calf, "KLR Margin of Prophet."

Other winners were: Rolling Shade Polled Herefords of East Greenville, Montgomery County, PA, reserve grand champion bull, "ASB Mr. Goodbar 364," which also was senior champion bull; and Oakencroft Farm & Sherridge Farm of Charlottesville, Virginia, reserve senior champion bull, "Sherridge Builder," and champion heifer calf, "Of Mistress 119N."

Charolais

The names of Fisher, Smith and Sherman surfaced repeatedly as winning exhibitors in the Charolais open breeding cattle competition at the 30th Keystone International Livestock Exposition at the Farm Show Complex in Harrisburg.

James A. and Richard L. Smith of Lore City, Ohio, showed the grand champion and senior champion bull, "RCC Royal Squire," winner of reserve champion bull honors in the 29th KILE. The Smiths also grabbed glory with the award of premier exhibitor, and had the reserve intermediate champion female in "SCF Millicent," and calf champ bull, "Mr. SCF."

The Smiths in 1985 were the premier breeder, but that honor this year went to Kent Fisher of Oley, Berks County, Pennsylvania. Fisher also collected ribbons with the reserve grand champion bull, "HVF Continental," which also was declared intermediate champion bull. Another Fisher, Kirk, also of Oley, achieved success as well with "HVF Miss High Lite," winner of reserve grand champion female and reserve senior champion female, as well as intermediate champion female.

Another Pennsylvanian collected honors for herself and her home state. Amy Sherman of Abbottstown, Adams County, won grand champion female, senior champion female and junior champion female with "ALS Silver Gina." Travis Sherman, also of Abbottstown, had reserve junior champion in "SS Silver Heather."

Pete Sweeney of East Lansing, Michigan, was the judge.

Shorthorn

Exhibitors from Pennsylvania and Maryland split grand champion honors in Shorthorn and Polled Shorthorn breeding cattle competition at the 30th Keystone International Livestock Exposition at the Farm Show Complex in Harrisburg.

The grand champion bull, "Woodside Dividend," was shown by Woodside Farms of Waynesburg, Greene County, Pennsylvania. The grand champion female, "Spruce Hill Joan ET," was the entry of Duane and Mary Harper of Woodbine, Maryland. The same entries also were junior champions.

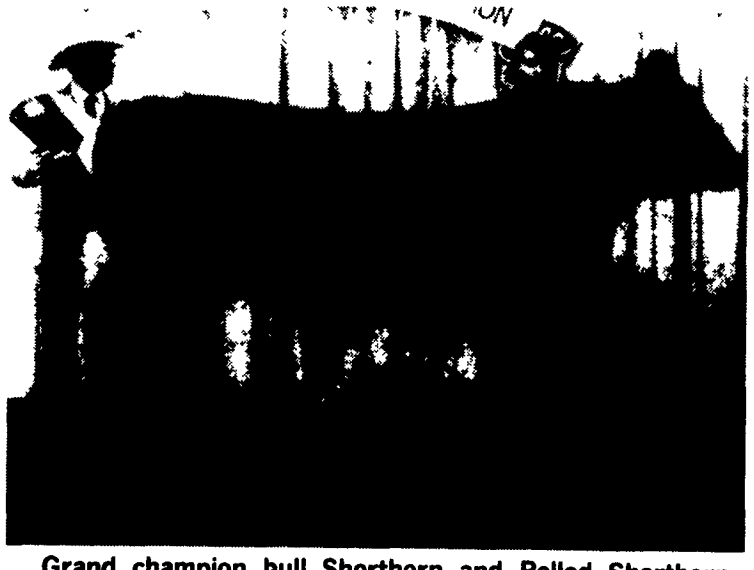
The reserve grand champion female was "7-B Pro Melissa," shown by David Bowman of West Friendship, Maryland. Bowman also walked away with the title of premier exhibitor. His entry also was winer as calf champion female.

Hollis Smith of East Dixfield, Maine, was declared the premier breeder of the show. He showed the senior champion female, "Sangamon Michelle," and the reserve calf champion female, "HS Dusless Darcy."

Calf champion bull, "Woodside Irish Jim," was another entry from Woodside Farms.

Judge for the October 3 competition, which featured exhibitors from five states, was Pete Sweeney of East Lansing, Michigan. Placings are as follows:

Grand champion female Shorthorn and Polled Shorthorn, Pete Sweeney, judge, Mary & Duane Harper.



Grand champion bull Shorthorn and Polled Shorthorn, Judge Sweeney and Corky Johnston for Woodside Farm.

A DISEASE ON THE MOVE!

GRAY LEAF SPOT

The fungus Cercospora zeae-maydis, causes gray leaf spot. Although gray leaf spot has generally been associated with corn production in west-centeral and southwestern districts of our region, it continues to move north and east. Last year the disease got a lot of attention in Maryland. Now the disease has been confirmed in western Lancaster and central Berks counties. The increase in severity and distribution of this disease is associated with no-till or reduced tillage systems in continuous corn production. The pathogen survives from one season to the next within infected corn debris remaining on the soil surface. The more infected residue present the greater the disease loss potential.

SYMPTOMS: The lesions produced by the pathogen are characteristically gray to tan, long, narrow and sharply rectangular. The lesions generally develop first on the lower leaves and progress up the plant with time. Extensive leaf blighting may occur as the lesions coalesce. Prolonged periods of warm temperatures with high relative humidity and periods of dew or free water on the leaf surfaces favor disease development. Considerable leaf killing may result in significant loss of leaf tissue and induce stalk breakage and lodging. Stalks in infected fields have already begun to rot. If you have noticed what appears to be premature plant death in your corn, check fields for soft stalks. Plan to harvest early to minimize loss from lodging.

How can the disease be controlled? The reduction of corn debris by tillage and crop rotation aid in the reduction of initial inoculum during the crop season and may reduce the incidence and severity of gray leaf spot. Hybrids which have greater resistance or tolerance to the disease can be used in areas where the disease is severe. DK689 and DK789 are two resistant varieties in our line-up. Since the disease usually attacks corn plants in late August, planting some early maturing hybrids may offer another alternative.

Adams County Dairy Club Celebrates Its 40th Year

BY GINGER SECRIST MYERS
Adams Co. Correspondent

GETTYSBURG — The Adams County 4-H Dairy Calf Club will celebrate its 40th Anniversary this year in conjunction with the Club's 22nd Annual Banquet to be held Saturday evening, October 25, at the Heidlersburg Fairhall.

Reviewing the Annual Narrative Reports of the Agricultural Extension Work in Adams County and reminiscing with former members, leaders, and parents reveals that the program has successfully fulfilled its initial goal stated in the 1945 County Report: "A meeting was called May 4 in an endeavor to organize the first 4-H dairy calf club in the county. They felt a calf club would not only be of value to the 4-H Club members, but also would eventually improve the dairy situation in the county as a whole."

Thomas Murren, Hanover, remembers well the origins of the Club having served as its first secretary and as a leader of the dairy club for the past 38 years. His original secretary's book has its first entry dated December 6, 1946. The meeting was held at the home of Edgar Weaner and the agenda included the election of officers for 1947. The first club officers were: President, Richard Weaner; Vice-President, Roy Weaner; Secretary-Treasurer, Thomas Murren and Game Leader, Mary Ann Stoner.

The club's original membership also included: Dale Reinecker, Bill Griffie, Marlin Chronister, Thelma Griffie, Doris King, Robert King, Patsy Ann Lemmon, Kenneth Nace, Stanley Reinecker, Edwin Spicer and Dean Nace. The club's first leader was Murren's uncle, Simon Murren.

Although the club was organized on a county-wide basis, only two of the members qualified to show their yearlings in 1946 at what was then the Southeast District Show held in Lititz due to health limitations on the cattle. Murren recalls, and the extension records confirm, that in the early years of the club there was very little showing due to the problem of Bangs disease in the county.

The 1947 narrative reports reads: "Our 4-H Dairy Club ... does not have any round-up or show since about half of the herds in which the heifers are kept are not Bangs tested. We do feel that members and their parents would take a more active interest if we had some event where all animals could be shown."

In 1948 the club disbanded, but strong parental support for the work done with the children called for its revival the following year. The club was re-organized with 22 members, 18 of them had Holsteins and four had purebred Brown Swiss calves. Still, only three members had projects in accredited herds, but county-wide Bangs testing had begun.

The club's annual program included three days spent touring the farms and viewing each others projects. This served as a substitute for a county show. In 1956 nine of the members exhibited 20 head at the county fairs and the district show which by this time had been moved to the Reading Fairgrounds. The club held its first round-up in 1958 at the South Mountain Fairgrounds.

Paul Whiteford and Tony Murren were named showmen winners of the 1967 Adams County Dairy Roundup. This year marks the 40th anniversary of the beginning of the club.

By this time membership in the club had grown to over 50 members and Tom Murren had been joined by Joe McWreath as a club leader in 1952. In 1960 Melvin Durbarow became a leader and is still with the club today. Other current leaders include Tim Brown and Alan Zepp, both former members of the club.

Since the members couldn't have a showing round-up in the early years of the club, their program was heavily weighed with topics such as care and feeding of their calves, milking demonstrations, how to keep production records, and how to make and cure hay. Prior to the Extension Service moving its offices from the County Courthouse to its present location on the Chambersburg Road, the club held its meetings in the county courtroom. Murren recalls making rope halters and judging the Hoard's Dairyman Judging Contest in front of the judge's bench.

Both Murren and Durbarow feel the present day program still

Knight Tackles Dairy Superintendent Position At Del Val

DOYLESTOWN — Paul Knight became a member of the Ag Team at Delaware Valley College. Specifically, he assumed the position of superintendent of the dairy herd at the college.

Paul started his new career this summer in response to a help wanted ad. Previously he worked at his family's farm, Woodbine Holsteins in Airville. He decided to leave the farm "to see if I could stand on my own." Yet, he wanted to continue working with cows. Delaware Valley College gave him that opportunity, Knight explained.

At Del Val he has "the opportunity to observe myself as an individual, not as part of a family operation." The son of Priscilla and the late George Knight, Paul returns home to help at every opportunity.

Milking is one of Paul's many duties as superintendent of the dairy at Delaware Valley College. Here he milks DVC Albi Polka, who produced a top record of 22,628 pounds of milk and 895 pounds of fat as a 9 year old.

Since beginning his tenure on the Ag Team at Del Val, Paul has witnessed the steady rise of the college's rolling herd average to its present 20,500 pounds of milk. The average started its climb under his predecessor, Dr. James Harner. This spring Harner accepted the position of superintendent of research farms at Rutgers University in New Jersey.

The college operates three facets of their ag program, dairy, livestock and general ag, under the general organization entitled the Ag Team. In the dairy division, Paul consults with Larry Morris, Jerry Myers and Larry Hepner, general manager of farm operations.

Paul works with Morris on the nutritional program of the herd. He refuses credit for the rising herd average, attributing the increase to Morris' feeding program and the general ag division for harvesting the feed at the optimum nutritional value.

He does accept the credit for the improvement in the calves. He adjusted the calves' ration to include grain, hay and a TMR ration. Before, the calves' diet was limited to a TMR ration. "They didn't have the capacity to eat enough roughage to grow properly," he said.

Jerry Myers works with Paul on the breeding program as well as the collegiate judging team. "I try to keep dairy judging in mind when talking to the kids. Showing and judging kept me interested; it gave me something to get excited about," the former 4-H and FFAer notes. He plans to develop a youth judging contest with a hefty incentive to be sponsored by the college.

Paul's experiences with judging contests include a successful collegiate campaign. The 1982 graduate of Penn State won the All-American judging contest as a senior. The same year, the Penn State team took the top place in the All-American and the Eastern States contests.

Paul explains an item in the daily milk records to students Ann Luno (front) and Ed Ashton.

At Delaware Valley, he handles a variety of jobs during a day. Starting with the morning milking, continuing with barn cleaning and fence fixing and concluding with a regular check of the cows at night.

The variety and long hours don't bother Paul who explains, "If you want to succeed, you have to put the hours in, no matter what you want to do." Paul hopes the students following his lead and work hard to improve conditions at the college and for themselves.

"I want them to learn I'll be here all the time for their disposal. I would do anything for them," Paul said. At the same time, he expects them to complete jobs to his satisfaction.

The students have responded well to Paul, according to Dr. John Plummer, associate dean of agriculture. "Paul relates well to the students and while he is demanding, he gets results. Paul is an integral part of the dairy program," Plummer said.

One project which Paul has been working on is the recently announced internship program. The program is open to a student at the college after freshman year. The selected student will be required to work a 40 hour week. Payment for the work will be a salary plus room, board and tuition. With proper time management, the student should be able to complete the degree program in a four-year period, reported William Craver, emphasizes those same basic areas in dairy herd management that it did in the early years. However, Murren finds that today's members are more independent and have a greater variety of dairy programs to choose from to supplement their project work, such as Dairy Bowl competition and the Junior Leader program.

Durbarow is emphatic that there are still a lot of good kids around today and that 4-H has a place in their priorities. He states, "People might complain that the kids are going to the bad today, but I think we have a lot of good kids in our club. Kids today have so many activities pulling at them. 4-H may have been the cornerstone of off-the-farm activities for farm kids in the 40s and 50s, but now the kids have more alternatives. Still kids find something positive about 4-H and its good we can keep them involved."

Planning for the 40th Anniversary of the club started back in January. The club has been enthusiastic about collecting alumni names and addresses, selecting a program, and collecting memorabilia for the event. Banquet Committee Co-Chairmen Kathy and Christine Todt, along with committee members Janet Ludwig, Lisa Schultz, Kathy Reever, Jenny Weimer, Stacy Harlow and Jayne Hess, have sent out over 150 invitations to the banquet to past and present members and leaders of the Dairy Club.

In projecting what the next 40 years might hold in store for the Adams County 4-H Dairy Calf Club, Tom Murren said, "We'll see a lot of changes in the dairy industry, but I won't want to say what they'll be for sure. I am sure that our challenge will still be to teach young people to keep up with those changes. We'll need to still teach them how to get along with other people and how to express themselves. There's still going to be something good to be learned in 4-H."

New Kid On The Team

director of placement.

This program follows Del Val's hands-on philosophy which Paul finds appealing. The students learn by trying different management and physical tools, then observing the results, Paul explained.

His goals for the college include keeping the rolling herd average climbing until the college regains the top spot on the Bucks County DHIA. Presently the Holstein herd averages 20,500 pounds of milk. He would like to realize a 23,000 average on the Holsteins, 17,000 on the Brown Swiss herd and 16,000 on the Ayrshire herd.

Eventually Paul would like to own a herd of Holsteins and accomplish similar results as his father, the late George Knight. "It's a tremendous goal," he explained in reference to his fathers achievements.

George Knight developed Northcroft Ella Elevation, the highest milk cow, as well as breeding Molly, the first 97 point cow in Pennsylania. Knight also had the distinction of being the farmer who owned the most Ivanhoe daughters at one time.

Paul, who showed Ella as a 4 year old, describes her as "the epitome of a milk cow. She had an non-dying appetite; we just kept shoveling it in."

College students who have worked with Paul, label him fair and consistent. Observing their reaction to him in addition to the praise by his superiors, Paul appears to have made the Ag Team.

USDA Buyout Report

WASHINGTON, D.C. — An estimated 12,600 head of dairy cattle were slaughtered in federally inspected plants during the week ending Sept. 20, as a result of the Dairy Termination Program, the U.S Department of Agriculture announced Wednesday.

This total includes all cows, heifers and calves identified as dairy animals designated for disposition in compliance with the program requirements.

The cumulative total of cattle slaughtered under the program from April 1 through Sept. 20 is an estimated 776,000 head.

The purchases of meat in addition to normal purchases are to help offset the effects of the DTP on the domestic meat market. For the two-week period ending Oct. 4, the government purchased 306,000 pounds of meat. The cumulative purchases, reported bi-weekly as of Oct. 4, total 297.3 million pounds.

Dairy cattle reported for export under the program for the period April 1 to Oct. 4 totaled an estimated 36,355 head. An estimated 1,244 were exported during the week ending Oct. 4.

Live cattle exported under the program are expected to increase as countries develop tenders to participate in the export enhancement program.

Feeding The World, Malthus In Reverse

Thomas Malthus might have had a good idea back in 1798 when he published his famous theory of population growth. "Population tends to increase faster than the supply of goods necessary for existence," he said. It seemed to work for England and most of the known world of that time, and still applies to some parts of the world like China and India and Ethiopia even today. But Malthus didn't know anything about plant and animal genetics, or chemical fertilizers.

The American Continent was still largely an unknown quantity, and the American farmer was still cutting his milk teeth. I wonder what he would think if he were reincarnated today, in Lancaster County?

A few years back, when all the political stops were pulled out and we were going to feed the hungry world, the Malthusian Theory was something to be laughed at. When the price is right, food supplies can be increased, industry can be financed, and prosperity will continue on a fast roll.

The problem is, we Americans, who were the inspiration for the whole world in producing all kinds and abundance of goods, forgot that others also wanted to get in on the gravy. They found that they could borrow our technology, and also the money to make it work for them. It only took a few years to literally flood the world with food and all kinds of consumer goodies.

There are always two or three suppliers for every consumer. So prices plummet well below the cost of production. The Third world that borrowed our technology and the money to finance it is now selling instead of buying, while those that still can't produce food can't afford to pay for it either.

For the past 50 years Congress has tried repeatedly to control farm surpluses. How? By limiting acreages, (Soil bank, Conservation reserve, PIK, allottments). By slaughtering pigs in the 1930s. By the Dairy Opportunity program. By setting quotas, and by the whole herd buyout.

Not one of them ever worked. Why? Smart farmers put the rock pile in the soil bank, fertilized the better fields liberally, slaughtered the culls and fed and bred the best better, bought and farmed the same land that their neighbors had been paid to abandon. With the result that farm production INCREASED! We keep repeating the same mistakes because it is politically expedient.

Since food is a world business, not just ours, it is very hard if not downright impossible to control our USA production and maintain satisfactory prices. All the other competing countries like Germany, Australia, Brazil and Argentina are trying to protect theirs also. We play by our rules and they play by theirs, making it a lopsided game. We cut back while they fill in the gaps.

None of this is really new. It has been going on for a long time. It may continue, in a cycle of up's and down's, for years to come.

The answers to the present farm crisis will continue to be a band aid application by Congressional action, transfusions of money in the form of loans or subsidies, occasional tragedies like weather, war, or other woes that affect some part of the world. Meanwhile, some farmers will prosper while others quit the farm for some other line of work. Maybe it's time to inject some of our great farm tradition of hard work and honest dealing into the rest of the economy anyway.

Thomas Malthus might reverse his theory if he were alive today. It might read, "The food supply tends to increase faster than the population of the world can eat it." Of course, you and I know that it's more a problem of distribution than total production. And the whole thing is complicated further by the question raised by The Little Red Hen, "Who will eat the loaf that I baked?" Or who will pay me an honest price for what I produce?

Seven Producers Appointed to Milk Board

HARRISBURG – Pennsylvania Secretary of Agriculture Richard E. Grubb has announced the appointment of seven dairymen to three-year terms on the Advisory Board of the Pennsylvania Dairy Promotion Program. New members are David Bird, Catawissa, Montour County; Glenn Houck, Spruce Creek, Huntingdon County; and James Turner, Pittsburgh, Allegheny County.

Their terms start with the October 16 annual meeting of the 21-member board, which sets policy and oversees a $2 million annual advertising, promotion and research budget. All are milk producers who contribute to the state program.

Reappointed for a second term were Janice Burkholder, Chambersburg, Franklin County; Paul Corbin, Reynoldsville, Jefferson County; Albert Hack, Berwick, Columbia County; and Richard M. Shellenberger, Manheim, Lancaster County.

The seven appointees were selected from nominations made by milk producers or by organizations representing dairymen, the secretary explained.

The state dairy promotion program was established as part of a national initiative to increase milk advertising, research, and consumption.

"The Pennsylvania Dairy Promotion Program fills the gaps between the regional and national programs, especially with statewide and local milk promotions," Grubb said.

Reich, Honan Honored At PAFC Banquet

BY SALLY BAIR
Lancaster Co. Correspondent

HARRISBURG — October is Cooperative Enterprise Month, and the official start of the recognition of the importance of Pennsylvania's farmer cooperatives was Wednesday, with Secretary of Agriculture Richard Grubb reading the proclamation.

The occasion was the annual meeting of the Pennsylania Association of Farmer Cooperatives and Grubb acknowledged the contributions cooperatives make to the state's economy.

Retiring PAFC president Bob Reich, president of the Northeastern Farm Credit Services in Lewisburg, was given the prestigious PAFC Distinguished Service Award and Dr. James E. Honan, former general manager of Inter-State Milk Producers' Cooperative, was given the annual Master Educators Award.

Reich has served on the PAFC Board of Directors for 12 years, and has been active in developing "The Plan for the 80s." In presenting the award, it was noted that Reich's "dedication to the cooperative movement and to the necessity for training and retaining capable staff and cooperative owners has permeated his tenure with the organization."

Reich joined Farm Credit as a loan officer in 1967, having begun his career in lending with the Lewisburg National Bank. He is a director of the Susquehanna Valley Chamber of Commerce and serves on its legislative committee. In his present capacity he is responsible for credit activities in 12 northeastern Pennsylvania counties.

Honan, who is presently agricultural economics assistant professor at Cook College, Rutgers, was recognized for his career commitment to cooperative education. Although he retired from Inter-State in 1983, he remains a principle party in the faculty and planning for the Pennsylvania Cooperative Director School, a joint venture between the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture, Penn State University and PAFC.

In presenting the award, Reich

"I Had An Embarrassing Problem"

"It was something I didn't even want to talk about. But now that the problem is solved, I'll tell you. It was a terrible case of raw, cracked teats and udder. You can imagine how that made me feel, especially since I had been number one in the herd. I was miserable!

"Then the dairyman—bless his heart—introduced me with Udder Butter.™ You know, that soothing, long-lasting ointment from the folks at Corona. Soon my teats and udder were smooth, moist and comfortable again. That's because Udder Butter is the ointment that combines an effective antiseptic with lanolin and other fine lubricants.

"Udder Butter fights the growth of bacteria, too, and it's great for sore and windburned muzzle, eyes, wounds and abrasions on all animals. Now I put my cows to bed with Udder Butter, so my teats and udder stay smooth and healthy.

"Before, I thought all teat and udder ointments were basically the same. I also used to suffer in milking time. But not Udder Butter. Though it is self-emulsifying formula, it washes right off with warm soapy water. And it has a refreshing vanilla aroma, so it's pleasant to use.

"Now I'm telling all my sisters to ask their dairyman to get Udder Butter. Whether it's the 7 ounce tube, the 24 ounce tub or the 7 pound pail, as long as it's Udder Butter, it's a container of contentment!"

called Honan the "father of the Pennsylvania Director School."

In his teaching at Cook College, Honan focuses on the cooperative business system.

In a special presentation, Walter Loy was recognized for his work with the PAFC youth program. Loy has been instrumental in carrying out the PAFC Summer Institute, which each summer seeks to educate high school youngsters with a good look at the free enterprise system, and the role that cooperatives play.

Well-known cooperative leader George Steele, former president of Agway, was presented the Cooperative Statesman Award. Given by David Thomas, president of the American Institute of Cooperative, the award was presented in Washington on Oct. 1 at the national kick-off of Cooperative Month.

In his annual report, Reich challenged the 40 member cooperatives of PAFC to begin now to plan for the 90s. He said, "Co-ops have never before faced as many challenges. There are changes which will not go away, and we must move ahead to meet the challenges."

He stressed that a high level of priority must be given to education efforts, and he urged each member cooperative to name one responsible person to work closely with PAFC. Reich mentioned that a recommendation had been made in April to put more emphasis on education and less on legislative services, and curtail other activities because of the downturn in the agricultural economy.

Now, the PAFC Board is recommending the continuation of an executive secretary, and expanded activities, including expanded educational goals. They are also recommending that retired individuals be utilized as volunteers for some programs.

Executive Secretary Kathy Gill said that some changes will be made to meet the changes in agriculture. She said they will investigate joint ventures with neighboring states' co-op councils and explore other kinds of educational opportunities. She noted that they will assess the changing needs of cooperative members and change programs to fill those needs. It is also hoped that there will be more face-to-face meetings with members.

Milk Marketing Meeting Set

FLEMINGTON, N.J. — An information meeting for dairymen in the northwest Jersey counties is scheduled for Thursday, October 16, 8:00 p.m., in the Tranquillity Community House, Allamuchy.

Subject of the meeting will be the proposed Regional Cooperative Milk Marketing Agency in the Northeast, reports August Knispel, Franklin Township dairyman and president of the Garden State Milk Council, sponsor for the meeting.

Arthur Little, executive director of RCMA, will be the speaker. He has been employed as an economist in the dairy industry for 30 years.

Knispel urges all dairymen to attend this most important meeting. The dairy industry is experiencing serious economic problems, he says. Dairymen must explore all available avenues in order to strengthen the industry and preserve the dairy farm.

FLO-STAR™ claw

Bou-Matic®'s Flo-Star™ milking claw improves milk flow for:

- Better cow health
- Faster milk throughput, and
- Better milk quality.

Bou-Matic engineers designed the Flo-Star claw so milk flows smoothly and quickly out the bottom.

Less agitation equals less chance of milk "mist" carrying bacteria among teats. So the Flo-Star claw can mean less mastitis spread at milking.

Prove it to yourself by calling your Bou-Matic dealer for a free, on-farm demonstration.

Dairy Of Distinction Advances

the spring of 1987. The local committees will promote the program and provide the judges in the districts.

This awards program is based on the concept that attractive farmsteads will enhance consumer confidence in the wholesomeness of milk and will stimulate milk sales and encourage public support for the dairy industry. All active dairy farms are eligible to apply for the dairy of distinction award. Farm judging takes place in the month of May and is based on roadside appearance of buildings, grounds and surroundings.

Winning farms receive a colorful aluminum 18x24" Dairy of Distinction sign to be placed on the farmstead near the roadside so passers-by can recognize the farm as a Dairy of Distinction. A limited number of farms are recognized each year in each district. And winning farms will be judged every year to insure that they maintain the excellent standards required for the award.

The directors set the goal to have the local committees in place by the middle of November.

Berks Group Challenged To Continue Supporting 4-H

BY ROBIN PHILLIPS

LEESPORT — "Let's give a helping hand. Let's support our 4-H clubs," urged George Moyer, president of the Berks County Extension Association board of directors, after he opened the 72nd annual meeting of the Berks County association. Held at the Berks 4-H Community Center, Leesport, on Monday evening, the program featured speakers and leaders outlining the non-traditional 4-H programs and highlighted the entire 4-H effort in the county.

"4-H is an opportunity for parents and other adults to provide this youth development experience. If a community is not willing... then there won't be a 4-H program," stated Dr. Alan Snider, state 4-H program leader, as he echoed the sentiments of Moyer. Snider was the featured speaker for the evening. He has been a 4-H youth specialist for 11 years, having previously served as a county agent in Michigan for 10 years.

Impressed with the 4-H building that the community built in which the meeting was held, Snider added that his future goals are to strengthen the extension 4-H program throughout Pennsylvania. He cited the need to strengthen the curriculum development at the club-community level to include more variety and make a stronger local club. "We need to adapt to the change of the kids," he stated. He also cited the goal of strengthening the partnership between the salaried staff and the volunteer staff of 4-H.

"One of our challenges is to provide program excellence with reduced funding. We must look at what realistically can be done," Snider cautioned.

As he concluded his presentation, the group was again encouraged to continue their support of a program that can provide a wide range of youth with a wide range of positive experiences working with other youth and adults.

Mae Hostetter, regional 4-H program leader, was on hand to discuss the different aspects of non-traditional 4-H.

"We're presently reaching less than five percent of the youth potential," Hostetter began. She added that we need to deal with broad problems, develop contact with new audiences, and provide a variety of interest for a positive out-of-school experience. "The main thing is that youth are involved in a positive learning experience and having fun while they are doing it," she concluded.

The mistress of ceremonies for the evening was the state winning 4-H speaker, Marianne Yanos, a member of the Berks County Sheep and Lamb Club and in 4-H public speaking for many years. She told the audience what 4-H has done for and m eans to her. After her presentation, she introduced several other leaders to speak about their projects.

The Hamburg center 4-H program is supervised by Marie Hoffmaster manager of the vocational adjustment service at the center and a nurse for over 13 years. She is in charge of the horticultural program and teaches about growing plants to the center.

Her students are all over 21 years of age and have disabilities ranging from sensory problems to being wheelchair bound. Her students also receive some payment for the work they produce. "Money is a very positive reinforcement," Hoffmaster stated.

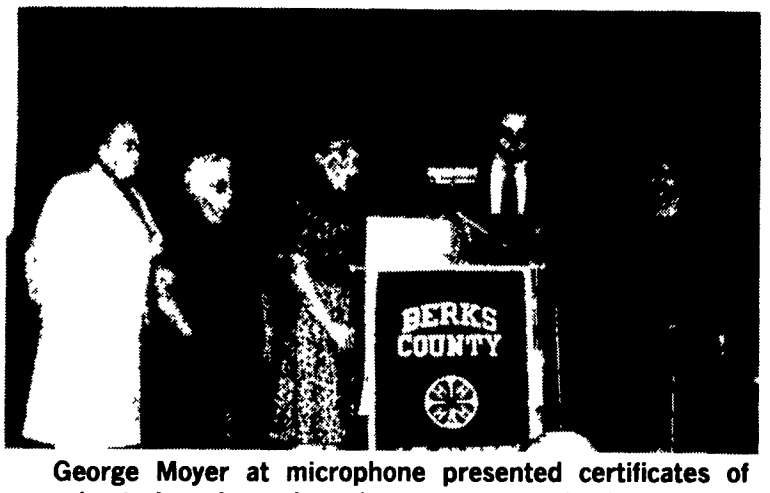
The enlightening and educational benefits of the 4-H embryology program in the classroom was presented by Ellen Gallagher, a teacher for over 17 years who just went through here first year in the program. "It's the most successful unit I ever taught," she began her discussion enthusiastically. After explaining how the school board, faculty and parents, as well as the students enjoyed the incubating and hatching of chickens from eggs, Gallagher stated she is looking forward to repeating the lessons again.

"I think it's really marvelous when people in the community share their expertise with those of us in the classroom," Gallagher concluded about the embryology program.

Rick Kauffman, Berks County agent and 4-H coordinator, spoke briefly about the 4-H program. He also introduced a new program initiated by Michele Rodgers. Entitled Generation Celebration the new program is an intergenerational 4-H project.

Generation Celebration is designed to help persons of all ages strengthen intergenerational ideas. It promotes relationships between generations, helps youth develop greater sensitivity to the needs of others; helps youth gain self-esteem while working with older adults; helps youth value the experience and perspective of the older generation helping elders maintain their own self-esteem; and helps to teach a greater understanding of the full-cycle of life.

Leader training for this project will begin in January. Kauffman stated that they are striving to reach 400 youth and 14 volunteers. "We want to increase communications... not only among families and friends but among generations," Kauffman concluded.



George Moyer at microphone presented certificates of service to board members for many years of volunteer service. The recipients included: Helen Readinger, left, with nine years; Audrey Schoenly with five years; Millie Shirey with eight years; and Dorothy Stricker with six years.

Tobacco Auction

cigarette tobacco marketed averaged $1.15 a pound, and the remaining Pennsylvania-type tobacco averaged 52 cents.

Now that the auction system is off the ground, it's inevitable that others will want a piece of the action. According to PTA's former manager, Eric Probst, that's exactly what's taking place.

Recently Probst announced that at least two, and possibly a third, tobacco auction house will be selling this year's crop. The original company, Pennsylvania Tobacco Auction, Inc., will continue to operate at its present location, Martin Auctioneers, in Intercourse. A second facility, Paradise Tobacco Sales, is currently under construction on Meadow Lane in Paradise. Garden Spot Tobacco Auction is a third company that began construction of an auction barn on Thursday, located at the intersection of Reidenbach Road and Route 322 in Hinkletown.

PTA will also be buying tobacco in Quarryville if a zoning variance can be obtained to convert a chickenhouse into an auction barn.

Probst said that the new companies are the result of a split between the original eight PTA investors.

He also announced the formation of an organization he called the Tobacco Trading Unit. "We've formed a tobacco trading group that will have representation from each warehouse," he said. The unit's job will be to standardize the business of auctioning tobacco by setting the terms of payment, delivery and buying schedules and commission rates. The unit would schedule sales so that no two houses were operating on the same days, he said.

"We expected some kind of expansion and I'm happy with the way things went," said Probst, pointing out that, in order to attract more "buyer power," greater sales volume would be necessary.

"The increased square footage will allow more volume to be handled when the farmers and the crop are ready," Probst continued. "It's good for the farmer."

Probst, who no longer works for PTA, and expects to serve as spokesman for the Tobacco Trading Unit, said that all tobacco auction facilities will be equipped with skylights for the coming buying season. "Buyers feel more at ease buying in natural light," he said, pointing out that color and quality can be more accurately determined under natural light conditions. .

"It should be an interesting market this year," he said. "Overall, the crop looks tremendous, and the curing weather has been good."

Probst said that tobacco auction owners plan to schedule meetings throughout the county to explain the new buying system to farmers. As of presstime no meeting dates had been set.

Livestock Association

Animal Husbandry program, Krall is currently farm manager of Willow Brook Farms, a 1,200-acre estate in Catasauqua. Willow Brook is the largest breeder of Quarter Horses on the East Coast.

"He's the kind of a guy who does things behind the scenes," said PLA board member Henry Gruber, who made the presentation. Krall has been an active supporter of the 4-H program, serving as auctioneer and soliciting buyers for youth beef and lamb sales in the Allentown and Harrisburg areas.

Krall also serves as chairman of the Lehigh Valley Chamber of Commerce Agriculture Committee. He has been a PLA member since 1960.

The banquet, held at the Harrisburg Sheraton, also gave the association the opportunity to showcase up-and-coming leaders in the livestock industry through its outstanding youth awards program.

One of two honorees in the Outstanding FFA Youth category was Fritz Frey, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Frey of Quarryville. Frey was a 1984 recipient of the Keystone Farmer Degree and was also named Eastern Regional Star Farmer during the same year. Last year he earned a second-place gold medal at the national level in the FFA's Beef Production Proficiency program.

Since his graduation from Solanco High School last year, Frey has been in charge of the show cattle at Twin Oaks Farms, the family's beef operation.

Named the association's Outstanding FFA Girl was Kim Hopple, daughter of Terry and Peggy Hopple of Mechanicsburg. A senior at Cumberland Valley High School, Hopple is president of the Cumberland, Dauphin and Perry Area FFA. A regular exhibitor at many local and state fairs, she showed the national junior champion Corriedale ram at last year's Eastern States Expo in Massachusetts. Hopple recently placed second in individual competition in the Virginia State Fair's livestock judging contest.

In the 4-H category, Lee Ann Kimmel, 17, was named Outstanding 4-H Girl. The daughter of Robert and Doris Kimmel of Home, Pa., she is a member and has held numerous offices in the Dayton 4-H Livestock and Dairy Clubs. A senior, she plans to attend a technical school and major in livestock production. Kimmel has completed many 4-H projects, including swine breeding and marketing, and dairy.

Thomas Dunchack, of Littlestown, was the recipient of the Outstanding 4-H Boy award. The son of Thomas and Cecilia Dunchack, he attends Penn State's Mont Alto campus, where he is majoring in Agriculture Business. Dunchack has carried market lamb, breeding sheep and conservation projects during the past six years and is a member of the Adams County 4-H Sheep Club. In December he will represent Pennsylvania as the state's recipient in the National Career Scholarship 4-H Awards program.

One of the primary sponsors of the Keystone International Livestock Exposition, PLA represents the Commonwealth's $1.2 billion industry. The association supports the Pennsylvania Meat Marketing Program, with its $3,500 in annual contributions earmarked for red meat promotion throughout the state.

Recipients of PLA's outstanding youth awards included (from left) Thomas Dunchack, 4-H; Kim Hopple and Fritz Frey, FFA. Not present is 4-H honoree Leigh Ann Kimmel.

Cooperatives Need To Make Fundamental Changes

BY SALLY BAIR
Lancaster Co. Correspondent

HARRISBURG — In a speech which contained elements which he admitted sounded like "heresy," Dr. Ron Knutson, professor and extension economist in agricultural policy and marketing at Texas A and M University, said that cooperatives must make some fundamental changes in the way they operate to meet the future.

Knutson said, "You have to change to survive." Speaking to participants in the 1986 PAFC Annual Meeting, Knutson admitted, "Not much of anything I've got to say is favorable. There are real challenges."

One of his most controversial suggestions is that cooperatives look at their long-standing tradition of one member, one vote. Knutson said this may have to be changed to meet the challenge of getting large farms to become supporters of cooperatives. He said research shows that there will be the development of a bimodal farm structure, with an increase in small farms, with income being derived from off-the-farm sources, and an increase in large farms, with a large reduction in moderate size farms.

He called moderate size farms the backbone of the co-op system, and stated, "A major challenge facing cooperatives is to maintain the competitiveness of the moderate size farm." Moderate farms, he said, "Must have the same access to lower input costs and high prices that larger farms have."

He reminded his audience that large farms traditionally have tended not to belong to cooperatives, but stated, "You have to develop a large farm strategy. The only way to have progressiveness is to attract large farmers."

Knutson gave a wide variety of reasons for the increase in large farms, including the fact that they have substantially lower costs of production, up to 5 to 10 percent average lower input costs. Furthermore, he said research shows that larger farms market products at a higher price, again 5 to 10 percent higher than smaller farms.

Large farms can also adopt new technologies more readily, a fact that will become increasingly more important in the future. Knutson said the accelerating technological changes will be a "big issue in the last half of the decade of the 80s." He added, "It will be a nightmare to keep up with the technological changes and they will have a tremendous impact."

Such innovations as Bovine Growth Hormones and embryo transfer technology will have a great impact on the dairy industry. He said it is generally agreed that BGH will increase production about 10 to 15 percent and has the potential to reduce the cost of producing milk by 10 percent.

Further advances in grain varieties which are resistant to herbicides can eliminate a lot of competitive weeds and engineering varieties for resistance to specific diseases or pests contribute to the technological advances which benefit large farms.

Knutson pointed out that large farms can adopt new technologies more readily and are better able to manage risk by knowing futures and options markets and understanding arrangements such as delayed pricing and crop contracts. Put simply, he says, "Large farms pay more attention to outlook and management information."

Calling the state of agriculture a "very shocking situation," Knutson said that agriculture is in danger of becoming a welfare state. The average payment from the government to the farmer is now $62,000 per year. He noted, "The government is now paying more of farm product cost than consumers." He said for years the government has been spending between $5 to 7 billion, and in 1986 is spending over $30 billion on farm programs.

One of the most important forces affecting agriculture is the world food supply and demand balance. Knutson said, "There is a long term trend to declining real farm prices and declining real importance of agriculture to the total economy." He added that all studies suggest that the higher prices of the 70s were an aberation, and that the situation so far in the 80s is more typical of the future trend.

A major force affecting agriculture is that of changing demand, both foreign and domestic. Knutson said, "Lights in, cookings out." With more working wives and single parent families, food consumption away from home is going to increase dramatically. He said, "It is not unrealistic to think that in the year 2000 more than 50 percent of the meals will be eaten away from home.

The aging population affects what is being eaten, and the concern for diet and health has increased the production of poultry and decreased that of red meat.

There is now stiffer competition in the world marketplace. He said with the United States holding 50 percent of all the stocks in the world, prices are being set by stocks held, not by production. The United States is at a disadvantage because of the number of countries that have prices set by national boards.

Knutson pointed out that there will need to be a realignment of agribusiness to serve the new agriculture. They will need to locate to serve farms that produce the majority of production. He added that a changing rural community structure will also be a strong force in the changing agriculture.

Because certain cities may develop into major rural agribusiness centers, there may be a gradual deterioration in smaller rural communities.

Knutson called on the cooperatives to stop competing against one another. He said, "You have to get ride of an awful lot of local and regional co-ops." He added that in his opinion centralized co-ops are the only ones that will survive in the long run.

In another statement which generated comments in a reaction panel, Knutson said, "Survival is more critical than principles." In addition to having them think about the one man/one vote principle, he said there may be other longstanding principles which may have to be gotten rid of, and which will require changes in the law in the process.

Knutson commented, "More than anything cooperatives are about ownership proportional to use and service at cost." He noted that cooperatives will have to show more commitment than in the past.

"Investment in public policy issues becomes an important role," he said.

Dairying will be one of the hardest hit segments of the economy, and Knutson said dairy cooperatives should give serious thought to the marketing of bovine growth hormones, and how they will advise members on using that technology.

He urged cooperatives to develop national cooperative research agencies and to develop exclusive distributorships for the new technologies. He suggested that co-ops can work with drug companies to become distributors of their products. This would require additional training of staff. Knutson said, "It would go beyond the traditional function of co-op field men.

He said dairy co-ops of the future will be full line co-ops, not just milk marketing, but also processing and providing inputs which are unique to the dairy industry. He said that land-grant institutions will not be able to deliver the necessary information in the future, and cooperatives will have to.

Knutson reminded the co-op leaders that the keys to success in the future include adopting state-of-the-art technology and a "mean and lean investment strategy." Good management and conservative financial management will also help assure success in a future which is filled with uncertainties.

WORKING HARD TODAY. WORKING HARD TOMORROW.

Farmers and Farm Credit. You can depend on it.

Throughout the Farm Credit System, Farm Credit employees at all levels are working hard to provide credit and the best possible financial services to farmers, ranchers and their cooperatives at the lowest possible cost.

Working as a system

In late 1985, the 37 Farm Credit banks worked harder than ever before as a single system to pass Farm Credit legislation that would improve the system's ability to deal more effectively with financial stress. This unified effort succeeded and, in December, the president signed into law the Farm Credit Amendments Act of 1985. The new law restored investor confidence and lowered the rising cost of system funds. It assured the system access to the nation's money markets for funding at competitive rates. The new law also created the Farm Credit System Capital Corporation, which gives the system a mechanism for using its financial resources more effectively and supporting its financially troubled banks.

Working as employees

In more than 1,500 offices across the nation, we're working to hold down operating costs and provide credit and related services more efficiently. We're pulling together to make better use of our staffs and facilities to strengthen the financial condition of our banks and associations and to deliver the best possible service at the lowest possible cost.

Working for you

We know that every farm operation and every customer is different. That's why our loan officers understand more than credit and financing. They understand agriculture. And that's why they work one-on-one with each borrower to meet his or her individual needs. Our loan officers care about what happens to the farmers in their community. The economic stress facing many of our borrowers affects more than the farmer and his family. It hurts everyone in the community, from bankers to merchants.

Working for agriculture

No other lender that serves American agriculture has worked harder and longer than the Farm Credit System. For nearly 70 years, we have been a dependable source of credit for farmers, ranchers and their cooperatives. Despite the ag economy, we're determined to continue Farm Credit's history of service — to be the premier provider of credit and financial services to agriculture.

The Farm Credit System is working hard today and will be working hard tomorrow — stronger and better equipped to serve your needs. You can depend on it.

Lancaster County Outstanding 4-H'ers Encourage Others To Join 4-H

BY SALLY BAIR
Lancaster County Correspondent

PENRYN-LITITZ — For Sallie Gregory, 17, and Stacy Nestleroth, 16, being named the Outstanding 4-H'ers of Lancaster County is an honor they don't take lightly. Both young women have been long time 4-H members, and they hope to use their title to encourage more people to join 4-H and to challenge current members to become more involved as they get older.

Both Sallie and Stacy have made 4-H a priority in their lives, sacrificing some school activities to make possible their wide participation in events outside Lancaster County. As 4-H week draws to a close, we salute Sallie and Stacy and their contributions to Lancaster County's 4-H program.

Sallie Gregory and Stacy Nestleroth have many things in common. Perhaps most important to the story of their 4-H achievement is that they both grew up in families that had firm commitments to the 4-H program.

Sallie is the daugher of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Gregory, 28th Division Highway, Lititz. She remembers her mother, Mary Alice, now deceased, leading a cooking club in their home. "I was here for every meeting ever since I was little. I could hardly wait to join."

Sallie also had three older sisters who were active in 4-H, whom she wanted to emulate. "I looked up to them," she recalls, "and I wanted to do the things they did."

Her sister Martha became a leader, then Jane, and now Sallie continues the tradition by leading a cooking project herself as a teen leader. "It is mostly younger kids just starting out in 4-H. They seem enthusiastic about 4-H and I like to make cooking fun." Sallie is currently a member of the Boots and Saddles Club, the Clay Cooking Club and the Lancaster County 4-H Exchange Club.

Similarly, Stacy's mother, Hazel, held sewing meetings in their home when Stacy was little. "We'd get kicked out during the meetings. I really wanted to be in it," Stacy says. With a February birthday, she had to wait an extra year before she could officially join.

She has now been a member of the Elm-Penryn Club for eight years, and has taken projects from veterinary science to pet care, to sewing and photography. She too is a member of the Lancaster County 4-H Exchange Club. The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Mark Nestleroth, R5, Manheim, both 4-H'ers, Stacy now has four sisters to follow in her footsteps.

Not only will Sallie and Stacy represent the county as Outstanding 4-H'ers, but they were both elected to leadership positions in the 4-H Exchange Club. Stacy will serve as president and Sallie as vice-president.

Having become close friends in the last few years by participating in the same 4-H events, both girls look forward to working together during the coming year. Both have some ideas about things they would like to see happen in the 4-H program, and they feel strongly about the need to keep 4-H'ers active in the program as they grow older.

Sallie says, "The first couple of years are the learning years. We need to keep the older members in so that the younger ones have people to look up to and follow after." Often members must be 13 to participate in county and regional events.

Sallie recalls, "I wanted to be in those activities and it took forever for me to get to that age. Now it's going so fast."

Stacy adds, "I think it is really important to talk to the younger kids about the special events they can go to. Camp is where I started throwing myself into 4-H. It is really neat at camp. Everybody gets drawn really close and you have to support each other."

Stacy has participated two years in the multi-county camp, and she talks it up both to the members and to their parents, believing that parents are more likely to send their children to camp if they know some of the people working there. Stacy feels so strongly about the benefits of 4-H camp that she took off the last three days of school last year when there was an overlap.

"I hope to really get people in 4-H and get them really involved. I want to break some of the attitudes people get in their heads about 4-H," Stacy states. She said she frequently finds that people have little knowledge of the real 4-H program and the opportunities that are available.

Both girls agree that one of the biggest benefits they have derived from 4-H is the ever-expanding number of friends they have made, both within the county and at regional and state events. Stacy says, "It's a widening crowd. I'm sure I know about 50 to 60 4-H'ers from around the state, and maybe 100. You also get to see what goes on in 4-H in other parts of the state."

Sallie adds, "I have met so many people." She recalls being "so scared" the first year she attended Leadership Congress at Penn State because "I thought I wouldn't know anyone." When the fire alarm went off minutes after her arrival, Sallie met a girl in the stairwell and they quickly became fast friends; they are still corresponding. "I get to see her at every event," Sallie now says.

As members of the Exchange Club, both traveled to Michigan as part of that program. Sallie says this was a terrific way to get to know others since she hadn't known many of the group before they left on the plane. She notes, "The trip was great. It helps you mature and be more responsible for yourself. It gives you self-discipline."

Stacy agreed that the exchange trip helped local 4-H'ers learn to cope in situations different from their experiences in Lancaster County.

Though difficult for an observer to believe, Stacy comments, "I was very shy when I was little. Now I can get up and I can talk in front of any group. I still get a little nervous, but I can feel comfortable in front of a group."

Part of her success in public speaking comes from giving speeches in the public speaking contest. This year she tailored her speech around promoting 4-H, calling it "The 4-H Sharing Experience." It was good enough to earn her the right to go to State Days, but she chose instead to remain a member of the Consumerama Team whch wound up in first place. Being a part of a judging team is also a confidence builder, because team members must give reasons for their decisions.

Sally has participated on the horse judging team, and she, too, credits 4-H with improving her self-confidence. She gave her first cooking demonstrations when she was quite young, and has given several horse demonstrations.

"It really helped me become more confident in speaking in front of my class. It is easier for me than for my classmates." She admits to still getting nervous, but says, "You have to be a little bit nervous to make it good."

Sallie adds, "Giving reasons on the horse judging team helped me learn to speak well."

Both girls aspire to attend National Congress, the ultimate 4-H experience. Sallie says, "I'm really looking forward to doing more things. I am still following in my sisters' image. It made an impression on me when they participated." Stacy adds, "If I am chosen to attend National Congress, I will feel like I have really achieved something."

To be selected is no small feat, so Stacy says, "I am working to round out my blue form. I must go in leadership or achievement, since I haven't had many years with one project."

This year Stacy adapted a veterinary science project which allowed her to work with the Humane League, something she thoroughly enjoyed. "It was neat; a lot different from what I expected. We help to exercise the animals and give them attention, though we do whatever is needed." The project requires that a 4-H member donate a minimum of 12 hours to the League. Stacy hopes to take it again this year.

She also took a project called "the stress connection," something that she found interesting since she is leaning toward psychology as a possible college major. "I like to analyze how the mind works," she says. She also likes to work with children and to write, so she has several options. A junior at Manheim Central High School, she also has time to focus more clearly on the future.

In the past she has carried pet care and swine projects and was a member of the Woolies Club for five years, eventually giving it up

(Turn to Page B4)

Sallie Gregory looks over her blue form, which qualified her as a county winner in the horse category. A member of the Boots and Saddles 4-H Club, the Clay Cooking Club and the 4-H Exchange Club, Sallie was named one of Lancaster County's Outstanding 4-H'ers at Achievement Night.

Stacy Nestleroth plays with the family dog Luther who was her pet care project for this year. A member of the Elm-Penryn Club and the 4-H Exchange Club, Stacy was named an Outstanding 4-H'er at Lancaster County's Achievement Night program.

Homestead Notes

Stacy leads a first year cooking project as teen leader. She tries to keep the members' enthusiasm by telling them all the opportunities she has had as a 4-H'er.

Ginger is Sallie's 4-H project horse. Ginger is just six years old, and Sallie says they are still learning as she works with the horse and attends shows.

Lancaster County Outstanding 4-H'ers

because she didn't have enough time to devote to the sheep.

As a teen leader, Stacy teaches a first year cooking project in her home and uses that as an opportunity to spread her enthusiasm for 4-H.

She has also served for two years as president of the Elm-Penryn Club and was news reporter prior to that. In school, Stacy is in both the marching and concert band, the chorus and on the yearbook staff. She is a member of the National Honor Society. She participated in one of the school musicals, but says, "There is some stuff I had to give up. If I were in a musical, I couldn't go to the spring 4-H events."

Sallie has especially enjoyed her animal projects, saying, "It is a lot of responsibility. I learned how to take care of an animal." Her first horse died at the age of 32, and she now has a 6-year-old which she acquired as a yearling. "Ginger had never been trained, and is a lot more of a challenge than my first horse."

A teen leader in the Boots and Saddles Club, Sallie feels that experience helped her with meeting people and working with others.

A senior at Warwick High School, Sallie hopes to attend Penn State University and major in communications, acknowledging that 4-H "pushed me in that direction."

She gave up being a member of the marching band because of the demands on her time, and her desire to have more time for 4-H. She will be in the concert band, the orchestra, the glee club and the AFS Club. In her spare time, Sallie is a junior docent at Wheatland, the home of President James Buchanan. She says, "That's another 'speaking' thing, and I like getting dressed in the period dresses."

About being named the Outstanding 4-H'er Stacy says, "It is a really big, important award, and I felt good that they thought we deserved it. I am really glad because it is something I looked up to when I was younger."

Sallie agrees, "It is one of the greatest achievements for me. I look at it as an opportunity. I decided to try for it because I had done a lot of stuff and it seemed like the right time. It's fun."

Both girls have gained a lot from their 4-H experiences, and have contributed a lot, something they plan to do much more of. Stacy may sum up their feelings when she says, "You have to give a little of yourself before you get anything. 4-H helps in all kinds of ways. It makes you feel a lot better about yourself."

Raisins are for Anytime

Raisins fit into just about any menu. Fall favorites use raisins at their best — to enhance cookies, cakes, breads and sauces, or to eat as a snack all by themselves.

Raisins — The Anytime Snack

Raisins are an ideal snack for active people - no matter what age - because they are portable, convenient and easy to eat right from the package. Tuck them in backpacks, or sack lunches. Keep a pack or two in your desk at work, your purse or compartment of your car for between-meal snacking.

Raisins also combine with other foods to make fun-tasting snack mixtures. Combine raisins with nuts, diced dates, chopped dried apricots, cheese cubes, pretzels, tiny crackers, shelled sunflower seeds, miniature marshmallows, coconut or packaged cereals - just to name a few.

The Perfect Combo Chocolate and Raisins

The natural goodness of raisins and the sweetness of chocolate make them perfect partners for all kinds of recipes. Here are some ideas for matching these two favorite flavors:

- Add ½-cup raisins to fudge or brownie batter.
- Just before baking chocolate cupcakes, sprinkle a few raisins over each cupcake.
- Stir coarsely-chopped raisins into chocolate or mocha flavored cake frostings.
- Toss ½ cup raisins into a batch of chocolate chip cookies.
- At your next ice cream sundae party, set out a bowl of golden or natural raisins among all the sundae toppings.
- Add raisins to any kind of chocolate pudding or pie filling for a marvelous flavor and chewy texture.

Raisins and Apples in a Pie

Good, old fashioned apple pie lends itself to so many delicious adaptations. Try adding ¾-cup raisins to your favorite pie filling and bake as usual. Serve with French vanilla ice cream sprinkled with toasted, slivered almonds.

Good Morning to Raisin Toast

Toasted, buttered raisin bread is an all-time favorite breakfast item. This fragrant bread lends itself to all kinds of toppings and spreads to give that special life to the "same ole" breakfast routine. Try one of these two ideas tomorrow morning's raisin toast:

- Raisin Breadspread: Thoroughly blend ½-cup softened butter or margarine with ½-cup brown sugar and ½-teaspoon cinnamon. Toast one side of raisin bread under the broiler; remove and generously spread second side with butter-sugar mixture. Broil until mixture is melted and toast is lightly browned. Refrigerate remainder of spread.
- Buttered Honey: Blend equal parts butter and honey. Spread on toasted raisin bread or raisin English muffins. For variation, add ¼-cup chopped raisins to honey-butter mixture and spread on piping hot biscuits. Refrigerate remainder of spread.

Storage Important for Raisins

Raisins can become dry and their natural fruit sugars can crystallize if they are improperly stored. Raisins will retain their chewy texture and naturally sweet flavor by following these few simple storage and handling suggestions:

Raisins should be stored in a cool, dry place. Once a package has been opened, the raisins should be kept in an airtight container and refrigerated. They will keep up to a year if stored properly in the refrigerator, and even longer in the freezer.

Tips for Chopping Raisins

Chopping is recommended for many cake, cookie and quick bread recipes to better distribute the raisins throughout the batter or dough. To chop, toss 1 cup raisins with 1 teaspoon oil and chop with a sharp knife. Raisins chop well in a food processor too, if first refrigerated.

On being a farm wife - And other hazards

Joyce Bupp

Surely you've been as guilty of saying the phrase as much as I have been at one time or another. It's a familiar one, heard at family reunions, holiday gatherings and any place where people who see one another only periodically gather.

"Why, you look just like your mother!" Or, father, sister, uncle, or whomever.

Kids don't always find that such a compliment. We recently heard from an infrequently-seen acquaintance how our daughter looked "just like her mother." The "daughter" happened to be a son greatly miffed at the gender error.

Anyway, family resemblance is an undeniable fact of life. Even in cows. In bovine offspring, however, the family resemblance is not so much physical as it is tempermental.

Our Wanda and Wendy are perfect examples.

From the first day homebred Wanda joined the dairy herd, her obnoxious, scatter-brained behaviour won her special — deserved — notoriety.

She even looks the part of a malcontent. As a calf, dehorning didn't totally "take" on Wanda, resulting in a short, but slightly crooked, whitish-colored horn growing from the left side of her head.

Wanda also boasts a wild-eyed look, one of the few in our herd of extremely calm, laid-back bovines. Couple the wild-eyes with the lopsided horn and she has what can only be called "devilish" aura about her — which she plays to the hilt.

Endlessly I've grumbled while herding her around the barn that she couldn't see her stall if it fell on her. She has one speed, fast, which slides into overdrive as she sails past her stall and on down to the far end of the dairy barn.

Needless to say, in addition to all the above irritating qualities, Wanda isn't above sending the milking equipment flying occasionally — or taking aim at the person attaching it.

Weird Wanda (as she's commonly known) has two redeeming qualities which have earned her the tenuous right to hang around the herd. She's a consistent, health-problem-free producer and breeds back to calve on a regular basis. Too hateful to do anything that would get her tossed out, I figure.

It was inevitable that Weird Wanda would have heifer calves, about three of 'em so far, I think. The first joined the milking string last year.

Wacky Wendy, the first milking daughter of Weird Wanda, is "just like her mother" in scatter-brained temperament. Naturally, this family will prove to be heavily one-sided in giving birth to heifer calves, more to be "just like their mother."

And, then there's Matilda. Matilda is an old excellent cow suffering breeding difficulties — until she spent a romantic interlude with the bull in residence. The end result was a rugged baby heifer calf, who promises to grow up to be just like her mother." Unfortunately.

Matilda will cheerfully flatten anyone who happens to get in the way of her eternal and endless quest to eat. Such aggressiveness and determination are qualities which have obviously kept the old girl going. On the other hand, anyone putting cows into their stalls had better step lively and not have their back turned when Matilda marches down the alleyway to conquer the feed trough. She simply will not stop, nor step aside, for a human traffic director. Or at least not this human traffic director.

"Just like her mother" is Matilda II. As a 3-month-old calf, she lowered her hard head, and repeatedly plowed into my legs as I bedded the pen. Finally, it was necessary to physically hang onto her head and wrestle her away while I backed my way out and over the gate.

While we have no absolute proof, it is believed that Matilda II never sleeps. She has never been observed anywhere but with her head jammed through the hay rack, jaws going constantly, and obviously has but one goal in life — to grow up to be "just like her mother."

Sometimes, in fleeting moments of dairy farm frustration, I have a burning yen to be "just like my mother."

My mother doesn't chase Matildas or Weird Wandas or Wacky Wendys. Not ever.

N.J. FFA'ers Test Judging Skills

NEW BRUNSWICK, N.J. — Members of the New Jersey Association of FFA Chapters will be on the Rutgers University Cook College campus for the statewide interscholastic fall judging contests Thursday, Oct. 30.

Teams from 39 chapters will test their agricultural or horticultural skills in land judging, weed identification and control, fruits and vegetable identification, and small engine trouble shooting.

The highest scoring team in the dairy foods contest will compete at the regional competition in West Springfield, Mass. next September, then at the national competition in Kansas City, Miss., in November of 1987. The first place land judging team will move on to the national competition next spring in Oklahoma.

The chapter that accumulates the most points in the fall, spring and summer contests will receive the H. O. Sampson trophy. Sampson, a member of the staff of Rutgers Univesity, was one of the original founders of FFA.

Mythical Kingdoms Fill State Department File

WASHINGTON — Believe it or not, there is a file at the State Department filled with all kinds of curious documents about the rise and fall of countries that never existed.

It is kept in official-looking legal-size folders, and a few of its pages are even stamped Classified.

"I call it the 'Mythical Kingdoms, Kooky Kings, and Pretending Princes' file," says George J. Demko, director of the Office of the Geographer, which has maintained this wonderful file for 40 years. More seriously, it has been labeled "Ephemeral States."

Represents Coralland

The newest entry is a letter dated Aug. 29, 1986, from a citizen of the United Kingdom of Coralland seeking to register as a foreign agent in the United States. Others have come from the King of the Mosquito Shore and Nation (on the east coast of Central America) and the Secretary of State of the Republic of Minerva — Land of the Rising Atoll (on coral reefs in the South Pacific).

The file is very real even if the kingdoms are not. It contains letters of credentials, declarations, affidavits, and maps from persons claiming to have started their own countries. And it includes memos from a variety of U.S. government agencies inquiring about their legitimacy: Is there such a place?

In most cases, these would-be rulers have declared dominion over land that actually exists, usually tiny, isolated islands, sometimes under several feet of water.

Like real countries, some of these kingdoms have proclaimed declarations of independence, adopted constitutions, sought diplomatic recognition, sent out special envoys, displayed coats-of-arms, minted coins, and issued stamps, passports, and visas.

The geographer's office officially maintains a file on them because it is responsible for keeping track of the sovereignty status of all nations. "We have to know what and where everything is in the world," Demko says.

"The only problem with this file is that once you open it, you get fascinated by it," he says, opening it. "This is fun."

Inside, for instance, there's a lengthy lawsuit filed in the Court of Special Cases of the Republic of Morac-Songhrati-Meads in 1985 against an array of prominent U.S. officials, government agencies, and companies. It seeks at least $25 billion in damages for infringement, unfair competition, harrassment,and sabotage.

A Whiff of Competition

Morac-Songhrati-Meads, which formerly called itself the Kingdom of Humanity, has claimed islands — and oil rights — in the strategically situated Spratly chain in the South China Sea. But so have China, Vietnam, and the Philippines.

Morton F. Meads, an American businessman, has contended his claim is the legitimate one because he is a descendant of the sea captain who discovered the islands in the 1870s while sailing under the British flag. Meads established his constitutional monarchy more than 30 years ago, locating its capital on Meads Island and choosing Beethoven's Fifth Symphony as its national anthem.

When Australia imposed a wheat quota that Leonard George Casley couldn't live with, he turned his 18,500-acre Western Australia farm into the Hutt River Province (later Kingdom) and proclaimed himself Prince. Hutt River formally seceded on April 21, 1970, a day that became its "national" holiday. A stone secession monument permanently marks the event. The kingdom, population 35, published a 52-page color booklet about itself titled "The Birth of a Principality." Australia refuses to recognize its independent status.

To give Maori people, "a race that is speeding to oblivion," a place "to call their own, their rightful place in the sun," King and Absolute Ruler Mitchara Heatara signed a declaration of independence in 1985 establishing the Maori Kingdom of Tetiti Islands in the South Pacific. His special envoy offered the United States a long-term lease on one island, situated about 500 miles off the New Zealand coast.

"We regret to inform you that we cannot locate Furstentum Castellania," a 1984 State Department letter in the file states. "We can assure you that the United States government does not have diplomatic relations with this ephemeral state." The Principality of Castellania had been created by a group of disenchanted Austrians in 1974. Its location, somewhere in the South Pacific, was kept secret. According to one of its leaders, "Castellania is more a state of mind."

Claim Ocean Floor

Thinking globally, two self-styled rulers served notice on Secretary of State Henry Kissinger in 1975 of their rights as "sole owners of all of the ocean floor and sealand." Others, such as the Admiral of Oceanus, have made similar sweeping claims.

A British couple created their own half-acre "island nation" in the North Sea by taking over a World War II radar-and-gun platform in 1966. They christened it Sealand.

One or two new mythical Kingdoms pop up each year, Demko says. The one that originally created the file was Atlantis, born on a group of islands off Ecuador in 1933. An old entry notes that one of its citizens was once stopped at El Paso, Texas, when he tried to enter the United States using an Atlantis passport. The file still contains more documents on Atlantis than any other mythical kingdom.

One of the briefest entries just mentions a True Hug Nation. There's nothing in the file to tell where or what it is.

"Liberty Legacy (1986)" was made by Cindy Applegate as an entry in the national Great American Quilt Festival Contest in New York City. Here, quilt owner Jeanne Wilber, proprietor of the Strawberry Patch Calico Shop, poses with the quilt, which was selected 1986 Viewer's Choice for the Totem Pole Show.

Totem Pole Quilt Show Boasts 100 Entries

BY BARBARA MILLER
Lycoming Co. Correspondent

ATHENS – One hundred old and new quilts were on display at the Totem Pole Quilt Show and Sale at the Ingersoll Rand Clubhouse, Athens, Oct. 4 through 5. Approximately 1,500 people were expected to attend the event, which also included displays of antique properties, dolls and Indian ceramics.

Quilts of every variety, size, and age were on display. The exhibit included a black quilt, a map quilt, a quilt of yo-yos and one comprised of white sugar bags.

Winner of the 1986 Viewers Choice Award was "Liberty Legacy" (1986) made by Cindy Applegate and owned by Mr. and Mrs. Gene Wilbur of the Strawberry Patch Calico Shop, Columbia Cross Roads. According to Jeanne Wilbur, the blue toned quilt was made by Ms. Applegate as an entry to the national Great American Quilt Festival Contest held in New York City. The theme of the contest was the Statue of Liberty and the quilt was an original design.

Each of the multiple borders of the quilt symbolized the statue and the pedestal as one peers down on it from above. Included in the quilt are hand designed patches symbolic of the many countries from which came immigrants to the United States. Russian mosques appear on the Russian patch and the Canadian patch features a maple leaf. A multi-colored star is the central patch symbolizing the "lady" herself.

"Victorian House" won the 1986 Viewers Choice Award in the small items category. Owned by Michael McLinko, Hackettstown, N.J., and constructed by his mother, Patricia McLinko, the quilted wallhanging, encircled by a hoop, depicted Mr. McLinko's Victorian house in blue and gray tones.

This "Victorian House" wall hanging in a hoop, worked in blue and white tones, was made by Patricia McLinko to illustrate her son's house. The piece won the 1986 Viewer's Award for small items.

The "Postage Stamp" quilt (1831) was one of the oldest on display. Owned by Mrs. Robert Mullen, South Waverly, and made by Sara Wiles Wade Herkimer of the Herkimer Diamond Mine family of Herkimer, N.Y., the quilt was filled with raw cotton. Approximately 5,100 brown and white toned one-inch square patches (about the size of a postage stamp) made up the handsewn quilt.

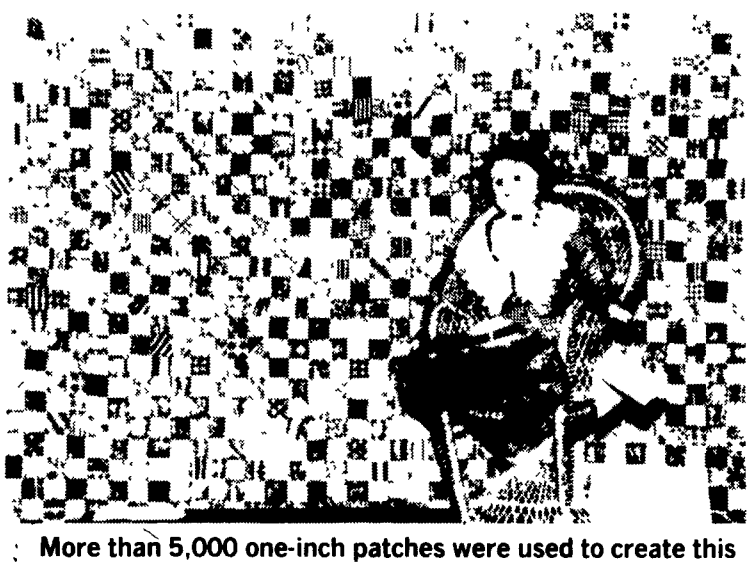
"That one's different! It's almost like stained glass – looks antiquish, like little cameos," exclaimed a lady viewing "Victoriana," winner of the 1985 Totem Pole Quilt Show Viewer's Choice Award. This quilt was made and owned by Catherine Heib, Painted Post, N.Y., using a Joyce Scholtzhauer design. Made of soft earthtones, the quilt's graceful curving patches met at intervals where there was a small oval patch reminiscent of a flowered cameo broach.

"Northwest Territory" (1986), a unique entry, fashioned by a class of fourth graders from Marietta, Ohio, took the form of a map. It depicted an Indian trail going from Shesequin to Marietta. The quilt includes Indian symbols on patches bordering the quilt with the center bottom patch listing the names of Mrs. Smith's fourth grade class.

The only black quilt in the show was a crazy quilt made in 1917 by owner Robin Pierce's great-grandmother. This was a very dramatic quilt made of black velveteen and embroidered with shiny, brightly colored floss. The black satin ruffle which showed the quilt off most effectively was probably added at a later date. The quilt featured several bugs and a spider done in embroidery and raised applique which made them look quite realistic. Black velvet black satin, spiders and bugs – an entry surely Vincent Price would adore.

The fourth Totem Pole Quilt Show and Sale was sponsored by the Mather Memorial Library, Ulster. Coordinator was Virginia Pruyne with helpers Jennie Berg and Jane Bresee.

Contributors were Willard Long specializing in Indian ceramics, Strawberry Patch Calico Shop, My Hands To Thee, Burnt Hill Books, Stitching Post, and local dollmakers.



More than 5,000 one-inch patches were used to create this "Postage Stamp (1831) quilt made by Sara Wiles Wade Herkimer of the Herkimer Diamond Mine family of Herkimer, N.Y. One of the oldest quilts displayed, it is owned by Mrs. Robert Mullen of South Waverly.

THE MICRO WAY

LANI BLOOMER

1985 Favorites from "The Microwave Times"

The recipes below are two readers' favorites from The Microwave Times for the 1985 issues. The Microwave Times is a magazine devoted to microwave cooking techniques, recipes, and articles on different ovens, utensils, etc.

Each issue contains good, tested recipes, and features such as, "Micro Adapting" and "Micro Quik." Micro Adapting answers questions about converting recipes for microwave cooking. Micro Quik gives you quick and simple recipes for extra busy days.

This magazine is in newsletter format, with holes punched in the 16 page issues so you can keep them in a three ring binder. It's published six times a year, every other month. I highly recommend it, and a subscription to this magazine would make a great gift for someone who has a microwave.

A subscription to The Microwave Times costs $8.95 per year (within United States). Orders must include a check, money order or charge information. Write to: Recipes Unlimited, Inc. Box 1271, Burnsville, Minnesota 55337. Or call toll-free 800-328-2846.

Sheep Breeders Face Stiff Competition In Open Breeding Shows

BY SUZANNE KEENE AND MARTHA J. GEHRINGER

HARRISBURG — Competition among sheep breeders at the Keystone International Livestock Exposition is always intense, and this year's contest was no exception. Drawing contenders from Maine to Maryland, the open breeding shows this week saw large classes of immaculately fitted entries from the area's top breeders.

Cheviot

Despite competition from 11 other exhibitors, Kenneth Moore Jr. of Rome showed his entries to the top placing in all classes of Cheviot competition and claimed the champion ram and ewe honors along with the reserve champion ram rosette. The reserve champion ewe belonged to Erdenheim Farm of LaFayette, N.J.

Moore's champion ewe was a spring ewe lamb making its showring debut. The lamb's stylish, flashy appearance captured the judge's eye, Moore's wife, Lorrie, said.

The champion ram, a homebred spring lamb, added still another win to his record; He has not yet been beaten in his class, Moore reported. He will continue his show career at Farm Show.

Kenneth Moore Jr., right, and his wife, Lorrie, show their Cheviot champions.

Champions in the Oxford show belonged to Michael and Kevin Gates of Pleasant Valley, N.Y. Here, Michael shows the ram, while friend Donald Kading shows the ewe.

Hampshire

Bedinger breeding showed its strength in the Hampshire competition Friday. The champion ram was a yearling purchased from breeder Charles Bedinger of Illinois, while the champion ewe's grandfather was a Bedinger ram.

The champion ram, owned by William Maghes of McConnelsville, Ohio, has been undefeated as a yearling and will travel to Louisville later this year to compete in the national show.

Richared Field of Dover-Foxcraft, Maine, exhibited the champion ewe, a yearling that topped an entry by Rebecca Hope of Knoxville, Md. to claim the class and the championship. Hope's second place yearling went on to be named reserve champion.

Field's ewe came to Keystone bearing an impressive show record that includes championships at West Virginia and York Fairs. She was first in her class at the "Big E" and reserve champion at the Eastern National Show in Timonium, Md.

"She's one of our favorites," shephards Joyce Burnham and Kenneth Kuykendall said following the show.

The reserve champion ram belonged to competitor Debbie Gengler of Pittstown, N.J. and her spring lamb.

Hope, who claimed the reserve ewe, also had the exhibitor's flock, first place ewe lamb and pair of ram lambs.

Oxford

Brothers Kevin and Michael Gates of Pleasant Valley, N.Y. captured the champion ram and ewe honors in the Oxford show Friday. Judge G.L.M. Chappell of Lexington, Kty. selected their homebred yearling for his champion ram and another homebred yearling for his champion ewe.

Earlier in the year, the ram had been named reserve champion at the New York State Fair; the ewe was champion there. Michael Gates said he purchased the ewe's dam from Westhovens of Ohio at the Keystone Sale a few years ago.

Gates also showed the top exhibitor's flock and pair of yearling ewes.

Reserve honors in the Oxford show went to Gerald Thoma of Kensington, Ohio and his spring ram lamb, and to Glenn Heffner of Fleetwood and his spring ewe lamb.

Dorset

Competition in the Dorset show was especially tough, with 42 exhibitors contending for the championships. When judge G.L.M. Chappell had finished scrutinizing the carefully-groomed entries, he went to a spring lamb owned by Skip and Cheryl Heeg of Tully, N.Y. for his champion ewe and to a spring ram lamb owned by Windswept Farm of State College for his champion ram.

The ram's sire was last year's Keystone champion and went on to be the high seller at the Ohio Dorset Sale held earlier this year. He sold for a whopping $7,700, reported George Downsbrough of Windswept Farm.

The homebred champion ewe came to KILE with showring experience at the Big E, where she was first in her class.

The reserve champion ram was a yearling owned by Mike Koehler of Schnecksville, and the reserve ewe was the second place spring lamb owned by Scott Kuzemchak of Pleasant Gap. Kuzemchak also had the reserve champion sale lamb. Wade Brothers of Greenville, Va. showed the sale champion.

Shropshire

Maine breeder Peter D'Ambra dominated the Shropshire show,

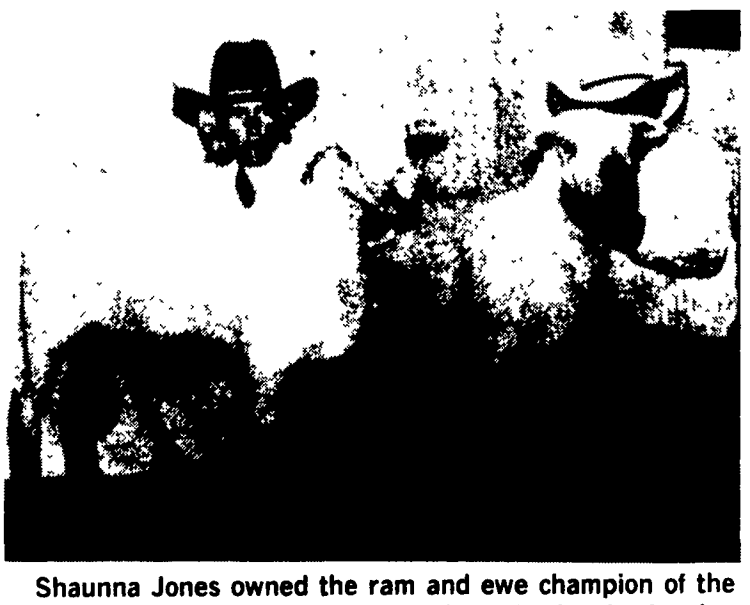
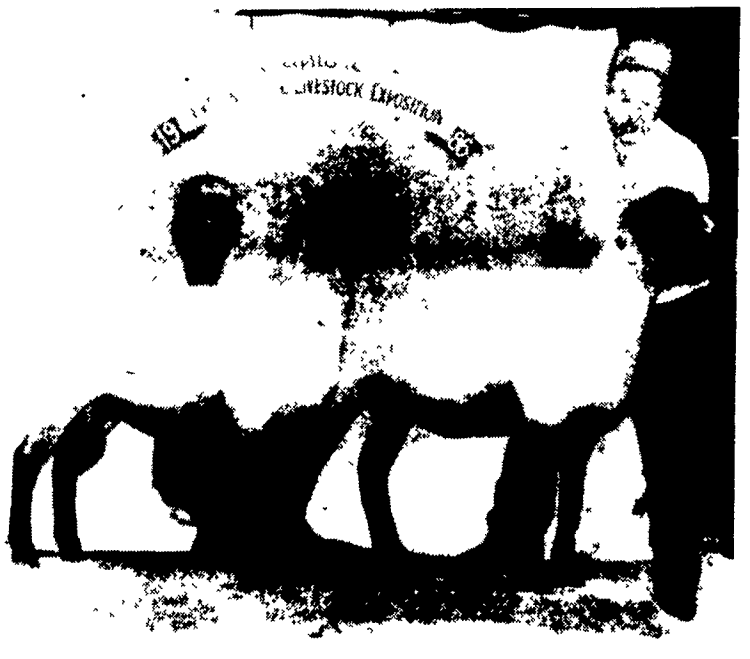
John and Jean Woodward of Sabillasville, Md. swept the open Romney show. Here, they show their champion ram and ewe.



Shaunna Jones owned the ram and ewe champion of the Southdown breed. Presenting the sheep for her in the ring were handlers Joyce Burnham, left, with the champion ram and Kenneth Kuykendall, posing the champion ewe.



Bob Harmann holds the champion Suffolk ewe and Dave Harmann steadies the champion ram. Laurel Farms owns both champions.

Open Breeding Shows

claiming champion ewe and reserve champion ram honors. He also had the top spring ram lamb, pair of ram lambs, spring and fall ewe lambs, pen of three ewe lambs, yearling ewe, pair of yearling ewes and the flock.

D'Ambra's homebred champion ewe was sired by U Conn 8481 and was named champion at Maryland State Fair and reserve champion at Ohio State Fair.

The champion Shropshire ram, a yearling owned by Robert Dinsmore of Jefferson, Md., was a repeat winner from last year. Dinsmore said he purchased the champion from Maryland breeder Harvey Miller as a lamb.

Kenneth Moore of Rome showed the reserve champion ewe. The sale champion belonged to Kennedy Farms of Freemont, Ohio, while the reserve went to Wey Shropshires.

Romney

John and Jean Woodward of Sabillasville, Md. literally swept the Romney show Sunday, claiming first place in every class and all the champions.

"We expected to do well, but not this well, John Woodward said following the show. However, Woodward was quick to note that with the number of competitors in the breed, "You can't stay on top forever." The Woodwards attributed their success to good showmanship, luck and quality sheep.

The champion ram was a spring lamb and the ewe a yearling. Both are bred and owned by the Woodwards, who said their champions also did well at Eastern National and the York Fair.

Southdown

Shaunna Jones' flock or W.G. Carpenter's flock topped 10 of 12 classes in the Southdown competition. When the class winners competed for championship honors, Jones' entries stood in the champion ram and ewe positions, leaving the reserve spots for Carpenter.

Jones' spring ram lamb caught the attention of judge Ron Guenther, Columbus, Ohio with his correctness and upstandingness, explained Joyce Burnham and Kenneth Kuykendall, flock han-

Locke, Dinsmore Show Keystone Junior Market Lamb Champions

HARRISBURG — Alan Locke of Warsaw, Ohio showed his Suffolk wether to the top position in the competitive Keystone International Junior Market Lamb Show in Harrisburg Sunday.

Locke's 111-pound lamb topped entries owned by Robert Dinsmore, Joyce Harpster, and Mark Brubaker to win the championship.

Robert Dinsmore, left, of Jefferson, Md., showed the champion pen of three junior market lambs. Here he gets a hand from Rebecca Hope, center, and Sarah Ruppert, right.

"I figured he'd do pretty well," Locke said following show. His Suffolk had been named reserve champion at Coshton, Ohio earlier in the season.

Locke, the 17-year-old son of Leon and Karen Locke, also had the champion Columbia at Keystone this year. His parents have about 300 breeding ewes on their farm in Ohio.

The reserve championship went to Robert Dinsmore of Jefferson, Md. and his 114-pound Hampshire wether. Dinsmore also owned the champion pen of three, topping a pen owned by Margaret Herr of Narvon.

dlers. The champion stood first in his class during his first outing at the Eastern National show, Burnham noted.

The handlers returned to the winner's circle with Jones' yearling ewe, described by Guenther as the complete throughout.

W.G. Carpenter and Sons, who own a flock of 150 breeding Southdowns in Jefferson, Md., won their 20th consecutive premier exhibitor trophy at Saturday's show.

Suffolk

A March ram lamb proved he had the stuff champions are made of when he topped the spring ram class and went on to earn the Suffolk champion ram title.

Laurel Farms of Roxbury, Ct. owns the champion who has grown two inches in the past two months, said Dave Harmann, flock consultant. "He's still growing," Harmann noted as he looks forward to exhibiting the ram at the Louisville contest.

Grand and reserve grand champion ewes titles went to a pair of yearlings owned by Laurel Farms.

Laurel Farms bought the champion ewe at the Midwest Sale in June. She placed as the supreme ewe of that show, Harmann said. The first-year exhibitors plan to show the ewe at Louisville before returning her to their 100-head brood ewe flock, Harmann added.

This pair of ewes earned first place yearling ewe status as well as helping Laurel Farms claim exhibitor flock and premier exhibitor honors.

Columbia

Beth Stumbo of Honeoye, N.Y. returned to KILE after an absence of two years to capture grand champion ram honors of the Columbia breed. "I felt I had better sheep this year," Stumbo explained.

Stumbo, who has been raising Columbias for seven years, was crowned the 1986 National Columbia Sheep Princess in August.

This is the last show for her yearling champion. He will return to her 10-head flock and be used in the breeding program.

Joan Hess and Sons of Cable, Ohio claimed the grand champion ewe title with their February ewe lamb. Previously, the ewe claimed champion honors at the Ohio State Fair

Joan and Charles Hess, who own a flock of 40 registered Columbias, also won the premier exhibitor trophy for the breed.

Corriedale

Bob and Suzie Leib of Mechanicsburg pick and show the sheep for the Valley Lamb and Wool Company. This year marks the end of their 4-year handlers contract with the Middletown company and the year they showed the champion ram and ewe for the company.

The champion ram was a September, 1985 ram lamb making his debut and exit in the winner's circle, Suzie Leib explained. The ram will now be used for breeding purposes, she said.

A homebred yearling ewe topped the show for the Middletown company owned by the Walker family. The family hopes to show offspring from the champion ewe on next year's show circuit, Suzie noted.

Premier exhibitor honors went the Valley Lamb and Wool Company. They topped eight classes enroute to this title.

Merinos

Champion ram honors of the breed went to a fall ram lamb owned by Margrit and Albrecht Pichler of Red Hook, N.Y. In earlier contests the lamb stood second to his twin brother.

Born prematurely, "Someone pushed the button and they started growing. They are now the biggest of the bunch," Margrit said.

The Pichler family also won the grand champion ewe title with their yearling ewe. They purchased the champion this spring based on her fleece value from Joan and Charles Hess of Ohio.

Rambouillet

Kenneth Moore of Rome dominated the Rambouillet division, earning champion ram and ewe honors.

Doris Powell, Moore's daughter and showman, said the placing of the ram lamb in the champion position came as no great surprise; in recent weeks he has been growing noticeably.

The champion ewe is out of the same sire, a Hodgson ram from Colorado. Judge Guenther described the spring lamb as the flashiest ewe lamb here today, Powell noted.

Moore's string also took first yearling ewe honors and premier exhibitor honors.

The champion ewe placed as first spring lamb of the New York State Show in an earlier outing. Judge Guenther described her as the flashiest ewe here today, Powell said.

Moore also owned the reserve grand champion ewe and closed the show by winning the premier exhibitor award.

Youthful Competitors Show Champions In Junior Breeding Sheep Show

Geoff Powell, right, earned the champion Shropshire ewe in his first year of competition. The champion ram belonged to Dennis Kendall Jr., left.

BY SUZANNE KEENE

HARRISBURG — For some exhibitors the Keystone Junior Breeding Sheep Show Sunday marked the end of successful show careers as juniors. Their years of youthful competition over, a few will continue showing in open divisions, while others will turn their interests elsewhere.

But just as surely as the elders move onward, new young faces take their places among the ranks of expectant competitors. They will continue the tradition of exhibiting only their finest animals, fitted to perfection for the judge's scrutiny.

But exhibitor age seemed no factor in this year's competition as retiring juniors claimed some championships and first-year members copped others.

Dorset

In the Dorset division, veteran exhibitor Margaret Herr of Narvon ended her junior career with a flourish. She claimed the champion and reserve champion ram honors as well as the champion ewe rosette. Her only concession was to Alicia Strausbaugh of York, who captured the reserve ewe honors.

"It was a tough show," Margaret remarked, noting that the competition was the toughest she had encountered here for several years.

But her homebred entries fared well in the eyes of judge Ron Guenther. "They both have a lot of size and scale," Margaret said of her champions.

In the large ewe classes, Margaret encountered competition from Joyce Harpster of Boalsburg, who won the spring ewe lamb class, and from Alicia Strausbaugh, who topped Margaret's entries in the fall lamb class.

Margaret, the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Robert Herr, Narvon, is currently a sophomore at Penn State University.

Hampshire

Rebecca Hopes' yearling ewe continued a winning streak by claiming the championship in the Hampshire show. Her ewe was undefeated last year and earned the supreme championship honor at Maryland Fair earlier this year for the second consecutive year.

The ewe's success story includes a reserve championship at the Virginia State Fair and another reserve placing in the Keystone open show earlier in the week.

Rebecca is the 15-year-old daughter of Marvin and Betty Hope, who own Hope's Hampshires near Brunswick, Md.

In ram competition, Rebecca had to settle for reserve champion. The champion honor went to a homebred entry owned by Debbie Gengler of Pittstown, N.J. Debbie reported that her spring lamb had taken the reserve championship at Eastern National and at the open show here earlier.

Debbie is the 19-year-old daughter of Steve and Verna Gengler.

The reserve champion ewe belonged to Robert Dinsmore of Jefferson, Md.

Oxford

Kendra Lay of Ridgewood, Ohio, knew she had a "pretty good" spring lamb, so she packed her up and brought her to KILE to see how she would stack up against the competition. Apparently the judge agreed with Kendra's assessment of her lamb and named her champion ewe of the show.

Kendra, the 15-year-old daughter of Bob and Beddie Lay, purchased her champion from Michigan breeder Charles Cryderman. She showed another of her ewes to the reserve spot.

The champion Oxford ram belonged to Glenn Heffner, the 16-year-old son of Wilson and Mary Heffner of Fleetwood. Glenn's homebred spring lamb won at county shows earlier this fall and placed first in its class at the New Jersey State Fair, he reported.

"I kind of figured he'd do well today considering the other shows," Glenn said of his champion.

Amy Eshelman of Sinking Springs provided plenty of competition in the ram contest with her entry that claimed the reserve championship.

Shropshire

Although he wasn't much taller than his ewe, 9-year-old Geoff Powell of Rome showed his entry to the championship in the Shropshire show. Competing in his first Keystone sheep show, Geoff had little to say to after the show, but the smile on his face indicated he may be back next year.

Earlier in the show season Geoff's ewe was named county supreme champion 4-H ewe.

The champion ram was a homebred spring lamb owned by Dennis Kendall Jr. of Hydes, Md. The son of Dennis and Kathy Kendall, Dennis said he purchased his ram's grandmother at the Keystone sale three years ago.

Earlier this year, Dennis' ram was supreme champion at the Baltimore County 4-H Fair and at the Hereford Fair.

Robert Dinsmore of Jefferson, Md., claimed both the reserve champion ewe and ram.

Southdown

Melissa Trostle of Red Lion ended her junior show career with a win in the the Southdown show. Her stylish spring lamb caught the judge's eye long enough to earn the champion ewe rosette. Melissa is the 19-year-old daughter Ronald and Yvonne Trostle.

The reserve champion ewe was a yearling ewe owned by Deanna Stumbo of Honeoye, N.Y.

Tracy Brookover of Mt. Morris, left, showed the champion Suffolk ram. The champion ewe belonged to Jason Heeg, right.

Entries owned by Lee Hayes of Tyrone dominated the ram competition. He claimed the championship with a fall lamb and the reserve with a spring lamb.

Hayes said he purchased the champion from Oklahoma breeder Duron Howard at the Eastern Stud Ram Sale in Staunton, Va. this spring. Earlier this year, the ram was champion at Huntingdon County Fair and reserve champion at Bedford and Shippensurg Fairs.

The 17-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel E. Hayes, Lee owns 17 Southdowns.

Suffolk

Twelve-year-old Jason Heeg of Tully, N.Y. earned champion ewe honors in the Suffolk show with his homebred fall lamb. Jason said he expected her to do well at the show since earlier in the year she had been named supreme champion at the New York State Fair. His ewe was also first in its class in the open show and at the Big E.

The champion ram belonged to 20-year-old Tracy Brookover, who claimed her first championship in her final year of junior competition.

Tracy, the daughter of Tim and Joanne Brookover of Mt. Morris, said her homebred ram was also champion at the Fayette County Farm Show

Tracy also received reserve champion ewe with her fall ewe lamb, while the reserve champion ram belonged to Nancy MacCauley of Atglen.

Penn State Hort. Show Set For Oct. 18-19

UNIVERSITY PARK – Looking for ways to add spark to winter rooms and color to your garden? Plan to attend the 73rd annual Horticulture Show at Penn State's Ag Arena, Saturday and Sunday, Oct. 18 and 19.

The Hort Show has become a popular Homecoming Weekend attraction and a tradition for football fans as well as regional gardeners. This year's theme, "Horticulture and You," is packed with examples of ways to enjoy gardening indoors and out.

The exhibit Inside the Home features ways to bring outdoor freshness indoors year-round. Cut and dried flowers add color and foliage plants brighten even small rooms. Horticultural and landscape paintings and ceramic pieces will illustrate ways to decorate your house.

A patio display features hanging baskets, tall potted plants and garden beds to show attractive ways to link porch and yard. A nature walk complete with garden gargoyle and trickling water highlights ferns and shade-loving flowering plants.

The Tranquility Garden will be of special interest to gardeners with small backyards. A strategically placed garden gazebo offers views of landscape plants, perennials and annuals designed to add interest to small spaces.

P1 Alpha X1, a student honorary professional floricultural and ornamental horticultural society, has designed an exhibit of bedding plants and will be selling flowering bulbs for color in your garden next spring.

Since 1928 the show has been managed, organized and constructed by Penn State students in the Horticulture Club. Club president Kim Asimake and Hort Show coordinators, Joseph Hazler and Sharon Stapleton, will be on hand to welcome visitors. Club members will be available in exhibition areas to answer questions.

To help you put those ideas into practice, house and garden plants and spring flowering bulbs will be on sale at reasonable prices. Apples, cider, mushrooms, pumpkins, and seasonal Indian corn will also be on sale. Proceeds support club activities, trips to regional gardens and student scholarships.

Ernest L. Bergman, professor of plant nutrition, and Roland R. Daniels, associate professor of environmental horticulture, are faculty advisors to the club. Last year, more than 28,000 visitors attended.

After an opening dedication ceremony, the Show will be open from 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 18, and from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Sunday, Oct. 19. Display plants will go on sale from 5 p.m. to 8 p.m. Sunday.

There is no admission charge and parking is available. The Ag Arena is at the corner of Park Street Extension and Porter Road near Beaver Stadium.

Gray Crowned Wool Queen

Gwendolyn Gray, left, of Bedford County was crowned the 1986 Pennsylvania Lamb and Wool Queen on Oct. 5. The 16-year-old Bedford High School student assumed the title from Lisa Shaffer, right, also of Bedford County. The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Gray, owners of Graystone Farm at Schellsburg, says she "enjoys working with the people who are involved in our sheep business."

First runner-up in the contest for state queen was Janet Shick of New Castle. She is a student at Pennsylvania State University.

Ida's Notebook

Ida Risser

It is time to get all of the houseplants out of the garden and into the house. I've been working on this job for weeks but will have to leave some vines outside to die. I really hate to do this.

Gradually I'm getting the corn picked up after the harvester goes through the fields. The other morning I started out bright and early as it was to be in the 90's that afternoon. Well, first thing that I did was fall into an abandoned groundhog hole as it was covered with grass. I was lucky I only twisted my ankle and it got better in a few days.

While I was working, I saw so many black walnuts lying on the ground. I'd be glad to give them to anyone who asks for them since it is a shame to waste them. However, I was not happy when I discovered that someone had taken the majority of my Thomas walnuts. Unluckily for me, the tree is along a public road and not in a back meadow where no one would find them.

There is one thing that there is no shortage of around here and that is desserts. Now I know that "I" do not need them, but the apples that I bought need to be used in apple crisp, apple torte and apple pie. And then I make a pan of brownies too and a big bowl of fluffy tapioca. It is too bad that I don't have my half-dozen children here to feed, but they are getting more scattered all of the time. So, I feed them to my slender, hard-working husband.

The five kittens that we got a month ago are growing fast and as it is fall and mouse trap setting time, I have extra food for them many mornings.

World Food Day Programs To Focus On Hunger Here and Abroad

UNIVERSITY PARK — Penn State and the State College community are joining forces to present a series of programs on hunger in Africa and at home in observation of World Food Day, Oct. 16.

"Hunger exists in Centre County," says Chris Helwig, coordinator of the Food Bank of State College. "But to be responsive, we need open discussion about our resources and our programs. World Food Day observations are an important way concerned citizens and outreach organizations can exchange information."

Penn State faculty will join other specialists on world and domestic hunger in panel discussions following film presentations. "We centered our programs on hunger in Africa and on hunger at home so we can see both sides of the issue. While the two may seem quite different, they have many similarities — both relate to structural problems with the distribution of wealth," says Dr. Dorothy Blair, assistant professor of nutrition and one of the program coordinators.

"In the United States, everyone's supposed to make it. But we have urban poverty, rural poverty, and new poverty such as when a major employer moves out of the area," she says.

World Food Day is a chance for communities to learn about the resources of local organizations and discuss long-term strategies to cope with hunger at home as well as abroad.

Scheduled for 7 p.m. in the Keller Conference Center, programs Sunday, Oct. 12, Tuesday, Oct. 14 and Thursday, Oct. 14 are co-sponsored by the Food Bank of State College, the Area Christian Mission and Penn State's colleges of agriculture, education and human development. All programs are free and open to the public.

The program on Sunday evening, Oct. 12, features, "Cry Ethiopia, Cry," a powerful film on the political and social roots of famine in that country. It will be followed by a panel discussion on the current food situation in Africa.

Hunger at home is the topic of the program Tuesday, Oct. 14. Opening film clips of hunger in the United States will set the stage for an in-depth discussion of the crisis at home and in Pennsylvania in particular.

The third program will be devoted to a national videoconference, "The Dilemma of Hunger Amidst Plenty." National panelists will address the relationship of policy and practice in long-term agricultural development and the elimination of hunger. John Scali, ABC news correspondent and former U.S. ambassador to the United Nations will moderate.

This session will be followed by an open forum led by Dorothy Blair, assistant professor of nutrition and moderator, Catherine Lyons, educational consultant and graduate student in agricultural and extension education, Wayne Schutjer, head of the Department of Agricultural Economics and Rural Sociology, and Kenneth Wilkenson, professor of rural sociology.

Delaware 4-H'er Wins Bob Evans Quarter Horse

Jamal Wiggins, a veteran Delaware 4-H'er, was this year's winner of a Bob Evans colt.

NEWARK, Del. – Jamal Wiggins, a Delaware 4-H'er for nine years, is this year's winner of a Bob Evans quarter horse weanling. The 9-month-old colt, Bekays High Gusto, is a sorrel with a flaxen mane and tail. The weanling had already taken first place in a halter class before Jamal acquired him.

Each year the famous sausage-maker and restaurateur Bob Evans holds a Western-style roundup, complete with campfires and trail rides, on his 1,100-acre farm in Ohio. To this event he invites one lucky 4-H teenager from each of the 12 states where his products are sold. These teens, who are chosen on the basis of citizenship and involvement in 4-H, the youth education branch of Cooperative Extension, return home with their own quarter horse weanlings.

Gus, as Jamal calls the horse, was the teenager's first choice. "When I saw the weanlings at Bob Evans' farm, I knew I wanted the one with the flaxen mane and tail," says the youth. "Gus was the second horse down the chute, and I had picked number two. So he was mine."

Jamal has had a pony since he was 5 years old. But he has now outgrown it. The quarter horse is a larger animal that will enable the teenager to compete in area horse shows.

"I plan to train Gus as a Western pleasure horse and use him for breeding," says Jamal. "But until he's old enough to ride, I'll show him in halter classes at 4-H shows."

In addition to being a junior counselor at 4-H day camp in Newark, where he assisted in computer and photography classes, Jamal has worked on a breeder chick program, a pumpkin project and other agricultural programs. He has also served as an editor for the Barnes Owl, the Delaware 4-H State Camp newspaper. Jamal is also active in Boy Scouts and was elected vice-president of his class at Caravel Academy last year. The 10th grader is also a budding sculptor and musician.

South Mountain 4-H Community Club

Members of the South Mountain 4-H Community Club met recently in the Fontana U.C. Church for the year-end roundup.

Following a potluck supper, county agent Martha Gregory commended members for their outstanding projects and thanked leaders for their help and support. Sue Werner thanked parents for attending the roundup and for their support throughout the year.

Winners for the barbeque ticket sale were Eddie Royer, first; Kraig Sellers, second; and Angela Hoover, third. They each received gift certificates from Jim Dandy's Pizza.

A bowling party is scheduled for Oct. 31 at the Palmyra Bowling Alley. A Harvest Party, or progressive meal, will be held Saturday, Dec. 6.

Mylin Sisters Are Manheim Leadline Winners

BY JACK HUBLEY

MANHEIM — The woman had just picked up her dessert at the Manheim Fair's funnel cake stand when she noticed the flock of immaculately fitted sheep and their equally stunning owners parading around the fair's baseball diamond during the leadline competition. "Did you realize sheep were so beautiful?" she exclaimed to her husband.

Of all the fair season's livestock events, the leadline competition is the hands-down winner when it comes to head-turning pageantry. Unlike the type judging shows, both the animals' and their owners' appearance count in leadline. Participants at Manheim must wear outfits composed of at least 75 percent wool and are judged on their own appearance and poise, as well as the appearance and behavior of their sheep.

This year's event was a family affair, with Michelle Mylin and her sister Andrea winning the senior and junior divisions, respectively.

Michelle's yearling Hampshire ewe named Elizabeth was forced to do double duty in Tuesday night's show, since 10-year-old Andrea's four-legged partner was under the weather. A showring veteran in her own right, Elizabeth had taken top honors in the Elizabethtown Fair's sheep show before going on to be named supreme champion over all breeds of livestock.

This has been quite a year for 17-year-old Michelle, as well. The night before her leadline victory she was named the Queen of the Manheim Fair, and last Saturday she topped the leadline contest at Keystone International Livestock Exposition in Harrisburg.

Other placings in the leadline event were as follows:

Junior Division

2.Diane Musser, Elizabethtown 3.Arlisa Snavely, Lancaster 4.Joelle Boll, Mount Joy 5.Carrie Groff, Elizabethtown 6.Lorie Boll, Mount Joy

Senior Division

2.Lisa Sadler, Elizabethtown 3.Deb Martin, Conestoga 4.Ellen Lewis, Mount Joy 5.Carey Donches, Manheim 6.Tricia Musser, Elizabethtown

Twin Valley FFA

Twin Valley FFA members received numerous awards at the recent Reading Fair. Leading was the list of senior division winners was Rick Hicks, who placed first in the livestock judging contest. Rick also led the chapter's senior team to a first place award.

Other Twin Valley students placing in the senior livestock contest were Tom Morgan, fourth, Dwight Stoltzfus, seventh, Rich Slonaker, ninth, and Robert Bell, tenth. The junior division contest was won by Hamburg, with Twin Valley placing second. Bunny Hicks placed second, Mike Stoltzfus, fourth, Troy Gieringer, sixth, and Eric Marshall, tenth.

In dairy judging competition Scott Ritchie placed third in the junior division contest, Eric Marshall, fourth, and Troy Geringer, seventh. The junior division team placed second, as did the senior division team.

In senior division dairy judging Duane Stoltzfus placed second, Tom Morgan, fourth, Dwight Stoltzfus, fifth, Rich Slonacker, seventh, Bob Bell, eighth, Kim Brossman, ninth, and John Keenan, tenth.

The Twin Valley chapter exhibit "Not all Insects are out to Bug You" placed first. Individual student exhibits placed as follows — Bob Amey, first, Dawn McVaugh, second, Tom Morgan, second, Scott Risbon, third, and Drew Baldwin, third. Fourth went to Rich Slonacker, Denny Charron, and Bob Carlson. Ann Kline, placed fifth.

10 Fall Garden Tips

Don't put off until spring what you can do in the fall. Jeff Jabco, from the Delaware County Cooperative Extension Service, advises that fall is an ideal time for most garden activities. Here is a list of 10 fall garden activities to complete.

- Plant trees, shrubs, lawns, bulbs and herbaceous perennials. Fall is the best time for them to develop what they need to survive — roots.
- If it has not been done recently, have the soil in your garden, lawn and landscape beds tested.
- Apply the amounts of lime and fertilizer recommended, based on test results.
- If needed, apply broadleaved weed killers to your lawn.
- Water shallow rooted plants, especially broadleaved evergreens, following dry spells of 10 days or more.
- Apply mulches where needed around roses, landscape beds, strawberries and other herbaceous perennials.
- Start a compost pile.
- Prepare the garden for spring — incorporate lime, phosphorus, and compost organic matter.
- If rabbits or rodents have damaged plants in the past, provide protection for susceptible varieties.
- Take advantage of the beautiful weather to build or renovate a fence, walk, or patio.

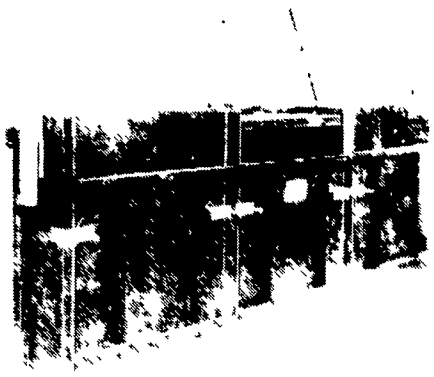
MARYLAND TOBACCO



"The Art of Baling Becomes A Reality" over the course of history. Maryland tobacco has found its way to market in a variety of forms. From barrels to burlap sheets, to tied leaves. Now, a new method has been designed which makes packed tobacco more manageable.

A baling box machine can be used which puts up tobacco in 22 inch bales that weigh 75 to 80 lbs. These can easily be stacked or stored.

The basic machine is a three-bin model where tobacco is laid in according to grade. The tobacco is compressed into bales by use of an hydraulic cylinder powered by air. A jack type system can be used for those who may not have electric available. After the bale is compressed, it must be tied with cotton twine.

The use of the three-bin press allows more tabacco to be processed in less time.

For more information and details on these new tobacco press units - Call LANCASTER SILO CO., INC. We have units in stock for sale.

OH! OH!
The cows are falling.
How do you know?
Farmer Brown said so.

How do you know Farmer Brown?
I saw it with my eyes.
I heard it with my ears.
And there is less milk in the pail.
Let's go ask the wise old owl.
The owl thought for a moment.
"Call the Scabbler Man", he said.
"He can fix the barn for you, and You'll find more milk in the pail!"

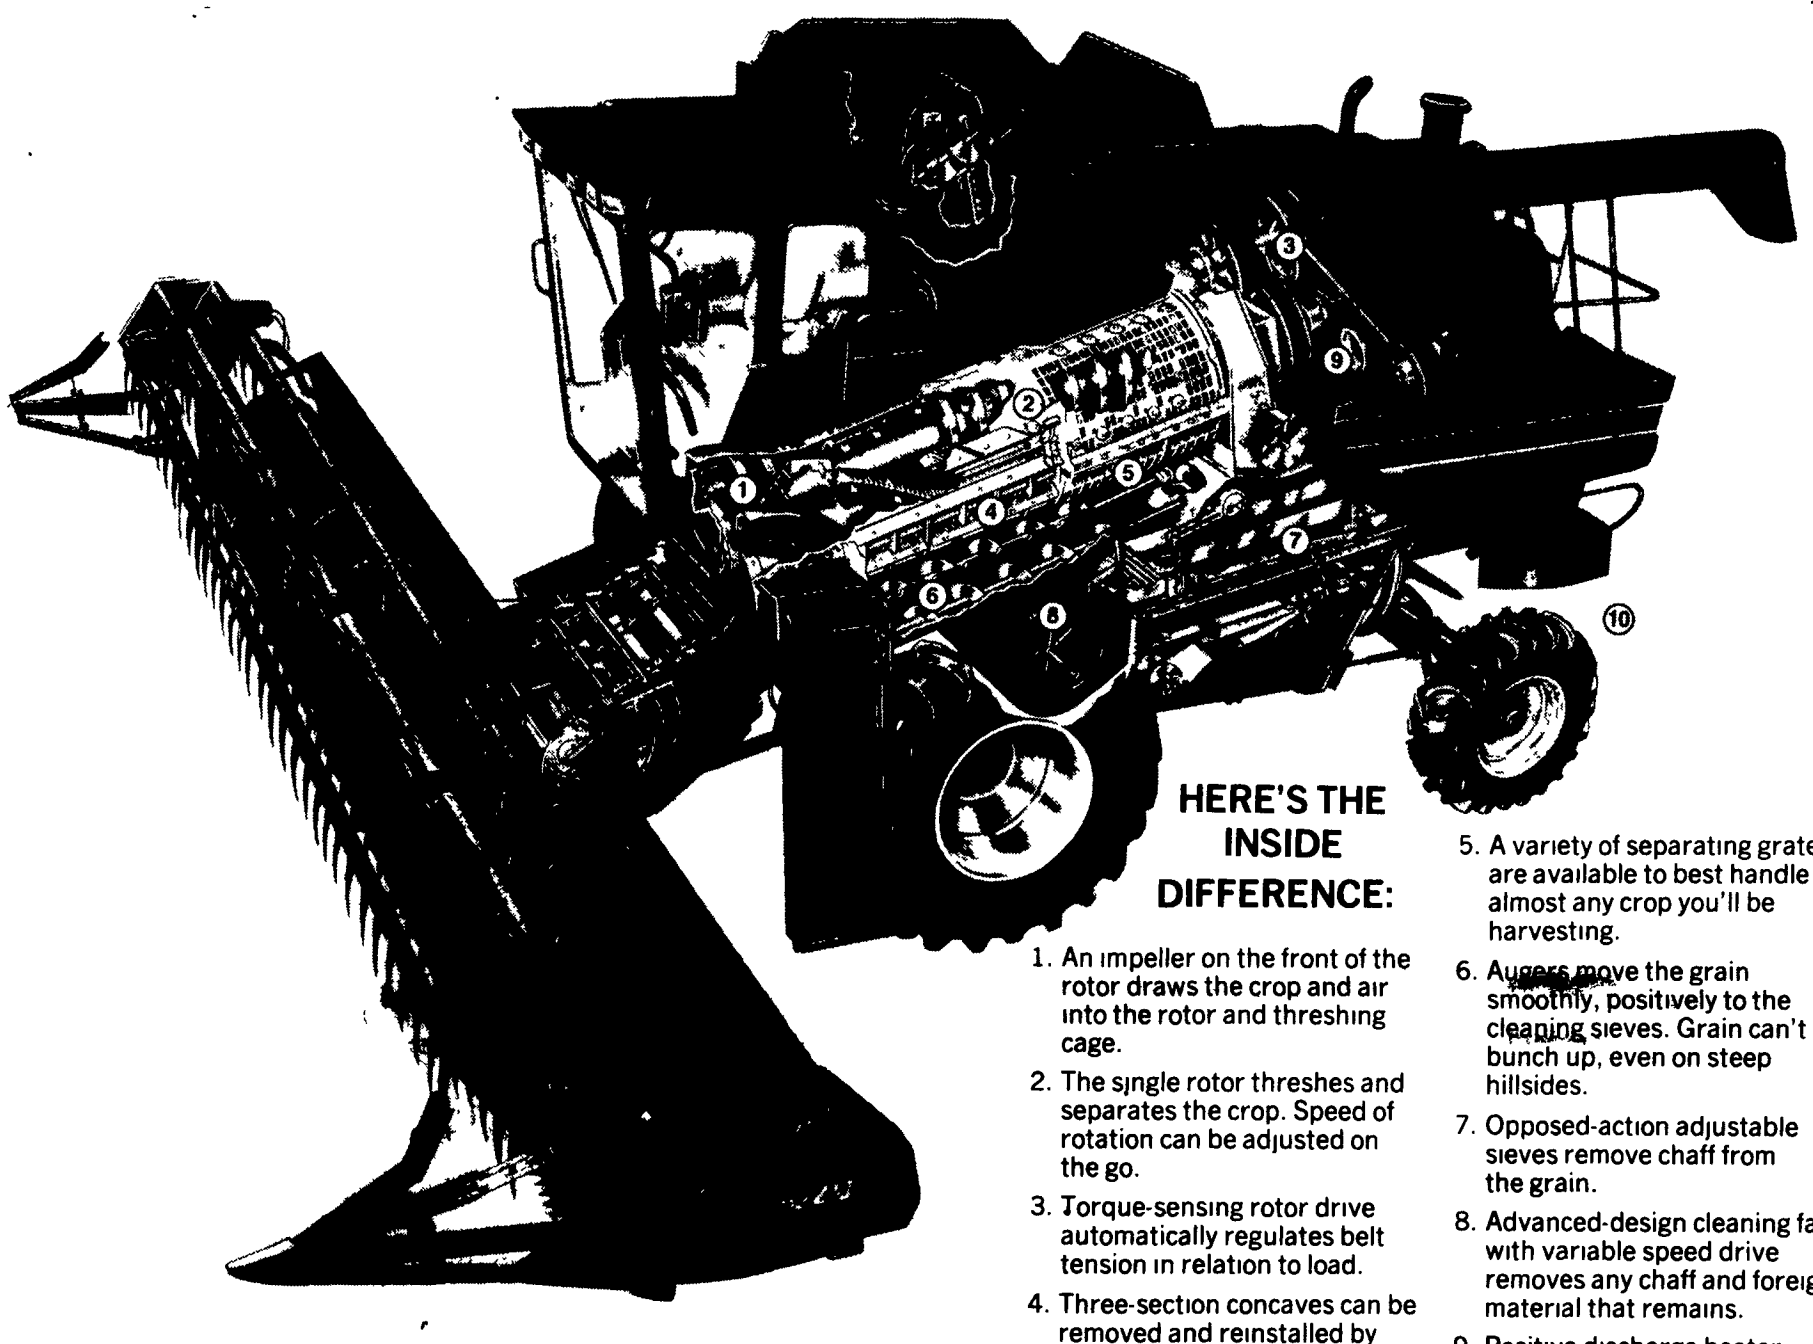
Case IH Axial-Flow Combine
DIFFERENT and BETTER from the inside out



HERE'S THE INSIDE DIFFERENCE:

1. An impeller on the front of the rotor draws the crop and air into the rotor and threshing cage.
2. The single rotor threshes and separates the crop. Speed of rotation can be adjusted on the go.
3. Torque-sensing rotor drive automatically regulates belt tension in relation to load.
4. Three-section concaves can be removed and reinstalled by one man in less than 30 minutes. Small-wire and large-wire concaves are available to match different crops. Clearance is easily adjusted with a ratchet handle.
5. A variety of separating grates are available to best handle almost any crop you'll be harvesting.
6. Augers move the grain smoothly, positively to the cleaning sieves. Grain can't bunch up, even on steep hillsides.
7. Opposed-action adjustable sieves remove chaff from the grain.
8. Advanced-design cleaning fan with variable speed drive removes any chaff and foreign material that remains.
9. Positive discharge beater propels straw rearward to the straw spreaders. (Straw chopper is optional.)
10. Wide spread twin-rotor straw spreaders distribute discharge material uniformly and can be removed in seconds for windrowing material.

Why Axial-Flow is superior. On conventional combines, the grain passes between the cylinder and concave only once. Consequently, the threshing action is severe. But with Axial-Flow, grain is threshed several times — repeatedly, but gently — as it spirals around the single, large diameter rotor and passes through the threshing cage. Multiple threshing plus gentle threshing results in less cracked grain, less dockage at the elevator and top price for every bushel.

Centrifugal force replaces straw walkers. Axial-Flow eliminates the need for straw walkers — a substantial source of grain loss with conventional combines. Consequently, the more grain you grow, the more grain you'll save with the more efficient Axial-Flow system.

SPECIAL OCTOBER PROGRAMS ON NEW COMBINES:

1. 8.8% A.P.R. Financing or
2. No Interest Until 9/1/87 or
3. Extra Cash Discounts

Adams Co. Celebrates Autumn With National Apple Harvest Festival

BY GINGER SECRIST MYERS
Adams County Correspondent

ARENDTSVILLE — It is once again time for Johnny Appleseed and apple butter, apple pancakes, cider and apple pie. It's time for the 22nd National Apple Harvest Festival held the first and second weekends in October at the South Mountain Fairgrounds just outside of Arendtsville.

The festival is sponsored by the Upper Adams Jaycees, who use the proceeds from the event for the maintenance of the Oakside Park. The remainder of the funds is given to local charities such as the Muscular Dystrophy Association and the United Way.

This popular event draws as many as 40,000 spectators each weekend. It features over 200 arts and crafts booths, antique engines, tractors, and car displays, games and contests for all ages, and of course, food.

One of the main features of the festival is the apple butter boil stand sponsored by the Upper Adams Jaycees. Here the Jaycees sell both sweetened and unsweetened apple butter in 28-ounce jars. They also sell locally baked loaves of Italian bread.

Apple Butter Boil co-chairmen Rick Cullison, Biglerville, and Scott Starner, Peach Glen, estimate they will sell over 12,000 jars of apple butter and 600 loaves of bread during the four days of the festival. They noted that the apple butter stand is one of the original booths at the festival and is the best profit maker of the event.

Ruth Dunlop, Biglerville, who has worked in the booth since her youth, now brings her own youngsters along to help stick labels on jars and rank the full jars on the table. Dunlop explained that the apple butter is made locally, jarred, and then brought to the fairgrounds. Since it takes 18 hours to boil down apple butter as we know it, a simulated display of cooking apple butter is done at the booth by mixing some of the apple butter with more cider in a black kettle and then stirring it over an open fire.

The ingredients in their apple butter are all natural. It contains apples, cider, cinnamon, nutmeg, cloves, and sugar. Dunlop states that in the last two years there has been a dramatic increase in their demand for the unsweetened apple butter. This contains absolutely no sugar and has a more tart flavor.

Another popular character at the festival is Johnny Appleseed, the patron saint of the apple tree. Portrayed by Anthony Helman, Bendersville, Johnny Appleseed has three showings daily which feature apple bobbing, a pie eating contest, and sack races. Helman divides the participants by age groups and everyone comes out a winner.

These hungry contestants are trying to eat an entire apple pie without using their hands.

The National Apple Harvest Festival is a complement to the Adams County Apple Blossom Festival held here each year on the first weekend in May. To over 700 volunteers and 20-plus civic groups, the festival represents the culmination of a year's worth of planning. To the 122 commercial growers in Adams County, it is the celebration of a harvest of 300 million pounds of apple from about 15,000 acres each year. The apple industry brings $27.5 million worth of commerce into the county annually.

— Corn picking is in full swing over Lancaster County at the moment, with favorable weather spurring activity in this line. Most corn crops are past the danger spot where cold weather is concerned, with very little damage reported from Tuesday night's low

A word of warning is passed along by County Agent Max M. Smith who points out first the need for safety — and already several corn picker casualties have been reported in the area — and corn in cribs must be watched carefully to prevent mold.

— For the third time in the same family, the Future Farmers of America next week in Kansas City will confer upon James A. Hess the degree of American Farmer.

— Production of red meats in slaughter plants of Pennsylvania during July totaled nearly 69 million pounds, dressed weight, according to surveys by the State Department of Agriculture.

— Because of too much rain, many central and western Pennsylvania dairy farmers have been unable to make sufficient hay, and some sales of livestock are being made, the State Department of Agriculture declared today.

— From Lititz R3, Mrs. Dales L. Landis writes: Dear Folks of Lancaster Farming: We are getting your paper and think it is the best good little farm paper you can lay your hands on. I especially enjoy the recipes, since I am a Farmer's Wife and love to cook and bake. I am making a scrapbook of a lot of the recipes. I love to try new recipes.

— In a move to assist Pennsylvania farmers and consumers, Governor George M. Leader Monday announced plans for the start of a program of promotion for Pennsylvania farm foods.

— Intensive preparations for the 1957 Pennsylvania Farm Show next Jan. 14-18 started last week at the annual fall meeting of the Farm Show Committee composed of representatives of 52 statewide farm and allied organizations.

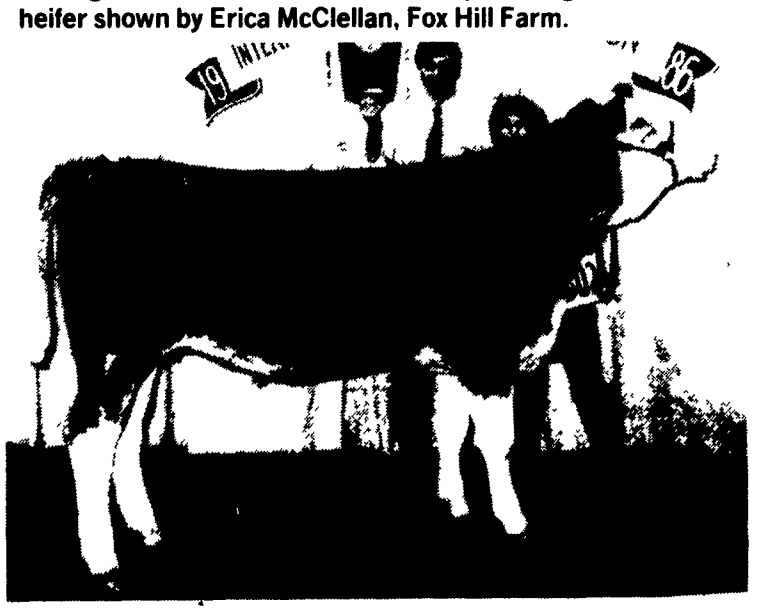
Pennsylvania, Maryland Share Junior Breeding Cattle Honors

Judge Ron Bolze bestowed champion Angus honors on heifer shown by Erica McClellan, Fox Hill Farm.



Simmental champion was shown by Middletown's Sally Messick.

BY JACK HUBLEY

HARRISBURG — Curly-haired Erica McClellan might be a spritely slip of a cowgirl, but she's always a heavyweight in beef competition.

That fact was reaffirmed at the Keystone International Livestock Expo last Saturday when the 12-year-old daughter of Dr. Michael McClellan and Mr. and Mrs. Brian Jordan took grand champion honors in the junior Angus show. Brian and Judith Jordan are the owners of Fox Hill Farm, Kennett Square.

Stealing the show is nothing new for Erica's heifer, Lady Evelyn, who won her class at this year's National Junior Angus Show. An Independence daughter, the heifer was purchased at the Cow Power Sale in Ghent, New York last year.

Overall, the Fox Hill family had a banner day, with Erica's brother, Matthew, taking a first-in-class ribbon with his heifer, Princess, and their brother, Chris Jordan, taking bred-and-owned honors with his heifer named Babe.

At reserve in the Angus show was a Pine Drive Big Sky daughter owned by Nancy Secrest, 19, daughter of James and Carol Secrest of Caldwell, Ohio. The female was also the bred-and-owned champion at the Ohio Angus Preview Show.

Charolais

For his champion in the Charolais show, judge Ron Bolze of Ohio State University selected a February heifer shown by Amy Sherman of Abbottstown. "I like it when they pick the younger ones," beamed the daughter of Charles and Karol Sherman. Her heifer named Gina is a Silver Creek Summit daughter that was reserve champion at the York Fair last month.

Champion Charolais heifer was shown by Amy Sherman, Abbottstown.

The reserve Charolais heifer was shown by Kirk Fisher, son of Steve and Margie Fisher of Oley. His heifer was homebred and sired by Silver Creek High Rise, last year's national champion bull. Fisher's heifer was champion at the Eastern National Livestock Show in Maryland last week.

Polled Hereford

The Mullinix brothers from Woodbine, New Jersey took both champion and reserve honors in this show. In his Keystone debut, Chris, 11, showed the champion, a GK Transtar daughter out of one of the 4-H'ers own cows. Before winning at KILE, the heifer was also named champion at the Maryland State Fair.

Chris' brother, Randy, 9, showed the reserve champion, a "Stick" daughter. The brothers are the sons of Gene and Charlotte Mullinix.

Simmental

An April heifer named Vickie went all the way to the top for Sally Messick of Middletown in the Simmental show. The heifer was sired by Signal and is out of an Extra Stretch cow. The daughter of Mylin and Doris Messick, Sally showed her heifer at last year's Farm Show, where she placed first in her class.

John Myers of Dallastown showed the reserve champion Simmental sired by Generation III, a national champion Sim-

Shorthorn

David Bowman of West Friendship, Maryland, continued his winning streak with his Shorthorn female. "She's won everywhere we've had her," noted the 19-year-old son of George and Joan Bowman. A Rexlane Irish daughter, the homebred heifer was also champion of the junior show at the Maryland State Fair.

John Allen of Saxonburg, Pa., took reserve Shorthorn honors with his heifer, Polly Maid. The son of John and Kathy Allen, John bought his winner from Sutherland Shorthorns in Kentucky. She was also grand champion at the state Shorthorn show in both the junior and open divisions.

Chianina

Leigh Hitz scored a direct hit in the Chianina show with Bambi, a Walco Kentucky Colonel daughter that she bought from Walco Farms in Kentucky. This heifer placed first in her class at the Northeast Region Chianina Show in York this year.

Another Kentucky Colonel daughter shown by Mike Messick took reserve Chianina honors. This female also placed first in class at the Northeast show.

Following are the junior show placings.

West Virginia Family Wraps Up Steer Show

BY JACK HUBLEY

HARRISBURG — Although Doug Goodwin came north of the Mason-Dixon line to compete in Saturday's junior steer show at the Keystone International, he found the stiffest competition coming from his brother rather than the host state.

By show's end, Doug, 15, and his brother, Sean, 10, of Lewisburg, West Virginia, had taken grand and reserve honors with two of their heavyweight entries. The young cattlemen are the sons of Bill and Janet Goodwin.

Doug's winning steer was a 1,210-pound entry that he bought in Ohio. A class winner in the West Virginia State Fair, the steer was sired by the Chianina bull, Black Power Play, out of a Limousin-Angus cow.

Sean showed another Black Power Play son, weighing 25 pounds more than the champion, to the reserve spot. Although this was Sean's second year of 4-H competition, he actually began showing at age 7 in the open shows. "He won his class the first time out," recalls his father. The early experience was evidently a good investment, since the following year he exhibited the champion Angus heifer at the West Virginia State Fair.

The Goodwins own a 200-acre farm where they raise about 45 Angus and Chianina cows. They exhibit cattle in about 20 shows a year and sell club calves to other junior exhibitors. Following are results of the show, placed by Ron Bolze, Ohio State University's beef specialist.

PDA Seeks Century Farm Nominations

LANCASTER — Lancaster County Extension Agent Jay Irwin has announced that applications for Lancaster County Century Farm nominations are still being accepted by the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture.

"To qualify as a Century Farm, the farm must have been owned by the same family for 100 consecutive years," said Irwin. "A family member must currently live on the farm," he added, "and the farm must consist of at least 10 acres of the original holding, or gross over $1,000 annually from the sale of farm products."

Lancaster County currently has 84 registered Century Farms. One hundred fifty Century Farms have been recognized around the commonwealth during 1985, bringing the state's total to 1,052.

Century Farm information and applications may be obtained from the Lancaster County Extension Service, 1383 Arcadia Road, Room 1, Lancaster, PA 17601, or from the Department of Agriculture, Press Office, 2301 North Cameron Street, Harrisburg, PA 17110.

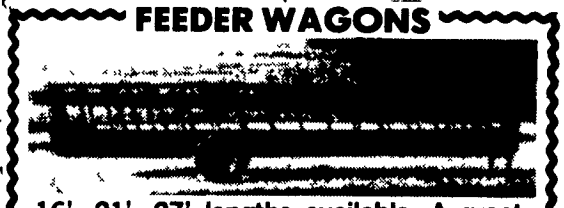
FEEDER WAGONS


16', 21', 27' lengths available. A great feature for feeding cattle in meadows or in feed lots. Can be used for feeding round bales.
If old gas tanks are used for feeder wagon bottoms, they should be sand blasted. If not, the gas and rust may result in sick cattle or even death. Be safe and buy from us as ours are sand blasted before being painted.

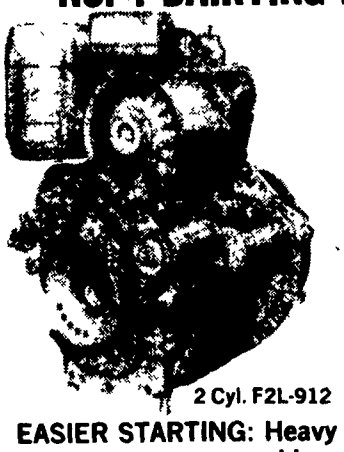
NO. 1 DAIRYING DIESEL



KHD DEUTZ

Since 1968 F2L-912 diesels have earned the reputation as the most reliable diesel. Don't settle for less.

EASIER STARTING: Heavy flywheel provides easy starting. No electric heater plugs.

QUIETER: Runs quieter than most water cooled diesels. Very quiet exhaust.

New Rating
26.5 HP @ 1800 RPM
20.0 HP @ 1500 RPM

Fewer repair parts than comparable three-cylinder diesels - cheaper to overhaul. It has direct injection, lube oil cooling, and oil cooled pistons. This engine has proven to survive the extreme heat of a heavy load in a small engine house better than any other engine.

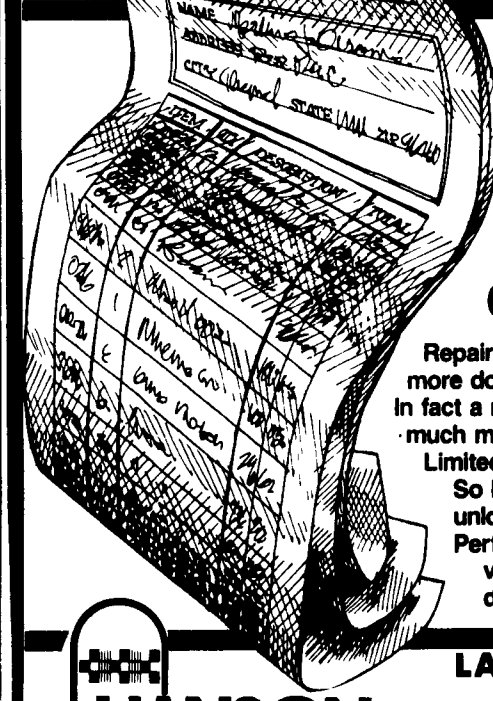
SILO UNLOADER REPAIR BILL
Don't get clipped.



Repairing that old unloader may not be your wisest choice...

- Full 5" or 6" smooth, concrete wall with steel reinforcing in the center for greater strength and protection from acid and weather
- Horizontal and vertical steel that is 60,000 PSI This gives greater reinforcing strength than horizontal steel only
- Smooth, round walls for greater strength, easier flow of corn, and acid resistance for many years of service
- Outside ladder is hot dipped galvanized and cast directly in the wall
- Ladder enclosed with safety cage and filling platform
- Safety railing installed on poured concrete roof
- Center fill chute
- Galvanized or vinyl fill chute
- Seal system opens and closes from the ground

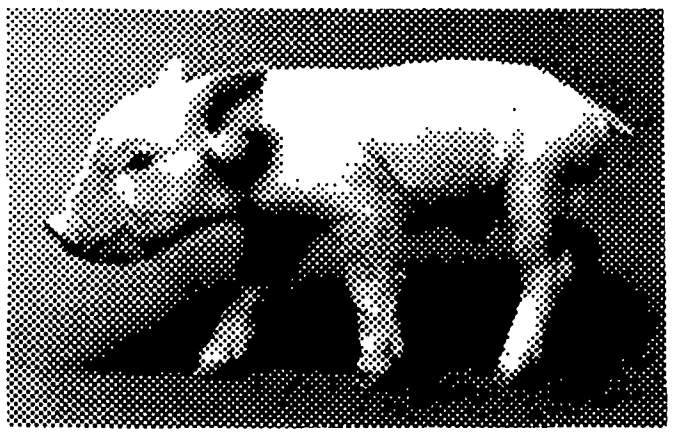
RUNT HUNT



WANTED:

Your Worthless Runts!

Do you... Have runts? Wean early? Have orphaned pigs? We're aiming to hunt down profit-robbing runts and turn 'em into good-doing hogs with new CRATE-MATE, "The Sow Replacer."

CRATE-MATE is scientifically blended to promote fast growth by actually helping the baby pig use the nutrients in the ration more efficiently. Try it for your runts and early weaned pigs. You'll see bigger, healthier pigs in your nursery faster. So you can increase production per sow unit for greater profit opportunities.

REWARD!

Just $3.50 worth of CRATE-MATE can turn an otherwise worthless runt into a real pig! That's not much to invest to increase the profitability of your business. So if you're in pursuit of bigger profits, join the hunt, and declare open season on scrawny runts with CRATE-MATE.

Sheiss Tops Junior Barrow Show

Beam Crossbred Barrow Is KILE Grand Champion

BY JACK HUBLEY

HARRISBURG — The ladder to success has plenty of hard-won rungs if you happen to be a competitor in the Keystone International's on-foot barrow show. First your hog wins his weight class, then he competes for the breed championship, and third, he has to defeat all other breeds for the open show title. He's not finished yet, though.

KILE also has a junior barrow show, and, in the final round, the junior and open show champions square off for the grand championship of the overall show.

Nelson Beam was one happy hog driver on Monday after running the competition gauntlet and finding himself at the top of the ladder. "I was really surprised," said the owner of the grand champion, a Hampshire-sired crossbred barrow that weighed in at 227 pounds. This was only the second year of KILE competition for Beam, who owns the Elverson-based Cedar Meadows Swine in partnership with his father, Omar Beam.

The show's top barrow was sired by the boar that sired the reserve champion Farm Show barrow two years ago. "He's done real well for us," said Beam.

For reserve grand champion honors, judge Wayne Yake of Purdue's Indiana Swine Test Station, stayed with a theme and went with the crossbred barrow that topped the junior show on Sunday. The winning junior barrow was shown by Eric Sheiss, 14, son of Daryl and Penny Sheiss of Chambersburg.

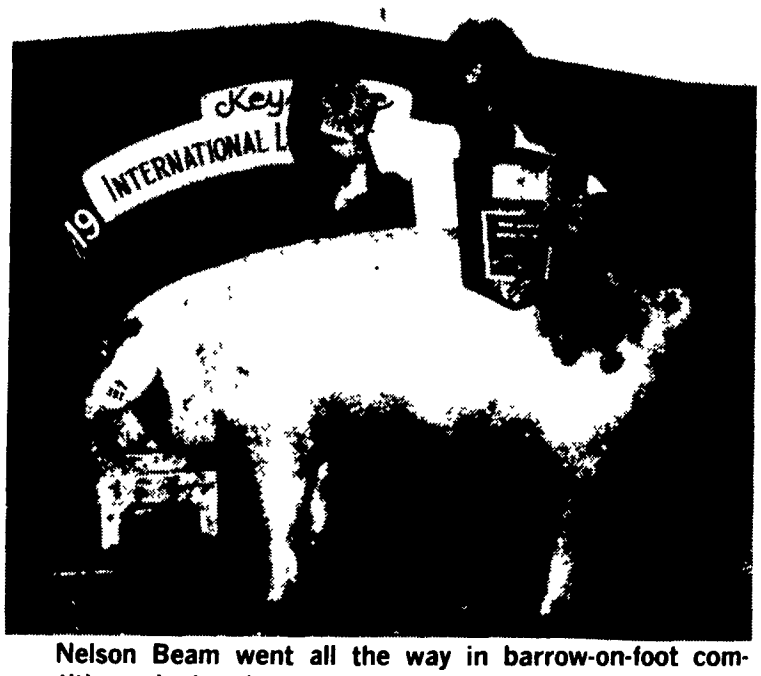
Bred at the family's farrow-to-finish operation, the top junior barrow was a Hampshire-Yorkshire cross that weighed 221 pounds.

Unlike Nelson Beam, Sheiss is no newcomer to the KILE winners circle, having won three junior barrow championships and three reserve overall titles.

Right behind Sheiss in the junior barrow show was Monica Feeser, daughter of Frank and Julie Feeser of Taneytown Maryland. The 10-year-old 4-H'er had plenty of momentum going into the KILE show, after showing the champion barrow at the Eastern National Livestock Show in Maryland only last week.

Feeser's reserve champion junior barrow was a homebred York-Hamp cross bred at the family's 200-sow seedstock operation.

At reserve in the open barrow show was a barrow shown by Penn State University. Following are the placings in the junior and open shows.



Nelson Beam went all the way in barrow-on-foot competition, winning the open show with his crossbred pig, then going on to take the overall title.

Another crossbred entry, this one shown by Eric Sheiss, won the junior barrow show and took reserve overall honors.

Monica Feeser showed reserve champion barrow in junior show.

Penn State Extension Sheep Specialist

Keystone Shepherds' Symposium

How can I increase my lambing percentage? When do I need a veterinarian? What kind of grasses and forages should I be producing? What are the best sheep fences and handling facilities for a working sheep operation?

A team of experienced sheep husbandrymen from the nationally recognized Pipestone Sheep Project, Pipestone, Minnesota, will be answering these questions and more at the Keystone Shepherds' Symposium on Dec. 19 and 20, at the Ramada Inn, Somerset.

Mike Caskey, project coordinator, will start off the Friday session on management, breeding and selection principles for increasing pounds of lamb marketed per ewe.

Should you feel a bit rusty in the area of lambing–and particularly how to proceed when confronted with a difficult parturition–plan to hear Dr. G.F. Kennedy discuss some basic techniques for assisting a lambing ewe.

Livestock producers looking at sheep production as an alternative enterprise will be interested in information presented through computer programs designed to compare present production levels to projected production levels of lamb and wool.

What factors can be revealed that make one sheep operation more successful than another? Answers to this important question will be addressed by two very successful sheep producers: Jonathan May of Timberville, Virginia, and Ian Cunningham of Pipestone, Minnesota. Both producers own and manage large commercial sheep operations.

Dr. Kennedy will also be discussing flock health, touching on control and treatment measures for some of the more prevalent health problems such as mastitis, abortions, foot rot and internal parasites.

The featured speaker for Friday evening will be Ron Guenther, superintendent of Ohio State University's sheep program. He will discuss where the industry should be headed in purebred sheep production. A symposium program and registration details are available from your county extension office.

SID Announces Revisions

The Sheep Industry Development Program of the American Sheep Producers Council has recently revised the Marketing, Management and Nutrition chapters of the Sheepman's Production Handbook. The revised chapters themselves are available for $4.50. They are automatically included when the handbook is ordered at a cost of $22.50.

Also available is a comprehensive report on farm flock budgets typically used by producers, bankers and others when projecting profit opportunities for sheep operations. Cost of the report is 25 cents. For information on these publications write SID, 200 Clayton St., Denver, CO, 80206. Telephone: 303-399-8130.

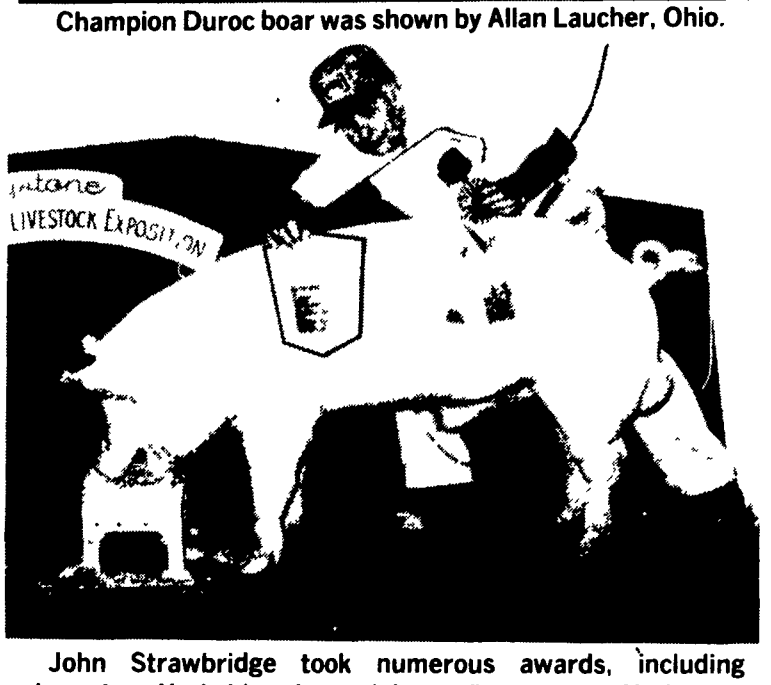
KILE Hosts National Duroc Show

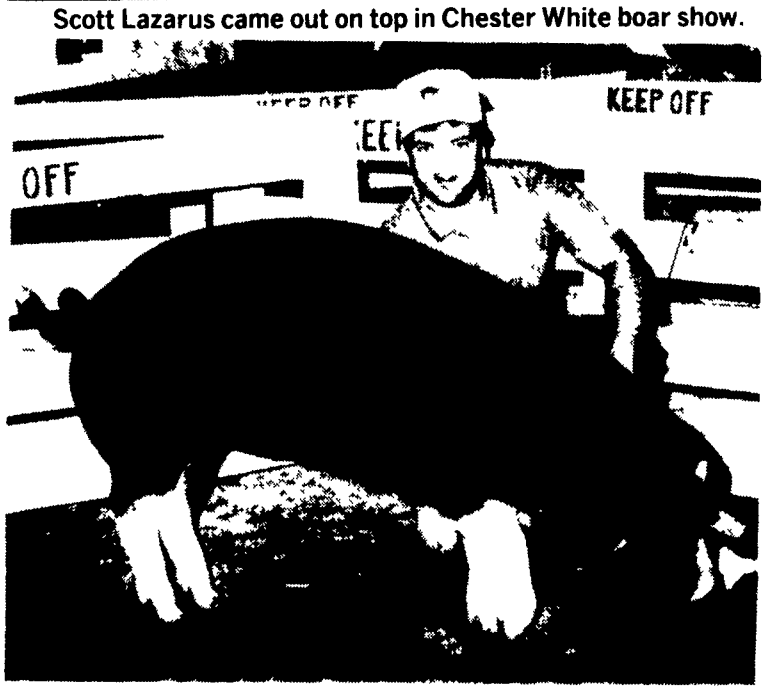
7 Breeds Vie For Top Honors In Breeding Swine Show

Champion Duroc boar was shown by Allan Laucher, Ohio.



John Strawbridge took numerous awards, including champion Yorkshire boar (pictured), reserve York gilt, reserve Hamp boar and gilt and premier Hamp and York exhibitor.

Scott Lazarus came out on top in Chester White boar show.



Jeff Wippel, Ohio, had champion Poland China gilt.

BY JACK HUBLEY

HARRISBURG — Each year the Keystone International Livestock Exposition hosts a national-level show in conjunction with its regular breeding swine competitions. This year it was the Duroc breed's turn, and nearly 40 exhibitors from eight states all pitched in to make this a highly competitive event.

Ohio Durocs turned out to be too strong for the host state's entries, shouldering out all other states as well for both champion boar and gilt honors. In fact, the top two entries actually arrived at the Farm Show Complex in the same trailer.

Exhibiting the grand champion Duroc boar was Allan Laucher, a Duroc breeder from Prospect, Ohio. "I thought he'd be very competitive," said Laucher of his homebred March boar. One of the boar's littermate gilts placed first at the Ohio State Fair this year.

Although Laucher normally attends midwestern shows, this was his first time in a Pennsylvania showring. "We'll keep coming," he smiled after topping the 50-head boar show.

For his grand champion gilt, judge Clyde Shaffer of Albany, Indiana, selected a homebred entry shown by Cy Prettyman of Morral, Ohio. Prettyman, an Ohio State freshman, trailered his pigs to Pennsylvania with fellow swine breeder Allan Laucher, who lives nearby.

"I was real pleased," said the Animal Science major, adding that his parents, Joe and Janet Prettyman, were excited about the win. "They didn't want me to come because I was going to miss school," he said.

This was the first time since 1974 that Jack Rodibaugh of Rensselaer, Indiana, came to KILE, and his performance in the Duroc show proves that he hasn't lost his touch. Rodibaugh returned to the Midwest with both reserve champion Duroc boar and gilt rosettes, as well as premier exhibitor honors.

"This year we really hit with the red ones," said Rodibaugh, who raises Chesters, Hamps and Yorks, as well. Other major victories for Rodibaugh this year included reserve grand boar at the Indiana State Fair and reserve Duroc boar at the National Barrow Show in Austin, Texas.

Pennsylvania exhibitors were back in the spotlight in the Yorkshire show, with perennial winner John Strawbridge coming out on top in the boar show, and Stewartstown's Mark Rehman winning the gilt competition.

A familiar face at the Keystone, John Strawbridge began campaigning show hogs in 1939, and has been coming to KILE every year since the show began three decades ago. This year Strawbridge took top honors with a Yorkshire boar that was also the York Fair's champion and the Maryland State Fair's reserve boar.

The champion York gilt was a homebred entry owned by Mark Rehman. "I was really kind of surprised," said Rehman after the show. "It's been a long time since I had a grand champion." This was the third year of KILE competition for Rehman, who showed the reserve champion gilt in 1984.

The Berkshire Show belonged to Lebanon's Dennis Grumbine, who took grand champion and reserve honors in the gilt and boar shows with a pen of four homebred littermates. These four pigs were out of the same dam as the Farm Show's champion Berkshire. "We're pretty proud of them," said Grumbine, who was obviously also proud of his sons, Daryl and Darren, who, he pointed out,

York County's Mark Rehman had champion Yorkshire gilt.

Onduline®

The Lifetime Roofing

If you're not sure what it is, or where to find it....

ASK THE EXPERTS!

THERE'S NO OTHER ROOFING MATERIAL LIKE IT.

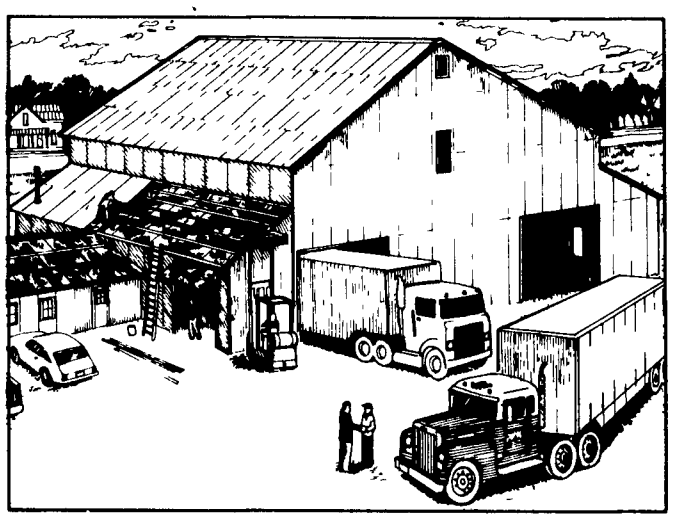
Onduline's very construction makes it different. And makes it a superior roofing and siding material at the same time.

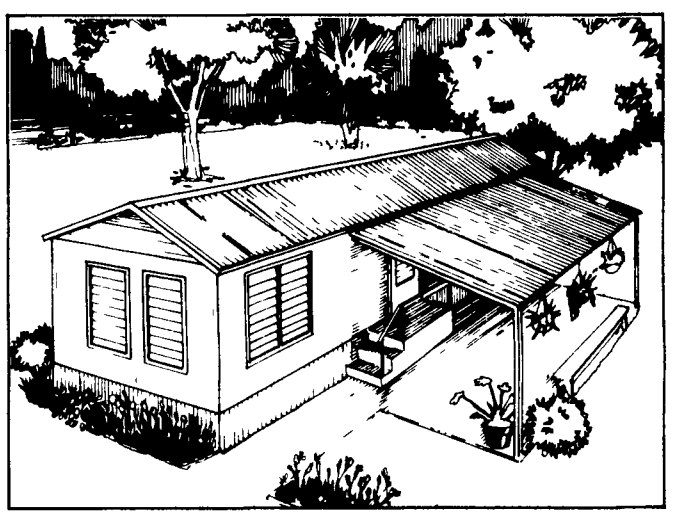
Its corrugated design enables it to be both lightweight and strong.

While its total asphalt impregnation means it outlasts most other roofing. Including metal.

But you don't have to take our word that Onduline is tough. It's met rigid building codes throughout the country.

And it's been in successful use on roofs all over the world for nearly 40 years.





EASY INSTALLATION ISN'T THE ONLY REASON TO USE ONDULINE.

The roof renewed with Onduline will have something it didn't have before.

Dead air space.

This means significantly better insulation because dead air space acts as a barrier to heat and cold transfer.

So in the winter, an Onduline-covered building is likely to be warmer. And in summer, cooler.

Of course, what makes Onduline such a good reroofing material is how long it lasts.

And that's the real reason why, above all, Onduline is a better roofing.

BUSINESS NEWS...

Ford Unveils Subsidiary Name

WOODLANDS, Texas — Ford Tractor Operations will become Ford New Holland, Inc., a Ford Motor Company subsidiary, on Jan. 1. The new name reflects the acquisition this year by Ford of the New Holland agricultural-equipment business from Sperry Corporation.

"The joining of Ford Tractor and New Holland produces an organization of tremendous strength and resources," said Ed Hasel general sales manager for North American Sales Operations. "It's a resilient organization that's in this business for the long haul."

The New Holland purchase was very important, Hasel said, because Ford Tractor has become the last major company specializing in tractors only. Even for the world's number two tractor maker, "In today's depressed and fiercely competitive market, it was clear that the future was limited for any single-line company," he said.

New Holland, like Ford Tractor, operates in more than 100 countries. In North America, it leads the market in balers, forage equipment, mower-conditioners, grinder-mixers, manure spreaders, bale wagons, hay rakes and mowers.

Ford and New Holland together have 18,000 employees worldwide and combined annual sales of $2 billion.

Hasel said continuous improvements in Ford New Holland's products and the way it conducts its business will "power our drive for leadership in every field that we're in" — agricultural and industrial tractors, farm machinery, and diesel engines for trucks as well as traditional agricultural applications.

Hasel spoke at a news conference held jointly with Ford Truck Operations and Ford Division at The Woodlands Inn and Conference Center in The Woodlands, Texas, a suburb of Houston. The 1987 line of Ford pickup trucks was introduced at the news conference.

Steiger Wildcat is second member of company's under-200 hp tractor series.

Steiger 1000-Series Tractors Offer Steerable Front Axle

FARGO, ND — Steiger Tractor Inc. has introduced its second four-wheel-drive tractor in the under-200-PTO horsepower class. Production begins this month on the new 190 PTO HP Wildcat 1000.

With the Wildcat, Steiger has added its sixth model to the 1000 Series. Those six tractors share three frames and utilize many common components for increased manufacturing efficiencies and parts commonality. The Wildcat shares the frame and drive train with the 168 PTO HP Puma 1000.

The Wildcat and Puma offer an option that is unique in the four-wheel-drive industry: a steerable front axle.

"On the Wildcat and Puma, we've taken four-inch diameter bar axles and inboard planetary gears and designed this axle system so an operator can turn these tractors six degrees to the right or left," said Dallas Lien, Steiger vice president of engineering.

Lien explained there are numerous advantages to such a configuration. First, because the axle is steerable, both the four-wheel-drive Puma and Wildcat can work in row crops with the agility of a two wheeler, but with the traction advantages of a real four-wheel-drive. Second, the combination of a steerable front axle and Steiger's time-tested articulation provides the Wildcat and Puma with a 12.8 foot turning radius—the shortest turning radius of any two-wheel-drive-front-assist or four-wheel-drive tractor in their class. Third, infinite tread settings from 60 to 130 inches are standard on the Wildcat and Puma because their bar axles are incorporated with inboard planetary gears.

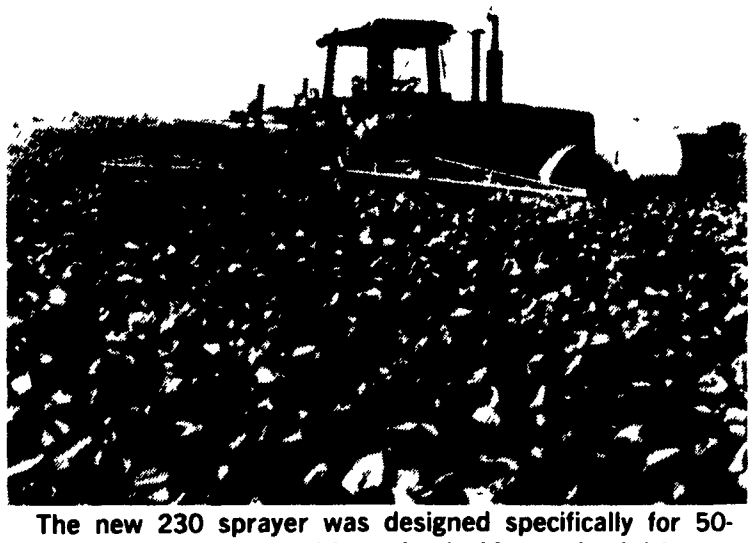
Sprayer From John Deere

MOLINE, Ill. — John Deere will soon offer a 350-gallon sprayer designed specifically for 50-series row-crop tractors equipped with mechanical front-wheel drive.

The 230 sprayer can be used with a boom or a row-crop cultivator for post-emerge fertilizer and herbicide applications in young crops, and with a disk, a mulch finisher, or a planter for pre-emerge herbicide application.

An optional transfer control bundle allows the 230 to be used as a nurse tank for rear-mounted or pull-type sprayers, such as the 250 SpraCart. The addition of 350 gallons — for total tank capacity of 850 gallons — means the operator can reduce refilling trips and stay in the field longer. And the 230 uses the same solution controls as the 250, making the nurse tank application an economical choice.

The tractor-mounted 230 sprayer is for MFWD-equipped 4050, 4250, 4450, 4650 and 4850 John Deere tractors. It will be available in January.



The new 230 sprayer was designed specifically for 50-series row crop tractors with mechanical front-wheel-drive.

Johnson Joins York Farm Credit

YORK — Cary L. Johnson has been named to the position of farm records and tax specialist for the York Farm Credit Service, according to Duane G. Bosler, vice president.

The Farm Records and Tax Service is provided to farmers, and agribusinesses in South Central Pennsylvania. Since 1985, the farm records and tax service needs of farmers previously served by the Agway Profile Records and Tax Service have been met by the York Farm Credit Service.

Johnson, a native of Michigan was previously employed by Northern Michigan Farm Credit Service, where she served as farm records and tax specialist. She is currently attending Millersville College.

The basis that the Records and Tax Service offers is the Agrifax system, which is a time proven, user oriented, computer based system that is used by approximately 18,000 farmers across the nation. Bosler noted that the Agrifax system being used by York Farm Credit can be used with a farmer's own computer or information can be provided to Farm Credit's computer for processing, which provides useful monthly reports for making today's critical farm management decisions.

Another record keeping option available is the manual system, which features quarterly profit and loss statements, that enables Farm Credit to serve a wide variety of farm accounting needs.

The Farm Records and Tax Service is available to all farmers eligible to use Farm Credit's lending programs, even if they are not present borrowers.

ATV's Lighten Farm Workload

LOS ANGELES, Calif. — Without a doubt, motorized horsepower – in the form of the versatile, lightweight, fuel-efficient all-terrain vehicle (ATV) – is rapidly replacing equine horsepower on farms both large and small across America. For the ATV, it seems, is the perfect answer to the U.S. farmer's need for a low-cost, reliable versatile "workhorse."

Whatever the chore, farmers are finding ways to put their ATVs to use – praising them for their versatility, durability, low cost, and fuel economy. Honda offers a number of all-terrain vehicles especially suited to the needs of farmers.

Among the new offerings for 1987 is the FourTrax Foreman 4x4. This four-wheel-drive workhorse comes equipped with a powerful four-stroke engine, front and rear utility carriers, deep lug tires, and a handy detachable 60-watt headlight. For extra comfort during those long days in the field, the FourTrax Foreman 4x4 also comes with an extra-thick cushioned seat.

Other popular farm models are the Big Red three-wheeler and, in the four-wheeled category, the FourTrax 250 and four-wheel-drive FourTrax 4x4. Each has a powerful four-stroke engine, five-speed transmission with a super-low first gear and a handy reverse, electric starter, automatic clutch, and a towing capacity of up to 850 pounds.

The 1987 Honda ATV line includes eight four-wheeled and four three-wheeled ATVs. Among the entries, in addition to those models designed with the needs of farmers and ranchers in mind, are vehicles suited for a variety of industrial and recreational uses.

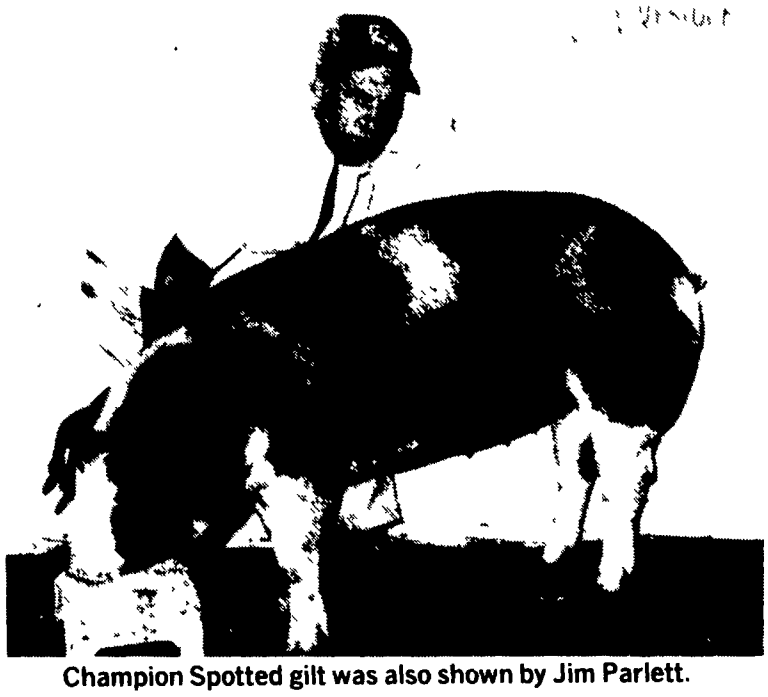
shoulder much of the responsibility for caring for the family's herd of 25 Berkshire sows.

Another KILE regular, Jim Parlett, of Airville, took both champion and reserve honors in the Chester White gilt show. "I thought I had a pretty good shot, but I really didn't know which one it (champion) was going to be," said the York County swine breeder following the show. Parlett noted that the KILE champion had only won her class at the York Fair while the Keystone's reserve had taken top honors at York.



Champion Spotted gilt was also shown by Jim Parlett.

Both the champion and reserve Chester White boars were shown by Scott Lazarus of Germansville, Pa.

Bruce Smith of Washington, Pa., had a banner day in the Hampshire show, taking both champion boar and gilt honors. "We came prepared this year," said the seedstock producer, who also raises Durocs and Large Whites. Also champion at this year's Washington County Fair, the champion boar was out of a sow that was KILE's 1984 champion. Smith bought his champion gilt, a class winner at the Indianapolis Hampshire Conference in July, from Walsh Farms of Wisconsin.

At reserve in both the Hampshire gilt and boar shows was Strawbridge and McCleary of Windsor, Pa.

In the Poland China gilt show, champion honors went to Jeff Wippel, of Ashville, Ohio. This was the first show for Wippel's homebred and raised gilt. "I didn't think she'd do as well as she did," said the exhibitor. Wippel, who has been showing at KILE for five years, took champion boar honors in 1984.

At reserve in the gilt show were Harland and Barbara Wessner, of New Tripoli, Pa., who also showed the champion Poland China boar.

In the Spotted Swine show, Jim

Pa. Breeders Pull In Draft Horse Honors

HARRISBURG — Spectators were treated to the quiet grandeur of the Belgians and Percherons Sunday. The two draft horse breeds paraded before judges in two rings for the halter classes of the Keystone International Livestock Exposition.

Pennsylvania breeders took top honors in the draft horse show.

Abraham Allebach started the flow of champions by placing with his grand champion Percheron stallion, Blackhome Duke. The 3 year old continued the win streak he established last year. During his 1985 campaign Duke won every major show in the U.S. and Canada, Allebach noted.

Allebach, who has shown at KILE for the past 15 years, plans to stand the 18-hands high champion at his Windermere Farm in Spring Mills.

Junior champion honors went to the 2-year-old entry owned by Allebach. Judge Bryan Kemp of Ontario later pinned the Mystic Did-It son as reserve grand champion.

A 5-year-old Percheron mare, owned by Thomas Gilmore, claimed her third grand champion title of the season at Sunday's show. She will seek a fourth title when Gilmore shows her at the Great Lakes International Show in Detroit next week.

Gilmore, of Centre Hall bought his champion in February from Reganald Black of Canada. This was the second championship of the show for him; his yearling stallion claimed reserve junior champion honors earlier.

Orndorff Belgians of Waynesburg dominated the Belgian show — reaping senior and grand champion stallion honors and all but one mare championship.

It was difficult for the competition to top Orndorff's grand champion stallion, Orndorff's Congolais Supreme, who stands 18-hands high. This is the second consecutive year the 5 year old has placed in the show's grand champion position. Before KILE, the Congolaise son earned reserve grand champion honors for the third consecutive time at the Ohio State Fair.

Between champion outing, the stallion has been producing champions at Orndorff's 45-head farm. He sired the junior champion mare of this year's show and in April bred the grand champion Belgian mare also owned by Orndorff's Belgians.

Orndorff's Belgians, owned by the brother and sister team of Christina Lemley and Corbly Orndorff, matched a pair of maternal sisters to claim the grand and reserve grand champion mare titles.

The grand champion, an 8 year old, was bred, raised, sold and bought by Orndorffs. They bought her because "we made a mistake, we should've never sold her," Lemley said. The wisdom of this decision was illustrated when "Princess" claimed grand champion honors of the National American Belgian show this year.

The grand and reserve grand mares are out of "one of the best brood mares ever," Lemley explained. Their dam produced a filly every year; six of these fillies earned Farm Show champion honors, she noted.

Buckeyes Win Collegiate Contest, Trostle Takes Youth Contest

HARRISBURG — Teams from 12 agricultural colleges entered the judging rings at the Keystone International Livestock Exposition and when the dust finally settled the Ohio State Buckeyes had slipped off with the title.

The Buckeyes amassed 4,608 points to edge Mississippi State University's 4,600. Northwest Missouri University finished third, followed by Michigan State University and Virginia Polytechnic Institute.

The Ohio State victory was put together with strong second- and third-place finishes in each of the three competitions. The Buckeye team was runnerup in the beef and swine judging and third in the sheep competition

Northwest Missouri was the high team in the beef round, while Mississippi State finished at the top in swine and sheep.

Individual honors for the entire contest went to Kevin Cheathem of the Mississippi State team who compiled 935 points. A Cheathem teammate, Greg Brown, scored 934 to tie for second with Ohio State's Greg Schroeder.

The Ohio State team took home the Falklands Rotating Trophy as the first-place team and Tom Turner claimed the award as coach of the winning team. The

Berks Conservation District Plans Tour

LEESPORT — Each year the Berks County Conservation District holds a Conservation Tour. Other agencies who are co-sponsors this year are the Berks County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service, Soil Conservation Service, and the Bureau of Forestry.

This year the Bieber Bus will leave the Agricultural Center parking lot at 9 a.m. Thursday, Oct. 16th.

1986 is "The Year of the Forest" in Pennsylvania, so the tour will highlight activities that tie in with that theme. The first stop will be in Reading at the Georgia Pacific Paper Plant on Riverfront drive for a short tour of the facility. The second stop will be at the largest white oak tree in Pennsylvania, located on the grounds of the Wernersville State Hospital.

A stop will be made at the Keeney-Ziegler Honey Storage Facility just East of Bethel and then a lunch stop at Kauffman's Bar-B-Q Chicken Ranch. The afternoon will feature a short tour of the new sawmill run by J.O. Younker Son's Incorporated and a tour of the Harris Pine Mills furniture plant at Hamburg. The tour is expected to end at the Ag Center parking lot by 4 p.m.

As always, conservation practices that can be observed, will be pointed out along the way by personnel who sponsor and conduct the tour.

For more information on how to obtain a ticket please call the ASCS office at 372-4655.

teams were honored at a breakfast on Saturday, the day following the competition. Others entered in the contest were the University of Connecticut, Delaware Valley, West Virginia, University of Georgia, University of Illinois, Pennsylvania State University and Auburn.

In the Junior Livestock Judging Contest, team honors went to Indiana, while Pennsylvania claimed the second-place honors. Virginia, Ohio and Maryland followed in that order.

Virginia's Clay Brumback was the winner of high individual honors and Melissa Trostle of RD 2, Red Lion, York County, was second.

The Virginia team proved their supremacy in the sheep judging, but the Indiana team held sway in the swine and beef competitions. Trostle was the high individual in the swine judging.

The junior teams were composed of 4-H Club and FFA members in their respective states.

Brockett's Ag Advice

By John E. Brockett
Farm Management Agent
Lewistown Extension Office

Different Marketing Methods

Supply management is usually another word for quotas. Many farmers talk about the need for supply management, but few are really willing to pay the price. Last week I attended a conference on Milk Supply Management. It was a very informative session. One of the major topics covered was the Canadian milk quota system. Here are some of the prices the Canadian dairyman has had to pay to get the stability and higher prices for milk through their quota system. (1) Limit on size of operation; (2) Requirement to produce a relatively uniform amount of milk every year (producing below quota can cause loss of part of the quota); (3) Reduced opportunity to bring a child into the business; (4) A loss of milk sale volume (about 1 percent in the past 15 years; (5) An attrition of 67 percent of their dairyman neighbors in the past 15 years; (6) Less flexibility in the sale of their farms (quotas are controlled by a quota board); and (7) A high start-up cost for new farmers.

What have they gained? In some respects, their gains have been a lot In others, their gains seem to be hardly worthwhile. A major gain has been a very stable milk market with pounds sold in 1985 being 99 percent of the pounds sold in 1970 Due to quotas, production and sales were kept in line (In contrast, this country had commercial sales in 1985 that were 109 percent of 1970 sales with production increasing by 16 percent for the same period.) 1985 blend prices in Canada were about $1 (U.S.) higher than 1985 blend prices here In place of commodity purchases, the Canadian government pays their dairyman a bonus (about $2 per cwt. in 1985).

Many counties will hold meetings or workshops on milk supply management as a result of last weeks session. The Canadian system is only one of the available alternatives. Other items that were discussed at the clinic were the ECC (European) program, past attempts at a quota system in this country, some possible alternatives within a quota system, and a modification of the base/excess program. All dairymen should attend one of these marketing sessions. However, the entire program will be of no value unless those attending go with an open mind and pay close attention to history.

There were several unanswered questions that were mostly economic in nature. Has the quota system really increased the net spendable income of all Canadian dairymen? Or has it simply pushed out the less efficient more rapidly? Where will the system be in 5 or 10 years if the attrition of dairymen continues at the present rate? What portion of the milk product market has been taken over by imports and substitutes or imitations in Canada?

Marketing and Price

Marketing, or selling, is not a strong point for most farmers. Yet it is important that farmers in general realize that marketing is a vital part of their business. Marketing strategies may cause different parts of the American farm sector to become bitter rivals in the same way GMC and Ford are rivals. An example would be the rivalry of the soybean producer and the dairyman. Whether either one admits it or not they are often vying for the same market. This market may be fluid milk vs. imitation or filled milk or it may be ice cream or butter vs. oleo margarine. When one of the items out-prices the other in the eyes of the consumer, the "better" buy will be the one purchased. What are some of the factors that help format the consumers decision of what to buy? (1) Actual comparative price is probably most important. (2) Purchasing habit is more important than many people realize — even you as a farmer often buy by habit. (3) Quality of the product can be a major factor — those ads showing people changing their buying habits, due to finding the rival product is better, can be true. (4) The consumers perception of the producer has become important – look at the grape boycott of a few years ago or look at the companies that are pulling out of South Africa (they are not doing so out of any support for the anti-apartheid movement, but out of pure economics, i.e. people not buying their product)

How do businesses try to sway peoples attitudes? Some may call it public relations, others may term it advertising. It really makes no difference which it is called, the result is making people aware, then making people desire, and finally causing people to buy. Obviously, the product that can do this the most effectively will be the one that is profitable. Well advertised products often outsell lesser advertised rivals even when the lesser advertised products are less expensive and have the same quality.

Advertising

Does advertising really help? Most big companies obviously think it does. Consider milk consumption over the past decade. Pre-national advertising years of 1975 through 1983 (8 years) saw an increase of about 8 billion pounds in all milk products consumption. That was about the same as the increase from the end of 1983 to the end of 1985. What was the difference?

What is the most effective type of advertising? Obviously no one really knows or everyone would be using that one method. Most consumers like to be told that something is good for them, good to them, or helps them achieve a goal with very little effort. Many farm products advertisers are late starters but are catching on very rapidly that a good advertisement emphasizes the virtues of a product. Or, says the product is a new improved version of a former product that was familiar to the consumer. Thus the milk advertisements are finally catching up with the present fitness desire of the consumer, ergo the fitness ads and the calcium ads (for once doctors are for the dairy industry). Have your noticed the new updated and upbeat beef ads? They emphasize the new lower fat beef as well as the excellent source of protein.

Leb. 4-H'er Competes In Tractor Contest

LEBANON – Lebanon County 4-H member, Dean Nolt, traveled to Richmond, Virginia, last week to represent Pennsylvania at the National Agricultural Engineering Contest. Nolt, sixteen year old son of Roy and Janice Nolt, Richland, represented Pennsylvania 4-H and placed thirteenth in the National Tractor Safety competition.

Nolt received the title of Pennsylvania's top Tractor Safety Driver earlier this summer by winning the PA 4-H Safe Tractor Driving Contest held at Ag Progress Days in mid-August. He topped a field of tractor driving winners representing counties from across Pennsylvania.

Competition in the Tractor Safety contest goes beyond just naming the number-one tractor driver. It includes identification of tractor parts and a written examination including questions on tractors, their maintenance, and safety. The goal of the Lebanon County program is "to develop an appreciation for safe operation and maintenance of farm machinery within our youth," states Ken Winebark, Lebanon county agent. He continues, "In Lebanon County alone last year we had two farm fatalities, both youth, one of which was one of our 4-H'ers. This has instilled a real challenge for me to encourage a strong 4-H Tractor Safety program in the county. After our first-year tractor program, our kids and leaders are really excited." The Lebanon County Tractor Safety program meets for 10 nights in the months of January through March. Non-farm as well as farm youth are encouraged to join. For more information call the Lebanon County Extension Office at 274-2801, Ext. 350.

Dean Nolt of Richland placed thirteenth in the recent tractor safety contest held in Richmond, Virginia.

Angela Craun of Mt. Crawford took the title with a 739 point score and a 19 point margin over the second place finisher, Joann Rishel of Seven Valleys, York County, PA.

A teammate of Angela's, David Seekford of McGaheysville, VA, finished third in individual competition with a 702 score. Their team, Spottswood FFA No. 1 of Spottswood High School in Penn Laird, VA, achieved the top overall team score.

In winning the championship, Angela earned herself a trophy and a $500 Savings Bond. As runner-up, Joann receives a trophy and a $250 Savings Bond, and David, for running up the third highest score, gets a trophy and a $100 Savings Bond.

The Spottswood team, finishing first with a 2,083 point tally, receives a $100 premium. The home team or teams, so to speak, finished second and third. A York County 4-H team comprised of Tim Ferrence of Spring Grove, Lisa Hoover of Mt. Wolf and Melissa Trostle of Red Lion compiled 2,002 points and preserved Pennsylvania's pride. Finishing third with 1,939 points was another York County 4-H team that included Joann Rishel, Kris Miller of York and Susan Eisenhour of Wellsville. Agenda Set For Mid-Atlantic No-Till Conference

UNIVERSITY PARK – The 13th Annual Mid-Atlantic No-Till Conference, a forum for the discussion and promotion of no-till agriculture, will be held Wednesday, Dec. 17, at the York County Fairgrounds, York. This year's conference is entitled: "No-Tillage: The Key To Profitable Farming."

The keynote speaker for the event will be Dr. Earl Butz, who served as U.S. Secretary of Agriculture from 1971 to 1976. His topic will be "There is Still a Rainbow in Agriculture."

The morning session of the conference is scheduled to begin at 9 a.m. with Lynn D. Hoffman, extension agronomist at Penn State, presiding. Speakers will include specialists from Virginia Polytechnic Institute and State University; Spraying Systems, Inc., of Wheaton, Illinois; the University of Maryland and The Pennsylvania State University.

Specific topics specialists will address include diseases of corn, creating the proper environment for no-till forage, sprayer technology and weed control programs, as well as the economics involved in no-till agriculture.

The morning session will conclude with a farmer's panel discussion. Speakers from Taneytown, Md., Mercersburg and Hummelstown, Pa. will discuss additional concerns associated with no-till farming.

Lunch is scheduled for 12:15 p.m. in Memorial Hall on the fairgrounds.

The afternoon program will give conference participants the opportunity to visit commercial exhibits from 1 to 4 p.m. Another panel discussion, "Quiz the Experts," will be held during this session so that the specialists can respond to questions concerning conference topics.

Contact your County Extension Service for conference and lunch tickets and more program information. Tickets also are available through the Departments of Agronomy at Penn State and the University of Maryland.

The conference is sponsored by the Cooperative Extension Services of Delaware, Maryland, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Virginia, West Virginia, and related agribusiness firms.

Survival Skills For Tomorrow's Farmer

THOMAS MILLER
USDA Economist

Surviving and prospering. That's the name of the game in agriculture, as in any business. The farmers who intend to thrive in the challenging environment of the late 20th century may have to develop new strategies, skills, and priorities that weren't necessary in past generations.

In a recent issue of the Agriculture Department's FARMLINE magazine, Thomas Miller, Warren Trock, and Danny Smith describe the successful farmer of the future, and the demands that he, or she, is likely to face. Miller is an agricultural economist with USDA's Economic Research Service. He is stationed at Colorado State University, Fort Collins. Trock and Smith are professors there. Here are some of their thoughts and observations on what it will take to survive and prosper in the years ahead.

The successful farmers of the future will be better managers than today's farmers–production managers, marketing managers, and financial managers. In other words, they'll be highly skilled at obtaining both technical and economic efficiency.

On the technical side, they'll seek always to squeeze the "last drop" of benefit out of each unit of input, whether land, labor, chemicals, or machinery. New technologies, in both crops and livestock will enable them to monitor the production process and maintain peak efficiency.

Although the prices farmers receive for their products will probably continue to fall in relation to the prices they pay for their inputs, this ratio has been drifting downward for decades. Greater productivity from improved inputs made up the difference. There is no reason to think that future downward pressure on prices will prevent efficient farmers from maintaining net farm income at acceptable levels in most years.

Financial Managers, Too But focusing on technical efficiency alone will not get the job done. Farming is becoming more risky, and capital requirements are higher than they are in other industries. Thus, business expertise in general, and particularly financial management skills to operate in a high risk environment, will be every bit as important as production skills.

The ever-changing business environment will require proficient use of accounting, financial statements and analyses, budgeting and planning, and sophisticated office management procedures. The successful farmers will better understand the risks of the economic and financial environment and utilize the best available marketing and financial management techniques to counter or control those risks.

On the business side, the emphasis will be on controlling costs and maximizing net income from each farm enterprise, rather than on maximizing volume and gross sales. For example, attention will shift to obtaining higher calving percentages and weaning weights rather than more cows, limiting applications of fertilizer to maximize net returns rather than yields, and producing crops with the most efficient machinery rather than the largest.

Increasing price variability in world markets will intensify the need for reliable marketing information and forecasts. While such information is provided by USDA and many other public and private institutions, the greater level of price uncertainty will strengthen the incentive for farmers to acquire their own information.

Furthermore, emerging technologies in telecommunications and microcomputer systems will offer farmers instant access to the best information available for making production, marketing, and financial decisions. The ability to accumulate accurate, detailed information and to form reliable expectations from this information will become crucial to survival in a farm business.

Opportunities Along with Risks Increased fluctuation in financial conditions and markets will present opportunities for gains as well as losses. Successful farmers will be those who maintain the resiliency to survive during the busts so they are in a position to take advantage of the booms. This resiliency will be reflected in the way farm investment is financed, in the organizational structure of the farm, and in the use of technologies so that production can respond to changing conditions.

Structurally, the adjustment seems to be away from the savings-financed sole proprietorships that have long been traditional to U.S. family farming. Partnerships and family-held corporations are, to some extent, replacing the sole proprietorships for commercial-size farms. At the same time, debt financing is declining as the principal means of acquiring the resources necessary for farming. Leasing and various methods of outside equity financing are growing in importance.

Overall, these changes appear to represent the slow emergence of a more "Industrial" type of business organization and financial structure in agriculture. Whatever drawbacks this may have–outside financing, for instance, may entail some loss of control over assets by farmers–it should improve the financial resiliency of the agricultural sector in the same way that it strengthens many nonfarm businesses. Resilient farms will provide the agricultural industry of tomorrow with the ability to adjust to an unstable environment.

Although the future is impossible to predict, the present farm crisis seems to be the painful part of a permanent shift to a new baseline environment for agriculture. If so, it should be noted that American farmers have successfully adapted to changes of this magnitude in the past. Moreover, many farmers–a majority, in fact–have already made adjustments to position themselves so they can survive, and prosper, in the challenging economic and financial environment of the next few decades.

Developing Countries Become Major U.S. Farm Market

BY ERIC VAN CHANTFORT
USDA Information Spec.

The destinations and distribution of U.S. agricultural exports are changing, with the less developed countries of the world assuming an increasingly prominent role in U.S. trade fortunes.

For each of the last 3 years, more U.S. grains and feed were purchased by the less developed countries (LDC's) than by the traditionally larger markets of Western Europe, Japan, Canada, and the other "developed" nations.

For U.S. oilseeds, it's still the developed nations that take the lion's share (roughly two-thirds) of our exports, but their purchases have dropped sharply. Meanwhile, U.S. shipments to the LDC's are holding near record levels.

"The composition of U.S. export markets has shifted, perhaps permanently," notes USDA economist Steve MacDonald in a recent issue of the department's FARMLINE magazine. He says this shift toward a bigger role for the LDC's has been one of the more important trends in U.S. agricultural trade over the past decade.

Data from MacDonald and other trade analysts of USDA's Economic Research Service reveal the extent of this shift in the U.S. customer base.

In fiscal 1975, just over half of total U.S. grain and feed exports went to a relative handfull of buyers that economists classify as the developed nations. The remaining portion was sold, mainly in smaller quantities, to more than 100 LDC's and several centrally planned countries.

By last year (fiscal 1985), the distribution had changed significantly. Less than two-fifths of U.S. grain and feed exports went to the developed nations, while slightly more than two-fifths went to the LDC's. Centrally planned markets (the USSR, Eastern Europe, and China) took about one-fifth of the total.

Although purchase volume has dropped sharply in the last few years for all three categories of buyers, the largest and most sustained declines have come in our developed country markets. From a fiscal 1980 peak of nearly 51 million metric tons of U.S. grains and feeds, our exports to the developed nations dropped by more than 30 percent to less than 35 million tons last year. That was the lowest volume in more than 10 years.

Oilseeds and products rank second only to grains in generating export revenues for U.S. agriculture. In oilseeds, the developed nations remain the largest U.S. customers by a wide margin — yet the LDC's have been closing the gap as imports by the European Community and Japan have declined.

In fiscal 1975, more than 80 percent of U.S. oilseed export volume went to the developed nations, and only about 12 percent to the LDC's. By 1985, the share of U.S. oilseeds going to the LDC's had more than doubled to 30 percent.

Trade analysts recognize that Western Europe, Japan, Canada, and several other developed markets will remain among the top customers for U.S. agricultural exports. The analysts suggest, however, that the potential for future export growth is probably greater among the LDC's, as a group, than among the developed nations.

The reasons include faster population growth in the LDC's, faster growing economies in many cases (Taiwan and South Korea being prime examples), the prospective need for more feed grains and oilseeds to support emerging meat animal sectors, and resource limitations that may preclude agricultural self-sufficiency. In addition, the populations of the LDC's are not as well fed as people in developed nations, so they tend to spend a fairly large portion of any additional income on food.

"Our traditional customers remain very important," concludes MacDonald. "But we also have to recognize the increased role of our important Third World customers and the large potential role of the rest of the less developed world. Self-interest alone dictates that we pay close attention to their various needs and concerns in such areas as open markets for their products, debt relief, and economic development."

Plan Now For Lower Hog Prices

By Richard Barczewski
University of Delaware

NEWARK, Del. — Hog prices are up and things look bright for the industry. I recently had the opportunity to thumb through some market reports in a local farm newspaper and found hog prices as high as $69.25 per hundredweight. That's enough to put a smile on any hog producer's face, but how long will it last?

Market hog prices depend on two key factors, supply and demand. Whenever the demand for hogs exceeds the supply available, prices will rise. This increase will continue until it reaches the point where demand decreases.

Why would demand decrease? Usually the consumers eventually refuse to pay the costs reflective of the market price. As you are well aware, pork prices have increased at the meat counter of your local supermarkets.

If hog supplies remain constant, and consumers start refusing to buy pork in the supermarkets, demand for hogs will decrease and so will prices until both supply and demand stabilize.

As many of you are aware, this is not what usually happens. When prices rise to the level that they are now, producers begin the all too familiar expansion of their herds, which ultimately gluts the market. In turn, the market price plummets and profitability is reduced.

Now I'd be a fool to suggest that you not expand your herds. Everybody knows that if sow and gilt numbers remained constant, prices would remain high as long as the demand didn't decrease. However, with high hog prices, people want to make more. Once a producer starts expanding, everybody else gets into the act. And before you know it, prices decrease.

The point I'm trying to make is that high market hog prices won't last forever. Many of the factors that dictate supply and demand will eventually change and reduce the market price.

The key to profitability is to be aware of your operating costs and make sure you're doing an efficient job of producing market hogs.

It's easy to forget about your production costs and "efficiency" when you're making money. Remember, however, that while everybody is making money in the hog business, some producers are doing a better job. A producer who is making a profit on a $40 market, is obviously doing quite well on a $60 market.

One problem that we need to address is how we handle the increased income from an up market.

We all know that prices will eventually go back down. Currently, futures prices contracts for July, 1987 are at $47. But where the cash market will be at that time is hard to pinpoint.

An option you need to consider in your operation is whether or not to buy into futures contracts. Doing so can look you into a profit that may not be there next July on the cash markets. Then again, maybe the cash markets in July will be $50, and you'll be on the short end of the stick. Futures can remove some of the uncertainty of the cash markets, but as you can see above, they don't remove all of the risk.

Another possible option is to sell on the cash markets, but plan ahead and save some money when the markets are high to get you enough periods of low market prices.

One unfortunate occurrence is that as prices increase, we automatically think of all the extras that we need. Sometimes this can get a little dangerous when a market is volatile. We quickly forget about the $40 market and for some strange reason think that market hogs will sell for $60 for the rest of our lives. A rude awakening will occur when the cash market crashes.

The key thing to remember is that efficient economical management is always important in the hog business.

Always shop for your best market. Prices vary from one market to the next, so make sure you're selling at the best possible place. Consider futures contracts as an option.

Secondly, keep up on feed and supply costs. Buy wherever you can get the best deal on supplies, feed and equipment. Don't let high markets entice you into buying new equipment that you don't really need.

Conservation Tillage Helps Improve Wildlife Habitat

LEESPORT – The practice of leaving the residue of the latest crop over winter is helping wildlife across Pennsylvania.

"Conservation tillage, of which crop residue covering the soil is an important part, is known for controlling soil erosion," said Robert Heidecker, state resource conservationist for the USDA Soil Conservation Service. "Research is showing that this practice also provides important wildlife benefits."

Heidecker added that fields planted by conservation tillage methods definitely do more for wildlife habitat than the large, clean fields used in many large farming operations in recent years.

Fencerows, windbreaks, brushy draws, and odd area within and between fields have been cleared to enlarge farming operations. Farm wildlife populations have declined in these areas.

Conservation tillage, suggests Heidecker, may be one way to help increase wildlife numbers.

A two-year study in Illinois found 448 more birds per square mile in fields of standing cornstalks than in fall-plowed fields. According to the study, more waste grain is left in the untilled fields. The untilled acreage averaged 384 pounds of waste grain per acre while only 3.3 pounds per acre was left in the fall-plowed land.

A similar study in Iowa showed that ground nesting birds benefitted from conservation tillage. No-till fields revealed an average of 37 bird nests per 247 acres compared to only four nests for the same acreage with plowing.

Heidecker defined the ways in which conservation tillage helps wildlife:

- It provides cover for some wildlife and makes waste grain available for many birds and animals.
- It reduces equipment travel, which means fewer nest disturbances and higher hatching rates. Surface tillage equipment such as plows and disks not only promote soil erosion and destroy nests, they also kill or injure flightless young and incubating adults.
- Adequate crop residue tends to disperse nest sites throughout the field.

A three-year field study by the Indiana Department of Natural Resources and SCS supports this concept. The study on the effects of conservation tillage and cover crops on small birds and mammals found the largest numbers in no-tilled fields. Thirty-three different kinds of birds including bobwhite quail and ring-necked pheasants were found in the 21 fields in the study.

Heidecker adds that while conservation tillage is capable of improving wildlife habitat on cropland, it cannot replace the habitat provided by fencerows, brushy and weedy banks, and other odd and steep areas.

Most conservationists agree that conservation tillage is one of the easiest, cheapest, and most effective tools available to control soil erosion. The fact that it might also improve the farm's overall wildlife habitat is just one more reason, Heidecker says, that farmers should consider using conservation tillage.

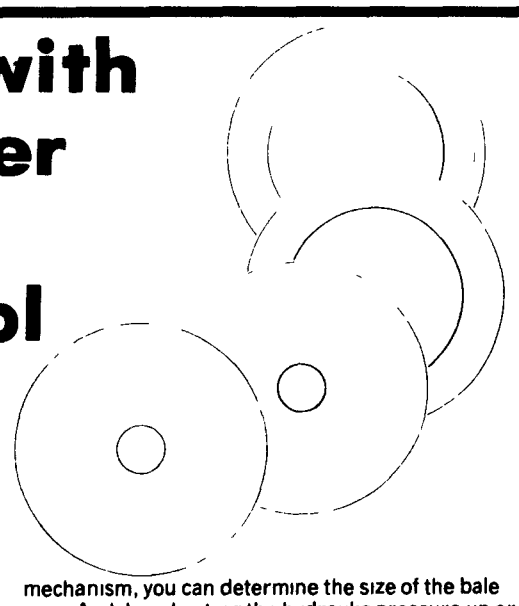
Faster baling with less horsepower plus Total Density Control



Gehl round balers give you more ways to save First, they require less horsepower to operate than the competition That adds up to big fuel savings — and less wear and tear on your tractor

Designed for efficiency

Gehl's unique, patented baling chamber design saves you valuable time That's because the unique roller arrangement provides a more circular bale chamber that starts bales quickly and takes your biggest windrows At a faster speed than competitive machines Whether you're working in the toughest hay, slippery straw or tangled and shredded cornstalks!

And, of course, the biggest potential savings of all uniformly shaped bales that stand up to weather, retain valuable nutrients, and hold their shape

The secret is Gehl's "air-draulics," a system that gives you total density control (TDC®) With a simple adjustment of the hydraulic triggering mechanism, you can determine the size of the bale core And, by adjusting the hydraulic pressure up or down, you can select the ideal outer wrap

Automatic bale wrap

To finish off your bale quickly, Gehl's optional Auto-Electric Wrap system ensures a uniform twine wrap automatically

For a bigger payoff, choose the only machine with TDC® — a Gehl round baler Ask your Gehl dealer for a demonstration today Gehl Company, West Bend, WI 53095

NOBODY HAS MORE HORSEPOWER UNDER FORTY.

Under forty horses, nobody sells more tractors than we do. One reason is simple. We give you more choices.

There are sixteen compact sizes, each a different model. One of them should fit you perfectly. And once you settle on the horsepower, there are still more choices.

Pick special options like 4-wheel drive, power steering or a hydraulic shuttle transmission. Or choose a Kubota-made implement, the best match for any of our Kubota tractors.

There are, however, a couple of decisions we've made for you.

For example, Kubota's own liquid-cooled diesel engine comes standard in every model. An advanced design, it's built for efficient operation. So a little horsepower works like more.

We've also chosen the color.

ASK YOUR FARM CONSULTANT

PURINA® DAIRY CHOW CONCENTRATE 38

Consistent dependable nutrition at a very affordable price.

Why feed a Purina Concentrate when I can buy soybean meal at a lower cost per ton?

HERE ARE FIVE GOOD REASONS WHY:

- All Purina Feeds are backed by a quality guarantee. When you buy Purina you know every pound is nutritionally balanced and Quality Guaranteed.

- Purina Concentrates are often lower in price on a per unit of protein basis than most soybean meal and mineral programs. Until a dairyman adds minerals, vitamins and other ingredients to soybean meal - the cost is often quite high.

- Purina uses a blend of quality proteins to make their concentrates. This allows you to feed more sources of protein to your cow while avoiding being at the mercy of one ingredient when prices are high.

- All Purina products and programs are backed by Purina's Research Facility as well as a full staff of nutritionists, veterinarians and District Managers to assist you in all aspects of your operation.

- With Purina Dealers that are located in your area, you are provided with timely and accurate program service from their Purina Farm Consultants.
